Ann Sava, Chelsea's owner, who was permanently disabled in an industrial accident in 1986 and has since depended on Chelsea to perform many everyday tasks—such as getting in and out of bed and the shower and taking items off shelves at the grocery store—felt she would be lost without Chelsea. The so-called "assistance dogs" who aid people with various disabilities are hard to come by.

In addition, Chelsea has the uncanny ability to predict the migraines that have plagued Sava since her accident, a talent not all assistance dogs possess. Zephyr, Sava's 2 1/2-year-old Doberman, does not, while Resa, her 11-month-old Doberman puppy, is just beginning to show signs of that special gift.

So Sava, 42, a native of North Quincy who now lives in North Weymouth, asked The Quincy Sun and other media sources to make Chelsea's story public. And, according to Sava, "thousands of dollars" have been raised through the generosity of a number of individuals, schools, church groups, community organizations and others who responded to her plea for help.

MAKE A WISH—Ann Sava helps her eight-year-old Doberman Pinscher, Chelsea, blow out candles during a birthday party held Monday at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School. Originally it was believed that Chelsea, who suffers from cirrhosis of the liver, would not be alive to celebrate her special day.

The bills for Chelsea's medication and other services at Angell Memorial Hospital in Boston (where she is treated by Dr. Jean Duddy, a Quincy resident) can be expensive and totalled around $700 last month alone, Sava said. But the generosity from the public, as well as assistance from the South Shore Humane Society, has helped her stay afloat, she said, and more importantly, has helped keep Chelsea alive.

The individuals and groups who have donated to Chelsea's medical fund are too many to count, Sava said. However, she did note that the Lincoln-Hancock School alone

Junior League

Colonial Federal Upsets Rotary

Colonial Federal upset National League leading Rotary, 9-4, in Junior League baseball.

It was Colonial Federal's first win of the season and Rotary's first loss.

Shawn Boostrom pitched all six innings to record the win. Knocking out hits for Colonial were Boostrom, Matt Reggiannini, Paul Markarian, Kyle Piazza, Jimmy Cattaneo and Mike Doucette.

With hits for Rotary were Frank Currier, Adam Goodrich, Kiva Tupe, Matt Millerick and Brian Kalil. Rotary rebounded with a 12-3 pounding of the Elks.

Holding the Elks in check were hurlers Goodrich and Tupe. After giving up all three runs in the first inning, Tupe settled down to pitch two more innings of shutout ball. Goodrich allowed no hits over the last three innings while striking out three.

Hitting for Rotary were Currier (2-for-3), Goodrich (2-for-3), Tupe (2-for-4), Matt Millerick (3-for-4), Paul Wise (2-for-2) and Jordan Virtue (1-for-1).

Billy Miller and David Riley clubbed hits for the Elks. Also playing well were Billy O'Toole, Matt Barrett and Greg McGinness.

Led by the pitching of Tommy Hughes, Beacon Sports won its fourth straight game, 9-7 over Colonial Federal.

Beacon was down 6-1 before Billy Croke's RBI single began the comeback rally. Mark Giese and Tim McGillicuddy each had three hits. Mike Feenan notched two hits including a squeeze bunt. Keith Austin and McGillicuddy each threw out runners at third to complete double plays.

Scott Markarian pitched well for Colonial Federal.

Beacon's streak started with a 16-2 rout of Keohane's.

Matt Joyce's five hits paced Beacon's 19 hit attack. Martin McDonagh and Brendan Donahue each had three hits and four RBIs. Donahue also hit a home run.

Jody Bravo belted a home run for Keohane's and Matt Mooney had a strong outing.

Beacon's other wins included a 4-3 come-from-behind win over VFW (three innings of no-hit relief work by McDonagh) and a 13-6 victory over Kiwanis (Brent Austin: three doubles, six RBIs; McDonagh: 9 K's). Matt Donovan played well for Kiwanis.

Kiwanis also dropped a 7-6 decision to Continental Cable.

Ryan Hutchings recorded the win for Cable and Justin Hall the save. Cable scored the game winning run when Hutchings and Joe Ardagna delivered solid hits. Ardagna finished with three hits for while Pat Gregoli reached base three times and scored twice.

Jody Bravo belted three hits including a triple that nearly tied the game for Kiwanis in the final inning. Brian Nolan had two hits on the day.

Cable played another close game, this time getting squeezed out 14-13 by Burgin Platner.

BP won the game as Jesse Winter, Paul Skarzenski and Ryan McMahon delivered key hits in the final inning. Pitcher Andy Mannix recorded the win. Both Skarzenski and McMahon notched four hits and three RBIs.

Mark Dunn led Cable with four RBIs, including a three-run triple. The triple combined with Peter Turowski's two-run double gave Cable a lead going into the final inning.

The coming week's big game will feature National League-leading Rotary in a battle against Lions, undefeated leaders of the American League.

Junior League Standings:

National League: Rotary, 6-1; South Shore Buick, 4-3; Elks, 4-3; Keohane's, 2-5; Colonial, 1-6; Quincy Police, 0-7. American League: Lions, 7-0; Kiwanis, 4-3; Burgin Platner, 4-3; Beacon Sports, 4-3; Cable, 3-4; VFW, 3-4.

it's because of all the people who have donated that she is still alive."

Sava said Chelsea has had her ups and downs physically—she currently weighs 63 pounds, seven below her normal weight—but generally seems in good spirits.

"Her spirit is as strong as ever," she said. "I think that's what keeps her going."

Outside Sava's North Weymouth home Monday, eight balloons flew attached to the banister on the front steps. Sava had promised to display the balloons on her property if Chelsea lived to see her birthday.

And hopefully, Sava—who said the longest case on record of a dog living with cirrhosis is three years—will be able to display nine balloons in 1995.

Burial Service Saturday For Civil War Veteran

After services, those in attendance will be invited back to the camp to partake in the meal of the day for a soldier in the 1860s, including beans, hard tac (a kind of hard biscuit) and black coffee. Portable toilets will be available, and the camp will break down around 5 p.m. or earlier if the crowd should diminish.

Regarding special rules of the event, Timmins said the public is invited to visit the encampment Friday between 5 and 11 p.m. Although the church service beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday will be open to the public, speakers will be set up outside the church to allow those outside to know what is happening if the building is filled to capacity. Citizens will be welcome to follow the procession to the cemetery and participate in the concluding get-together at the encampment, Timmins added.

Timmins said the coordination of the event, which has taken "a good two months' preparation," required a complete team effort from all parties involved.

"The city's been extremely cooperative, and the staff here (at the shipbuilding museum) has been great," he said. He noted that among the many people who were crucial in the organization of the event were Bradley, Rev. Bennett, Capt. Fred Larcy of the Quincy Police Department, Quincy Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon, William MacMullen, executive director of the shipbuilding museum and a number of other officials from the museum, the Quincy Historical Society and the various reenactment groups.

Timmins advised residents to be aware that three volleys of musket fire at the graveside followed by cannon fire across the street at Faxon Field will cause some "loud booms" during the burial.

He added that besides off-street parking, plenty of parking spaces should be available at the MBTA and Presidents Place parking lots in Quincy Center, especially since the event will take place on Saturday.

"Everything will be very well-organized," said Timmins.

The soldier's remains are now contained in a plain pine casket with rope handles, matching the coffin style of the 1860s, at the Deware Funeral Home in Wollaston. The casket will be buried with an historically correct American flag with 34 stars made by the Eagle Flag of Weymouth.

The partial skeletal remains of the soldier were found several weeks ago in a warehouse of old state military archives by workers at the Massachusetts Military Research Center in Natick, according to museum officials. The box was part of a shipment of records that were moved to the museum.

Officials said the unmarked box was sent to Natick decades ago as part of a shipment from the Grand Army of the Republic Hall in Gloucester. The GAR, the official Union Army veterans organization, was disbanded in 1956 after the last Civil War veteran died.

Since the discovery of the remains, archivists and city officials have been unable to determine the exact identification and circumstances of the soldier's death. There is, however, inconclusive evidence that the remains are of a Union soldier killed on Southern soil.

A document found inside the cardboard box with the skeletal remains indicate that the soldier may have been named "Abraham Jenks" and a member of the 19th Company, U.S. Artillery. The date July 30, 1864 was also found, leading officials to theorize the soldier may have been killed during the Battle of St. Petersburg, Va. which occurred on that date.

A small bronze chest plate with a cup typically worn by a soldier carrying a regimental flag was found with the remains, giving UNKNOWN CIVIL WAR soldier will be buried with Quincy's Union dead in the section that surrounds the Civil War monument in Mount Wollaston Cemetery Saturday, May 28. The body will be escorted to the cemetery by Civil War re-enactors as part of an all-day Civil War encampment planned by officials at the United States Naval and Shipbuilding Museum.

museum officials more reason to believe the soldier is a Civil War veteran.

However, since neither the name of the soldier nor the battle unit could be confirmed by the National Archives in Washington, he will be buried as an unknown.

The publicity of the discovery of the soldier and plans for the burial has generated national interest. Timmins said officials have learned that a crew from ABC News' "World News Tonight" will tape the proceedings for a Memorial Day broadcast for its evening news Monday, May 30 at 7 p.m. and the mayor's office has fielded dozens of phone calls since the ceremony was publicized last month.

Timmins noted that it was originally believed that ABC would tape the burial for "Prime Time Live," its television news magazine, but said the network evidently decided to run the story during its regular nightly news.

after reports that the state's revised formula for the plan will cost, rather than save, money for participating communities.

At the City Council's May 2 meeting, Councillor Timothy Cahill also had asked McGrath to see what he could find out about the issue. The council had followed the School Committee in voting in favor of the plan before the committee voted unanimously last week to reverse participation in the program after learning of the state's new formula.

McGrath reserved comment on the matter when reached by telephone Tuesday.

Sheets said he is confident the city will be able to reverse its participation in the plan, but said he is unsure how the process would work.

"We have adopted a general law, and the question is, how do you un-adopt a general law?" said Sheets. "That's what City Solicitor McGrath is looking into."

Sheets said if the state decided to challenge the right of communities to withdraw their participation, legal action could be taken, since a number of cities and towns have voiced displeasure with the new formula for the early retirement program.

"We're (Quincy) not alone in this," said the mayor.

School systems entering the program must pay for half a participating teacher's retirement program for 15 years. The state pays the other half.

It had originally been estimated before the School Committee approved the program last month that the plan would save the school system $28,141 over a 15-year period for each employee. However, the state has since revised its formula for figuring the cost to participating communities.

George Umscheid, business officer for the Quincy schools, said under the revised formula from the Massachusetts Teachers Retirement System, it would cost the school system $12,359 over a 15-year period for each teacher.

Using the state's original formula for the plan, Umscheid had previously estimated between 10 and 40 positions would open up by teachers taking advantage of the early retirement program.

Financial Planning

GREGG T. RENWIE, PERSONAL FINANCIAL PLANNER

FINANCIAL PLANNING: WHY YOU NEED IT AND HOW IT'S DONE

We all have our own vision of the perfect retirement, doing the things we really love - traveling, fishing, playing golf, volunteer work, turning a hobby into a business. We also have other goals in life such as buying a home, taking a dream vacation and paying for our children's education.

Unfortunately, it's not likely that any of this will happen without careful planning. We all allocate funds for these goals if they are going to become reality. Instead of planning ahead, however, most of us tend to deal with our financial needs as the situations arise. But think how much better off you could be if you plan for the future with a focus on the big picture, rather than treating each financial transaction as an isolated event or buying insurance as an isolated event.

Financial planning is a process that assesses your financial situation and balances it with your goals and objectives, both short-term and long-term. Planning can help you determine what you need to do to get what you want out of life both now and during retirement.

Financial planning should be a long-term, lifetime commitment. No matter where you are in life, there are steps you could be taking to improve the way you're managing your finances, meeting your current obligations and preparing for all of your financial goals.

A financial planner can help you with this process and determine the appropriate investments for achieving your objectives. A plan can help you reach your goals, both now and especially during retirement.

Whether your retirement is five or 25 years away, the time to start planning is now. Even if retirement sounds like it's a long way down the road, be aware that fewer than half of employees retire when they originally planned. Many people find themselves retiring early for health, family or professional reasons and are not prepared financially.

Further, you might not be able to count on your employer pension plan or Social Security to support you adequately when you retire. Private pension plans sometimes didn't provide for automatic inflation protection after employees retire; you may find the value of your pension shrinking yearly.

Company pension plans, in fact, aren't as dependable as they used to be, and you might not be able to count on yours. In recent years, companies have been discontinuing plans, reorganizing them with lower offerings or even eliminating them entirely as they merge or go bankrupt. Currently, only approximately 45 percent of employees are covered by pension.

An additional concern about pension plans is that some provide only minimal benefits for the surviving spouse if an employee dies. This can be extremely important to women who generally live seven years longer than men and often are left with inadequate incomes.

And what about Social Security? For people with incomes of at least $20,000, Social Security currently provides only approximately 23 percent of retirement income. While this is more than pocket change, it's not going to provide everything you need, either.

A financial plan will help you assess your financial situation, including Social Security and pension benefits, and project how much you can expect from these sources. Your financial planner can then help you determine the amount you'll need to supplement your benefits in order to live comfortably.

Your financial planner can help you figure out how other needs, such as housing, will affect your finances, as well. You also should consider important questions about estate planning and evaluate your insurance and medical coverage to see if changes are necessary.

Planning most likely will make a big difference in your quality of life now and during retirement. Even if you already are retired, a plan might enable you to minimize taxes and maintain a steady income.

You work hard for your money and deserve to get the most out of it. Planning can help you live a more comfortable life during your employment years and help you enjoy your free time more during your retirement.

Vote Taken At The Falls

Condo Residents Voice Support For Wal-Mart

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Residents of The Falls condominium complex in Quincy Point have voted to accept a proposal to work with the developer of a proposed Wal-Mart store that would be built near the complex.

City Council President Michael Cheney, who monitored last week's voting process, said 63 of 80 participating residents voted in favor of the Wal-Mart proposal. Six residents chose to fight the project, while 11 voted that residents should take no action until the City Council acts on the matter.

Cheney said that there are 120 possible votes at The Falls, adding that he does not know why only 80 were accounted for. He said each person's name was assigned to a unit at the complex, and ballots were checked off against the unit numbers.

Hingham developer Donald MacKinnon has proposed that his company, Atlantic Development Corp., build both a Wal-Mart store and an as-yet unnamed supermarket on 242,800 square feet at the Quincy Point site. He has proposed an option to the Board of Trustees of The Falls that provides for $600,000 worth of mitigation, and also has offered to pay for several

3 Public Hearings June 8 On Proposed Wal-Mart

Three public hearings on the proposed Wal-Mart project near The Falls condominium complex in Quincy Point will be held Wednesday, June 8 at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The Planning Board and City Council will hold joint hearings at 7 and 7:05 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at Old City Hall. The Planning Board will then hold a hearing at 8 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at New City Hall Annex.

Developer Donald MacKinnon of Hingham and his company, Atlantic Development Corp., want to build a Wal-Mart store as well as a supermarket on 242,800 square feet at the site. The plan also calls for changes to be made in the layout of Falls Boulevard which MacKinnon said will enhance access to property along the boulevard.

Topics for discussion at the three hearings will include the supermarket, the Wal-Mart store itself, and the proposed road renovations.

All are invited to the hearings. The public may also view MacKinnon's proposal at the office of the Department of Planning and Community Development at City Hall Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

community improvements off-site for the benefit of abutting neighborhoods.

MacKinnon has said he would like to begin construction by the end of this year and have it completed by the end of 1995.

Cheney said the vote does not guarantee that a permit allowing MacKinnon to build the project (Cont'd On Page 2)

Will Succeed Wahlberg

Weld Picks Cedrone For Housing Post

Christine Cedrone will succeed Rosemary Wahlberg on the Quincy Housing Authority Board of Commissioners.

Cedrone, a Republican, has been chosen by Gov. William Weld to fill the expired term of Wahlberg, a Democrat, on the board. The term is for five years.

QHA Executive Director John "Jake" Comer said Tuesday he is sorry to see Wahlberg go but looks forward to working with Cedrone.

"It goes without saying that losing Rosemary Wahlberg is a loss to the Quincy Housing Authority," said Comer. "She's been an outstanding commissioner, but I've lost other outstanding commissioners in my 12 years

CHRISTINE CEDRONE here.

"Miss Cedrone is a new face in the Quincy community, and I'm sure she probably could have been appointed to any other board in the city. I think once she learns her responsibilities to public housing, she'll settle in."

Comer said as a commissioner, Cedrone will receive a stipend from a percentage of family housing rents. He added that although the amount changes from month to month, the total generally averages about $4,000 a year.

Wahlberg had served 15 years—three five-year terms—on the board. She was first appointed by Gov. Francis Sargent, a Republican, in 1974. She was appointed again in 1984 and 1989 by Gov. Michael Dukakis, a Democrat.

Cedrone, a 23-year-old office manager and a resident of South Walnut Street, is seen in political circles as a coming Republican star. Cedrone and Sean Barry locked up in an historic election battle for a School Committee seat last fall when a recount showed the pair deadlocked with 5,734 votes each.

At a joint convention of the City Council and School Committee, Barry won the seat on a 9-4 vote. Wahlberg's term had expired in February but Weld held her over until this week. She was notified on Tuesday that Cedrone would succeed her.

"I don't know the lady (Cedrone) but I wish her well," Wahlberg said. "As a commissioner she will affect thousands of families in Quincy and will realize, I am sure, how important that job is."

Wahlberg lived 14 years herself in public housing in Germantown from 1957 to 1971.

"Housing has been a major interest in my life ever since," she said. "Later as a commissioner I had the opportunity to play an important role in providing housing."

Wahlberg, who is executive director of the Quincy Community Action Program, said she will continue her efforts to provide affordable housing for those who need it.

At press time Cedrone could not be reached for comment.

will be issued, but acknowledged that it does give the proposal more weight.

"The vote taken on May 25 was very important," he said. "There is no question that it's a major turning point in whether Wal-Mart is permitted. The people who are most affected by the project have spoken, through a democratic process."

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, whose ward includes the Quincy Point site, agreed.

"It's a significant milestone in the permitting process for the Wal-Mart store," he said. "We are all working together to ensure that the Wal-Mart store represents an improvement to this area within the City of Quincy and that any impacts will be mitigated that might affect either The Falls residents or abutters."

According to Quincy Planning Director Richard Meade, MacKinnon's proposal would require both a favorable recommendation from the Planning Board and a two-thirds vote of the City Council in order to be passed. The site MacKinnon wants to build on is zoned Planned Unit Development (PUD), which means the City Council is the special permit granting authority over the site.

Three public hearings relating to the Wal-Mart proposal will be held at Quincy City Hall Wednesday, June 8 beginning at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers. Three community meetings have already been held on Tuesday night.

The vote of The Falls residents came just one day after representatives from several Quincy businesses expressed concerns over the proposed Wal-Mart project at a meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. Among them were the managers of Woolworth's in Quincy Center and Bradlee's in Quincy Point—the latter of which is not a QCBPA member—who both said their companies would likely be forced to close their Quincy stores because of competition from Wal-Mart. Bradlee's is just down the street from the site of MacKinnon's proposed project.

MacKinnon has said the arrival of a Wal-Mart in Quincy would actually help downtown merchants by creating business that would spill over into Quincy Center.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he plans to meet in the near future with representatives from several businesses, including Woolworth's and Bradlee's, to discuss their concerns about the proposed project. Sheets has said he will only support a Wal-Mart in Quincy if it is positively determined it will not adversely affect the downtown business area, a decision that the mayor said will require further research.

Ex- POW Robert Noble's Memorial Day Message:

'Experiences Of War Should Serve As A Lesson To All Of Us'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
Recalling personal experiences as a U.S. Army soldier, POW and veterans activist, Quincy's Robert Noble urged Americans to remember veterans of all wars during the city's Memorial Day ceremonies at Mount Wollaston Cemetery Monday.

Noble, who was held captive for five months in a POW camp during World War II while a member of the 87th Infantry Division, spoke of the many difficulties veterans have experienced at war abroad and at peace at home. Those supreme and unselfish sacrifices should never be forgotten, he said.

"I was fortunate by the grace of God, and through unexplainable circumstances, I fought, was captured and returned to my family with a minimum of problems. There are others, who in the prime of their lives, were separated from their wives and children.

"They went off to defend their country, and our way of life. Some never returned. Some returned, better for their experiences, and were able to resume their lives and go on to build a better country.

"There are others who have severe problems, emotional and physical, that will remain with them forever. This is the result of all wars and conflicts."

Noble said there are many stories of veterans suffering physical hardship, isolation and mental abuse. He recounted the carnage and courage of the Bataan Death March where 10,000 were killed in 70 miles.

"One man was thought to have died, and was thrown into a heap of dead bodies. It took him hours to crawl out. He survived four years of captivity and is alive today and still contributing to his community," Noble pointed out.

He also recalled the deplorable circumstances and conditions of rescuing and removing bodies from the city of Dresden after it was firebombed.

"They were forced to work in mines . . . and to other acts contrary to the rules of the Geneva convention. Men were forced to stand for hours on the ice of the Chosin Reservoir in below zero temperatures and biting winds.

"God knows how many survived."

Korea and Vietnam were no different, Noble said, as prisoners of those two wars endured physical mistreatment and isolation for years with no knowledge of when they

SMOKE AND BONES

We all know that it feels like when smoke gets in your eyes, but what it can do to your bones is another story. Orthopedists studying the effects of cigarette smoking on bones have discovered that smokers generally take much longer to recover from broken bones than non-smokers. For example, researchers found that it took smokers and average of six months longer than non-smokers to regain their ability to walk following leg surgery. The reason seems to be that the carbon monoxide and nicotine in smoke hinder the body's production of collagen, a fibrous substance that knits bone fissures back together. For pack-a-day smokers, that may mean that bones are only able to work on mending during sleeping hours.

P.S. Smoking a single cigarette can dramatically slow the process of bone healing for up to 40 minutes.

The link between smoking and weak bones provides a wonderful reason to kick the habit today. Another great reason is for the sake of your heart. If you would like to learn more about quitting smoking, or about other ways you can help prevent heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We specialize in the treatment of heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. Office hours are by appointment, and our comfortable office is located at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

I always thought so, and now I know for sure: there really are a lot of nice people. I've recently heard from many of them. They have written, called on the phone or told me in person how they share my feelings about losing Maggie.

Maggie, a pretty tiger cat, who wandered into my home, life and heart as a stray 15 years ago, died of lymphoma last month.

I wrote about her in a recent column—how at first I didn't want her to stay but how she managed to, and became a loved member of the family and my pal.

Today, I would like to share with you some of the kind thoughts expressed by some of those who wrote or called in response to that column:

FLORENCE PETERSON, Governor's Rd., Quincy: "Over a period of 45 years, and after having gone through the loss of Smudge, Puffy, Mama Kitty, Maggie & Jiggs, Nicodemus, Fluffa and Duffy McDuff, your Sunbeams article truly hit home and brought tears to the eyes of my daughter and me. We still have Trouble and her "kid," Snickers—alive and well.

"Your tribute to Maggie was truly a wonderful and touching memorial and I just had to write to let you know. We have all been down the same road at one time or another.

"Our compliment to you on such a moving article and our sympathy to the Bosworths on the loss of a precious pet."

GINGER JACKSON of Montclair Ave., North Quincy, sent a copy of the Rainbow Bridge—the story of the bridge connecting heaven and earth and where beloved pets go when they die.

And, she wrote: "I do a great deal of work with homeless cats in the city of Quincy and elsewhere, so I can relate to your story.

"One thing about animals—they give us their unconditional love. I know, as I have two dogs and three cats and find they make our lives so much richer."

MARILYN CASEY of Cove Way, Quincy: "Thank you for the tribute to your Maggie. It was generous for one of the masculine gender to share his appreciation of his pet's love and companionship and the status of family membership which all pets deserve.

"As one who has memories of various pets stretching back to my earliest days to the present, I found the piece to be touching and filled with a compassion all pet lovers share. It was particularly rewarding to have it appear during the same week Cannel 4 aired its series on "Silent Victims of Depraved Minds."

MARJORIE GRAHAM (no address):

"Had to write and tell you how much we enjoyed your article about Maggie. It reminds us of the many happy relationships we have had with our pets who have been so responsive to affection and kind care. And they all have had such different personalities.

"Thank you for your article—we'll save it as it was beautifully written, with such tenderness and affection for little Maggie."

MARJORIE MAXHAM of Washington St., Braintree: "I just wanted you to know that I liked your tribute to Maggie.

"Anyone who has had a cat companion knows how you felt and do feel yet.

"They all remain with you in spirit just as other family members. The sorrow will fade, but happy memories will always remain."

HELEN GOHL, Academy Ave., Weymouth: "I am a devoted reader of The Quincy Sun and must tell you how much I enjoyed the Sunbeams regarding Maggie.

"I was really surprised to read your sincere feeling regarding your pet. You have always impressed me as a tough newspaperman but you proved differently. I am so pleased to know you really do have feelings."

STEVE CANTELLI, fifth grade teacher at the Lincoln Hancock School who read the column on Maggie to his class said: "You could have heard a pin drop—they were so attentive."

Cantelli then had the class write about their own pets or their feelings about animals.

One of his students, David Centrella, wrote this letter:

"I liked your article about your cat Maggie. I liked it because I love cats. I think that if somebody hurts an animal that they should be hurt too because animals are nice.

"I am sorry that your cat died. I had three hamsters and they all died so I know how you feel. Maybe you should think about getting another cat."

Another student, Aaron Dussault, also wrote a letter, calling for tough punishment for anyone abusing animals. He said:

"I think that anyone who mistreats animals should be put in prison for life. Animals have feelings, too, just like you and me. I think animal abuse is wrong and should be stopped.

"Animals have rights, too, because animals are living things. Did you hear about the puppy that was buried alive? The man was found a few days ago. I think that man should be buried alive like the dog was."

Even though I never had a pet, I love all animals. Other students in the class who expressed their love for pets included: Joe Tormey, Nicole Cinquegrano, Danielle Brancaccio, Sean Goodale, Krystle Linehan, Robert Warren, Julie Vaughn, Christopher Murphy, Barbara Horrigan, Elizabeth Horrigan, Elizabeth Couture, Jacki Stevens, Jonathan, D'Olimpio, Caitlin Crowley, Nadia Cardone, Jessica Pettinelli and Amber Tully.

I appreciate all who took the time to write and express their feelings. It's nice to know there are many kind people out there who believe in the rights of animals and who give loving care to pets who really become and are treated like members of the family.

There were also number of telephone calls, too, one of which I am sure I will remember.

He has called before, usually to take issue with some political item I have written.

"This time," he said, "I just want you to know I have a cat that looks like Maggie. You made me cry!"

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN early postcard view of the old Quincy Point bridge showing a trolley passing over it on its way to North Weymouth. The bridge was designed and built under a government contract by Thomas A. Watson, founder of the Fore River Engine Company who assisted Alexander Graham Bell in the invention of the telephone. The bridge swung sideways to open. Replaced in 1934 by the present Art Deco Fore River bridge, this bridge was completed in 1902 just in time for the launching of the USS Navy cruiser Des Moines, which was the largest ship built up to that date at the Quincy shipyard. This bridge was on the Procter and Gamble side of the present structure.

Snug Harbor School Wins Blue Ribbon Award

The Snug Harbor Community School in Germantown has received the nation's top education award.

The elementary school was named a Blue Ribbon School last week. Snug Harbor is the only school in Massachusetts to win the award given by the U.S. Department of Education, according to a spokesperson for the office of Sen. Edward Kennedy.

The Snug Harbor School is the second in the city to win the award. Broad Meadows Middle School won the honor three years ago.

According to the Kennedy spokesperson, Snug Harbor is one of 276 Blue Ribbon winners across the country. Nationally, 529 schools were nominated including four in Massachusetts.

A number of school officials, including Snug Harbor Principal Richard O'Brien and School Supt. Eugene Creedon, said they were thrilled about the award.

O'Brien said the school submitted a 35-page application that showed staff went beyond teaching regular curriculum and spent hours beyond the regular school day making Snug Harbor a "welcoming place" for kids. The staff holds before and after-school basketball, soccer and tap dancing, among other programs.

Snug Harbor is the only elementary school that houses a community center. The Germantown Neighborhood Center, a one-room office in the school, offers YMCA programs and craft classes for the children.

Graduates of Snug Harbor go on to Broad

Meadows Middle School, just two miles away. Officials said the two schools mirror each other in many ways in the pupil population, parent involvement and administrative style.

At Snug Harbor, almost 90 percent of the 400 pupils come from families on welfare, officials said. A majority of the pupils live in the peninsula's public housing.

About 40 percent of Snug Harbor's pupil qualify for federally-funded Chapter 1 services because they come from low-income families. Unlike most Chapter 1 schools, Snug Harbor is allowed to use the federal funds throughout the building, which means class sizes are smaller and teachers can give more time to children needing special attention and all the pupils can use the computer lab.

Creedon said he expects the school to organize some events for pupils and the community for winning the award. In the fall, he added, representatives of the school will be invited to Washington, D.C. to receive the award, a large blue ribbon and a plaque.

The other three Massachusetts elementary schools nominated for the Blue Ribbon award were Central Elementary School of Methuen, Casimar Pulaski School of New Bedford, and Henry T.

Wing School of Sandwich. Officials from the Department of Education made their final selections after visiting the schools.

ELEMENTARY LUNCH

June 6-10

Mon: pizza, fresh fruit, fruit juice, milk.

Tues: Early release day. No lunch served.

Wed: hot ham and cheese on a bagel sandwich, baked beans, fruit juice, milk.

Thurs: turkey fricassee, sweet potatoes, vegetable, cranberry sauce, fresh baked roll, milk.

Fri: loaded nachos (cheese and meat sauce with taco chips), corn, fresh fruit, milk.

Of the 526 public and private elementary schools nominated for the award, 56 percent or 294 schools received visits. Officials visited Snug Harbor last month.

Snug Harbor was nominated for the award in 1991 but did not receive a visit because cuts in the federal program prevented officials from making the trip.

SECONDARY LUNCH

June 6-10

Mon: pizza, vegetable, apple crisp, milk.

Tues: chef salad (Julienne ham, turkey cheese, lettuce and tomato, dressing), fresh baked roll, fruit juice, milk.

Pruitt Named School Supt. At $18,000 Salary

Robert E. Pruitt, 46, of Forest Park, Ill., associate director of the University of Chicago's Experimental Laboratory School, was named to the $18,000 a year post of superintendent of schools in Quincy.

Pruitt was to succeed Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard, who was retiring Aug. 1.

"I am very pleased," said Pruitt in a telephone interview to his midwest home. "The professional way in which members of your school board have handled this has impressed me. It is a very pleasant experience."

Although he was born in Kentucky and spent most of his working life in the midwest Pruitt was no stranger to New England, having spent time at Harvard and MIT as a supervisor of teaching methods for the War Department.

"All aspects of education must get emphasis," he said. "In past years, the sciences have been greatly emphasized. But we are moving in the direction of, and I support this, a need to implement efforts to strengthen the social studies, humanities and arts."

DUMPING RESTRAINED

The city of Quincy obtained a restraining order in Norfolk Superior Court to halt the dumping of demolition lumber into a privately-owned quarry off Willard St., West Quincy, not far from the big Swingle's Quarry.

The quarry was owned by Peter G. Ruscitto of Braintree, who was filling it in as part of a preliminary phase to the development of about 270 acres of property he owns in the quarry district.

REBUILDING GOP

"We must get youth into the ranks," he said. "We will never have the strength to do what Ted Kennedy has done but we must have youth on our side."

Medical Suspense Author To Speak At Library

Dr. Michael Palmer, author of medical suspense novels will speak at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Sq., Tuesday, June 14, at 7 p.m.

His talk is entitled, "From Country Doc to New York Times Bestseller: One Writer's Story."

A graduate of the medical school at Case Western Reserve University, Palmer has interned at Boston City Hospital and served as a resident in internal medicine at Massachusetts General Hospital. In addition to a private practice in emergency medicine, he has been an instructor in medicine at Harvard University.

Dr. Palmer's most recent book, Natural Causes, pits a young resident who practices holistic healing against some powerful interests. One reviewer aptly calls the novel a page-turner; another notes that it is an entertaining novel with surprise moments.

Palmer's other novels are equally engrossing. The Sisterhood, which is set in a Boston hospital, involves a group of nurses who practice euthanasia. A pathologist who discovers a sterilization experiment originating from Nazi concentration camps is the main character in Side Effects. A small town hospital in New Hampshire is the scene of another unethical experiment in Flashback. This lively novel focuses on a new anesthesia and its recipients who relive their operations. Extreme Measures are what a secret club of medical professionals will take if a young doctor won't play by their rules.

REV. SHELDON BENNETT, pastor of United First Parish Church in Quincy, conducts service for Civil War soldier Abraham Jenks. Re-enactors serve as honor guard at flag-draped coffin.

PARADE OF Civil War re-enactors march along Coddington St. to Mount Wollaston Cemetery as part of Saturday's burial for a Civil War veteran.

CIVIL WAR MONUMENT at Mount Wollaston Cemetery looms above the ceremony for Civil War veteran Abraham Jenks Saturday. Re-enactors carry the flag-draped coffin to burial site as crowd gathers.

Unknown Civil War Veteran Is Buried Finally With Honors

the words of Rev. Bennett were heard on the speakers set up outside the church.

The unknown soldier, believed to have been killed at the Battle of the Crater in Petersburg, Va., in July 1864, received an authentic funeral and burial from the numerous regiments involved in the ceremonies.

Rev. Bennett's words filled the otherwise quiet morning air, as he and others attempted to give the soldier what he had lacked for nearly 130 years.

"Farewell, o soldier unknown. May this place by your final bivouac here on this hallowed hillside," Bennett said. "The traveling party is now halting. A procession winds around, solemn and slow. Before you lie the camps of your comrades.

"The unknown soldier we honor today stands for all who died in this war: North and South, black and white, Union and Confederate," Bennett added. "Farewell, old soldier, the days of your campaign are done."

As the 30-minute ceremony drew to a close, U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum volunteer Don Timmins, dressed in a Union uniform, played "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" on the harmonica while the procession filed out of the church, onto Hancock St., then down towards the Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, the final resting place for the unknown soldier known only by God.

The people who had gathered outside the church waited to follow the horse-drawn wagon which held the pine coffin draped with a 34-star Union flag, a soldier's brass sword and three carnations.

The procession, with various Civil War re-enactors as well as women and children dressed in 1860's styles, led past an authentic-looking Civil War encampment which had been carefully set up on Faxon Field to resemble one that may have existed 130 years.

"It's obvious to anyone here today what hard work and preparation went into putting an event like this on," said former director of tourism for Quincy leader Ernie Aristide. "All involved knew what they were doing and gave the feel of an authentic Civil War-type ceremony, complete with the horse-drawn carriage, the flag from the 1860s and everything else that went into the ceremony," Aristide added.

"This was a great event for the city, showing it can make a solemn occasion like this work."

Those who got involved first-hand at the funeral and burial cited a love of history and the need to get closer to what happened over a century ago.

"I got involved with this event mainly because of a love of history and an interest in Civil War history in particular," said Joe Ciano, clad in a uniform of the Mass. Calvary 1st Regiment. "I decided being an academic and reading about it, going to the battlefields wasn't enough, so I decided I was going to take part and be a re-enactor, get a better feel for it."

Ciano, who works in Quincy, said the event was a lot of fun and that he would do it again if such an event arose.

One man who looked in from the outside, longtime Quincy resident George McCormick, also has had a fascination with history and was quite excited about the day's events.

"I've been to about three of these before, and this was just as good, if not better than the others. It really made you feel like time had reversed and we were back in the 1860s commemorating the death of a fallen soldier. I had a great time."

As the processio reached the cemetery, the spectators crowded the area to get a closer look at history in the making, since this marked the first event of its kind in Quincy's history.

After the burial, Mayor James Sheets urged all in attendance to never forget what the Civil War soldiers did for the country so "these dead have not died in vain."

Sheets proceeded to read from President Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address before the coffin was lowered into an empty, hand-dug grave.

Others involved with the Memorial Day weekend ceremonies that day in Quincy included Quincy resident Mark McCormick, son of the George McCormick, and McCormick's friend, Kevin Regal.

The two men, who attired themselves in the outfit of a South Carolina regiment, had nothing but praise for those who had

Marie Gillan, Donna Baker Hospital Employees Of Month

Marie Gillan, RN, a staff nurse and Donna Baker, a nursing technician, who work together in a nursing partnership on Quincy Hospital's surgical floor, were named Quincy Hospital Employees of the Month for April.

The award recognizes outstanding contributions by employees.

Gillan and Baker, who have been partners for the past four and a half years, were one of the first teams created under the hospital's nurse partnership model. The partnerships were designed to deliver patient care more efficiently.

The two have received high praise from their supervisor, Gail Driscoll, RN, nurse manager, who said she is "proud to have them as role models in the nurse leader model of practice, as they truly work in partnership to provide the highest quality of care."

Both Gillan and Baker find many benefits to working together as partners. With Baker providing the patients' physical care, Gillan is able to take care of nursing, dressings, and medication responsibilities. By working together, patients come to know them as a team of caregivers. They, in turn, feel better able to meet each patient's needs.

Gillan and Baker were also commended for their assistance in developing a gynecological-surgical pod at the hospital. They received special training to work with these patients and are especially proud of having cultivated a good working rapport with the gynecologists.

"Together they have established a high standard of care and professionalism that serve as the standard on the unit," said Driscoll.

Quincy Veteran's Baptism Of Fire 'D-Day Seemed Like An Eternity'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Harold "Turk" Beston of Quincy describes June 6, 1944—the day that came to be known as D-Day—as his "baptism of fire."

He remembers arriving by ship on the coast of Normandy, France; spending 15-20 minutes that "seemed like an eternity" fighting for his life at the beach against Nazi forces, and escaping the landing scene after a fellow soldier used an explosive device to put a hole through a barbed wire fence.

And, as he puts it, "then the real war started."

Beston, 72, a lifelong resident of Quincy and a 1941 graduate of Quincy High School, served as a platoon sergeant in the U.S. 5th Ranger Battalion during World War II. He recalled the sight of thousands of vessels on the water as he left Southern England for Normandy on the Belgian channel steamer Prince Leopold—as far as you could see, there were ships—and the feeling of edginess that his battalion of between 500 and 600 men experienced prior to the invasion.

"All night we heard the (Allied) planes over us, and the channel was very rough because of stormy weather the day before," he said. "We didn't do much sleeping. I'll tell you that."

Some 5,700 ships and 8,000 planes, including the U.S. 82nd and 101st Airborne divisions took part in the D-Day invasion of Normandy, the largest amphibious invasion in history. Considered by many to be the major turning point in the war, it is remembered as the day the Allies began to push back the Nazi forces out of HAROLD "TURK" BESTON, who fought in the D-Day invasion June 6, 1944 reminisced about the event recently at his Quincy apartment. To his right are a mahogany plaque featuring cross rifles—the symbol of the infantry—and a photo of Beston meeting then-President Ronald Reagan in France during the 40th anniversary of D-Day in 1984.

France and force them back into Germany.

Beston said at the time, he had no sense of the true historical impact of the event.

"In the overall picture, I knew it was important," he said. "But back then, I really wasn't thinking about reading about it in the newspaper 50 years later."

Beston recalled leaving the Prince Leopold "about five or six" miles off the coast of Normandy and approaching the beach in a smaller landing craft. One such craft traveling in front of Beston's struck a German mine as it arrived at the beach and exploded on impact. Rather than losing his composure, the man guiding Beston's craft maneuvered directly over the hole left from the mine.

"I thought that was pretty damn good," said Beston.

As Allied forces began storming the beach in droves, Beston said they ran up about 50 to 100 feet of beach before they reached a point where they were "kind of stymied" by Nazi soldiers shooting down at them.

"We were probably only on the beach for about 15 to 20 minutes; it's kind of hard to say," he said. "But it seemed like an eternity."

As the battle raged, Beston said a general for the Allied forces shouted, "Lead the way, Rangers!" at which point a soldier from Naples, Maine named Freddy Rogers used a torpedo to blow a hole through a barbed wire fence on the beach, giving the Allies a quick exit route.

The fierce fighting continued as the Allies made their way through the town of Vierville-Sur-Mer, with both sides suffering heavy losses.

"We suffered a lot of casualties, and we inflicted a lot, too," said Beston.

At one point, Beston said he almost lost his own life while approaching a bridge in the town. Spotting a Nazi ahead of him with a machine gun, Beston dove behind a giant I-beam—which had been part of the bridge but was "laying there in repair"—for protection. Although the bullets missed him, they struck his backpack which was sticking out from behind the beam.

"I could feel the bullets hitting the backpack," he said. "And if it wasn't for that I-beam, some of those bullets would have been in Beston said he tossed off the backpack during the battle. After the machine gunner was killed, he picked it up again to discover 43 bullet holes. Beston said he kept the backpack until the end of the war but unfortunately it eventually was lost.

"That would have been a real souvenir," he said.

Beston said the Allies slowly made their way to the town of Grancamp where they met up with the U.S. 2nd Ranger Battalion. They stayed there for a couple of days, he said, and realized things were turning in the Allies' favor when "a lot more of our troops began arriving to give us relief."

After the invasion, U.S. casualties totalled 6,603, including 1,465 killed. Fifty years later, Beston said he still thinks about the those who sacrificed their lives on D-Day—"I lost quite a few friends," he noted—and attends annual reunions held throughout the country to commemorate the event. Next year's, he said, will take place in Boston.

He added that the loss of so many comrades in Europe quickly made him lose his initial distaste for killing enemy soldiers.

"I had mixed feelings at first, but when you see your friends get shot, you quickly change your mind," he said. "It's a game of survival, and if you hesitate, you're dead. It's no time for mixed feelings. The time for mixed feelings is afterward."

helped the event take place and be such a huge success.

"Both of us enjoy taking part in these events, but this was special because it was right in our own backyard," Mark McCormick said. "And we could not have had a prettier day or a better turnout for such an important event."

The remains buried Saturday of this unknown soldier were those a skull, femur and tibia that had been recovered in a box in a Gloucester cellar in March of 1993. They were then transferred to the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum in Quincy after spending an unknown amount of time in Gloucester's Grand Army of the Republic Hall.

Among the groups assisting in the funeral arrangements was the Deware Funeral Home of Wollaston which ordered the plain pine casket for the soldier.

William MacMullen, executive director of the shipbuilding museum, was thrilled with how the day's events had gone after about two months of preparation.

"I was especially thrilled at how many turned out for the events," MacMullen said. "A lot of people put in a lot of time and effort to make this run smoothly, and they are to be commended for their work."

Although the soldier is said to be unknown, a note attached to the man's skull identified him as Abraham Jenks, a black man who served as the sergeant of Company F, 19th Maryland Volunteers.

Council President Michael Cheney said he hopes this event will spark future services and "put Quincy back on the map."

"It is my hope we can do many more events like this. Particularly since Quincy now has it's own unknown soldier. What we are hoping for is a memorial service every year at the grave site."

Malvesti, Quincy Shutout North, 4-0

By KERRY BYRNE

Tom Malvesti became the fourth straight Quincy High School pitcher to overpower the opposition as the Presidents completed their season sweep of the North Quincy Red Raiders with a 4-0 win Thursday at Adams Field.

The win, coupled with Saturday's season ending 7-1 loss to Boston Latin, left the Presidents with a 13-7 record. North finished at 5-15.

Quincy's 6-2 win over Silver Lake Wednesday ensured their first tournament appearance since 1988.

Malvesti's three-hit outing added to Quincy's impressive list of late season pitching performances. President hurlers Chris DeLisle, Jeff Russell, Shaun Kivlin and Malvesti allowed just 11 hits and five total runs in Quincy's last four games, all wins, before the loss to Latin.

NQ's Steve Manning was also strong on the mound. He gave up just seven hits in his complete game performance. He fell victim, though, to three Red Raider errors which proved costly in the tight game. Three of Quincy's four runs were unearned.

"I was quite pleased with our performance," said North Quincy coach Leo Donovan. "But those unearned runs and errors really hurt us. It was the difference in the game." Manning's performance was made more impressive by the fact that he suffered a stinging left elbow (non-threatening arm) injury

Wednesday in a game against Bridgewater-Raynham that may have hindered his ability.

It was Malvesti, however, who controlled the fast paced game. He allowed just five base runners and struck out eight. The number of base runners could have been only three; with two out in the seventh a game-ending called third strike against Sean Dolbere was mishandled by Quincy catcher Jon Gangi. Dolbere advanced safely to first then went to second when Dan Reynolds followed with a base hit. Dolbere was the only Red Raider to reach scoring position. The threat ended when Malvesti struck out North's final batter.

"Tommy came in the game fresh. He's our ace and that's a big advantage," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "It was a long game for North last night (extra innings versus B-R) and that may have tired them out."

President Shaun Kivlin scored what would be the game winning run in the second after he doubled (the only extra-base hit of the game for either team), moved to third and then went home on a throwing error by catcher Tim Zamboni. Single runs in the third (Chris Cotter), fourth (Joe Biagini) and sixth (Tim Messing) were more than Quincy would need.

Along with Reynolds' seventh inning shot, North hits were clubbed by Dolbere in the second (a ball which was narrowly missed by diving right fielder Biagini) and George Wirtz in the fourth. Designated hitter John Downey reached base in the fifth on the only walk issued by Malvesti. Right fielder Brian Oliver made North's defensive play of the game when he robbed Steve Barrett of a sixth inning base hit with a running-diving-sliding catch.

Highlights for Quincy included stolen bases by Kivlin, Miller and Cotter. Stout first baseman Pat Donovan continued to show shades of Neon Deion when he beat out a bunt in the fourth inning. The crisp bunt moved Biagini into scoring position. Biagini would later score when Cotter reached first on an error.

During their late season surge the Presidents have benefitted from several well placed hits; with two out in the sixth, Cotter's blooper to shallow right center found a small gap as four North players raced to make the catch. The hit allowed Messing to score later in the inning.

Quincy's tourney-clinching 6-2 win over Silver Lake Wednesday was highlighted by Kivlin's two-hit performance on the mound.

"I was absolutely afraid of a let down against North Quincy following that win," said Sylvia. "But speaking for any coach, whether its football or ping pong, you don't want to go into a Quincy-North Quincy game needing to win."

Earlier in the week sophomore Jeff Russell also pitched a two-hit game as Quincy beat Everett, 11-0.

NORTH QUINCY'S George Wirtz is tagged out by Quincy shortstop Steve Miller as he tries to steal second base. Quincy allowed only one Red Raider to reach second during their 4-0 win.

QUINCY'S TIM MESSING holds up at third base at the urging of Steve Barrett. NQ's A.J. Carthas awaits the throw. Messing would go on to score the Presidents' final run.

Softball

Late Rally Leads North Past Quincy

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

People thought that North Quincy would end their softball season quietly against Quincy, but nobody told the North players. They pulled out an incredible 18-8 victory with 10 runs in the top of the seventh inning.

With the win North Quincy retained possession of the Mary Pratt trophy, awarded annually to the winner of the final Quincy-North Quincy softball game of the season. Pratt, a former professional baseball and softball player from Quincy, presented the trophy to North Quincy coach Carolyn Parsley.

Seven consecutive Red Raiders reached base to pave the way for the 10-run seventh inning. North sent fifteen batters to the plate and collected six hits, led by Liz Fitzpatrick who collected two hits and two RBIs. She entered the game in the fifth inning when starting catcher Jen Doherty pulled a triceps muscle.

Quincy went down quietly in the bottom of the seventh. When Kristen Holliday popped out to Kristen Proude to end the game it touched off a wild celebration among North players, coaches and fans - a celebration which saw players shower happy coach Parsley with Gatorade.

"I'm so happy for the kids. They needed this win," said a drenched Parsley. "They got down and really played well tonight."

The victory was led by hitting stars Proude (two hits) and Mary Jane Bergeron (two hits, two RBIs) and a defense that was flawless in the sixth and seventh innings. Nicole Domina sparked Quincy with two hits.

After a quiet first inning both teams came alive in the second. North Quincy scored four runs and batted around the order, starting with four straight singles by Jen Teehan, Kerry Monahan, Doherty and Mary Jane Bergeron.

Quincy responded with five runs of their own in the bottom of the second to take a one run lead. The inning was lead by doubles by Kelly Howard and Toni Kabilian and singles by Katie Gallagher and Kerri Connolly.

North came back in the third with two when Bergeron's single knocked in Teehan and Monahan and gave North a 6-5 lead. North added another run in the fourth when Teehan hit a sacrifice fly to left scoring Kerry Ginty, who singled earlier in the inning.

Quincy scored their final three runs in the fifth when Gallagher, Domina and Danielle Perry each singled and scored, giving the Presidents an 8-7 lead. North tied the score in the fifth and set the tone for the seventh inning, an inning the Red Raiders will never forget.

Both pitchers turned in complete games. For North, Kim Healy allowed 10 hits, walked one and struck out one. Quincy's Perry gave up eighteen hits, walked one and struck out none.

North Quincy ended their season with a record of 2-15, Quincy finished at 3-13. Both teams have young squads with few seniors. The experience should pay off with improved teams next season.

Pratt, a Quincy sports legend, threw out the ceremonial first pitch and demonstrated her curveball to the North Quincy players before the game.

Rotary topped Lions, 6-1, in a battle of the two top teams in Junior League ball.

Rotary pitcher Adam Goodrich and shortstop Joe Thorley helped hand Lions their first loss of the season. Goodrich allowed only four hits while striking out five. Thorley kept the Rotary infield tight by helping to turn in several defensive gems, including a double play. Hitting for Rotary were Frank Currier (2 for 3), Matt Millerick (2 for 3, one triple) and Paul Wise (2 for 3). Rookie second baseman Jordan Virtue smashed a double. Goodrich, Thorley and Kiva Tupe each hit singles.

Lions got hits from Andy Currie (2 for 3, one triple), Brian Deputa (1 for 2) and Ryan Kreuger (1 for 2). Danny O'Toole pitched well for Lions.

Following the loss to Rotary the Lions bounced back with a well played 3-2 win over South Shore Buick. Currie outdueled SSB pitcher Brian Deschler for the win. Kevin Weeks clubbed a key hit for the winners while Tom Buckley made a super catch in left field.

Leading Buick in the field was second baseman John Fidalgo. Paul Lentini had two hits.

Other wins for the Lions have come against Burgin Platner, Quincy Police, Continental Cable, Elks, Colonial Federal, VFW and Keohane's.

Ryan Piccini did it all for the Elks as they topped Cable, 3-2, in a crisply played ball game.

Piccini was the winning pitcher, hurling four innings of one-run ball. He also knocked in the game-winning run in the bottom of the sixth and made a run-saving stop while playing shortstop in the second.

Justin Hall fanned 12 and gave up three hits in the losing effort. Mike Welch nailed two hits, including a triple, and made a great play in center field for Cable.

Welch had a big day on the mound for Cable as they topped Beacon Sports, 13-6, in an earlier outing.

Welch pitched a complete game, fanning six. Ryan Hutchings collected three hits, including two doubles, while Joe Ardagna recorded four hits and five RBIs. Craig Royce hit a two-RBI double to right center.

Beacon got strong efforts from Brendan Donahue, Billy Croke and Mike Feenan. Each player knocked out two hits. Matt Joyce had a great game behind the plate.

Following the big win over Lions, Rotary dropped Keohane's, 4-1, in a rain-shortened game.

For Rotary, Tupe went 2 for 3 with a double. Wise was 2 for 2 and Frank Currier clubbed a double. Goodrich and Millerick had base hits. Also playing well were David Benn, Pat Duff and Tom Maloney. Tupe strike out twelve in five innings of work.

YOU AUTO KNOW

SMOKE SIGNALS

While it is normal to see water vapor coming out of the exhaust pipe upon first starting a cold engine, smoke is often a sign of trouble. If the exhaust smoke is a dark black or blue, it may be an indication that the engine is running rich and requires an adjustment. The engine also might be burning oil. This latter possibility may be due to worn rings, valve guides/seals, or a leaking cylinder head gasket. If a cloud of white steam makes an appearance out of the exhaust pipe, it likely means that coolant has entered the combustion chamber, perhaps due to a leaking head gasket, warped cylinder head, or cracked block.

HINT: Whether a car is burning oil or coolant, the situation is a serious one that requires immediate attention.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Decisions, decisions, decisions... Daily decisions are made by everyone. Sometimes they're easy, sometimes they're tough. Sometimes they're put off. Yet even then, a decision is made; a decision not to make a decision.

In a talk on safety, a police officer said: "Traffic lights are a great invention. The red light tells us when to stop. However, it never stops our car. We ourselves must take action to do that."

Every day of our lives we have to decide what action we will take regarding many things. There are always temptations to face.

In training our conscience to be trustworthy, we deal with an inner frontier. We need to be on the alert, ever judging whether the guidance our conscience gives us is in harmony with the spirit of Jesus.

With our conscience in good working order, and with God's help, we can recognize and overcome the temptations that come to us each day...

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

The Quincy High School baseball team, a group of gritty "overachievers" according to coach Bob Sylvia, will go to the E. Mass tournament this year for the first time since 1988.

The Presidents ended regular season play on a losing note Saturday, falling to Boston Latin 7-1, but not before a late flurry of wins that turned a likely .500 year into a 13-7 season.

The loss to Latin is nothing for Quincy to lose sleep over. Their win over Silver Lake on Tuesday had already clinched a post-season berth, and, due to a number of weather induced cancellations, the Presidents played Monday through Thursday before getting a day off on Friday. Needless to say, pitching arms were probably tired. The day off on Friday was lots of little help either for the senior-laden Presidents the Quincy High Senior Prom was that night.

After four straight games and a Prom, the Quincy crew was less than bright-eyed and bushy-tailed when they played Latin.

If the Presidents' pitching staff, backed by Quincy's outstanding defense, can duplicate the outings of last week, they could make some waves in the post-season. For the record:

Monday: Quincy 11 - Bridgewater-Raynham 3. WP: Chris DeLisle, 5-1/3 IP, 4 Hits, 3 BB, 3 ER. S: Steve Miller, 1-2/3 IP, 1 Hit, 1 BB, 0 ER.

Tuesday: Quincy 11 - Everett 0. WP: Jeff Russell, G, 2 Hits, 0 BB, 3 Ks.

Wednesday: Quincy 6 - Silver Lake 2. WP: Shaun Kivlin, 2 Hits, 6 shutout innings.

Thursday: Quincy 4 - North Quincy 0. WP: Tom Malvesti, CG, 3 Hits, 1 BB, 8 Ks.

That's just 12 hits and five runs allowed by Quincy pitching in four straight late season wins.

Quincy High School track star Michelle Civitarese outdid herself on two different occasions in the past couple of weeks. Two weeks ago, as was reported in last week's "Sports Spotlight," Civitarese set a school record in the 300-meter hurdles with a time of 50.6 seconds. The following weekend at the Old Colony League championships she broke her own record with a time of 50.2 seconds.

North Quincy's Jeremy Gott, perhaps the best runner in Quincy, was the city's only first place finisher at the OCLs, taking the top spot in the 800-meters with a time of 1:59.7.

Several local athletes and coaches have recently finished successful college seasons:

Rob Ricciarelli ended his senior year as captain of the UMass-Boston baseball team. The Beacons finished with a record of 6-16 and closed out the season with a 10-4 win over Eastern Nazarene College...Freshman first baseman/outfielder Rebecca Squires batted .289 for the UMass-Boston softball team...Beacon tennis player Chris Howley posted a 7-6 record at the Number Four singles position.

Sophomore Chris Peck batted a whopping .442 as a member of the Nichols College baseball team. He clubbed 14 extra base hits, including two home runs. He also scored 24 runs and knocked in 23.

UMass-Boston lacrosse coach Myles Berry led his team to a 10-6 record. In Berry's last three seasons the lacrosse team has posted an impressive 31-14 record.

Softball coach Christine Cucinatta led the Beacons to a 10-8 record, their best finish in four years. Cucinatta's club also set a school record with five straight wins this season.

Although the Quincy High hurlers have been spectacular of late, the best pitching staff in the city belongs to the Lions of the Quincy Junior League. Led by "K King" Andrew Currie (5-0, 49 Ks), "Fan Man" Dan O'Toole (2-1, 30 Ks) and Brian "I can't think of a nickname but am open to suggestions" Deplata (1-0, 15 Ks), the Lions are 8-1 and atop the American League. Lions pitchers are averaging over 10 strikeouts per game, per seven inning game.

The week's top stick belonged to Mighty Mike Gavin of Triple A's Flavin & Flavin squad. Led by Mighty Mike's two grand slams, let me repeat, two grand slams, Flavin was able to overcome a 17-3 deficit and beat USA Realty 22-21 in a Wild West slug fest.

The 36th annual Braintree Junior 4-Ball Tournament will be played at the Braintree Municipal Golf Course on June 27 and 28. The two-man team event is open to all junior golfers between the ages of 12 to 19. More information and/or applications are available at the Pro Shop or by calling 843-9781.

License Sought For Paintball Site

By LISA CONNELL

City License Board officials heard a request Tuesday for an entertainment license for a site for paintball, an updated version of "hide and seek" and the perennial favorite "tag."

Four Quincy youths are seeking an entertainment license and a playing field in Quincy to support the paintball equipment and air-powered guns they sell in their retail store, Apocalypse Paintball, located at 39 Broad Street, near Southern Artery.

The company, under the control of the recently formed Byzantium Corporation, is seeking a playing field in Quincy.

Gaining in popularity and play over the last several years, paintball involves two teams trying to capture the opposing team's flag while protecting their own. In the process of doing so, players also try to eliminate opposing players by tagging them with a paintball expelled from a special air-powered or carbon dioxide paintgun. Paintballs, similar to very large vitamins or bath oil beads, split open when they hit a person to release a non-toxic, non-caustic, water-soluble paint, according to Christs (Chris) Iorio, 19, company president and a pharmacy student at Northeastern University.

The three vice-presidents include: James Flaherty, 19, a student at UMass-Amherst studying political science, William Gusterson, 18, and Chris Roncarati, 19, interested in illustration and environmental engineering, respectively. Gusterson and Roncarati are both freshmen at Amherst College.

Flaherty was unable to attend Tuesday's hearing. Sites in Norwell and Norwood have been looked at, said Iorio.

Building Inspector and Licensing Board Vice-Chairman Matthias Mulvey said he would like to see them use a field where the land is used exclusively for paintball, so as to avoid any surprises to innocent pedestrians.

City Clerk and License Board Chairman Joseph Shea, impressed with the professional manner in which the plan was presented, said the request itself was the first of its kind before the present board.

The request has been continued for one week to allow Shea time to send the license petition and game rules and regulations on to City Solicitor Stephen McGrath.

"I don't necessarily have a negative thing [about this], I will have an opinion from the City Solicitor which will allow this board to rule," said Shea. "There are questions on liability."

According to Iorio, the corporation has an overall liability policy of one million dollars. Each player is covered with a $10,000 medical insurance policy with a $500 deductible. $1.35 is deducted from each player's playing fee to pay for the insurance.

For those that have their own equipment, the cost per game, based on several hours of play, is about $25 or approximately $45 if equipment is rented, said Iorio.

"If they are considering a site, it must be stipulated that they [the partners of Apocalypse] touch base with the respective city ward councillor to clear this, said Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers. "I know my area has large parcels of land in it."

Talk With Your Kids About Violence

It is very important to talk with your children about violence. The following are more ideas on what and how to talk to your children about concerning violence.

•Ask about your child's ideas on violence. Listen and encourage expression of worries, questions, and fears. Show that you respect the youngster's concerns and value a willingness to think about a tough issue.

•Take advantage of teachable moments. When a violent scene appears in the media, talk about what happened and how it might have been prevented. When something happens at school or in the community, talk about what choices—other than violence—might have been available.

•Find out about conflict management and mediation training for adults and children. Conflict management training provides skills in settling disputes peacefully. Mediation training teaches how to assist others to settle disputes peacefully.

•Help develop enjoyable, attractive activities in the community for all young people so that they will have better things to do, with an adult mentoring and supervising them.

•Help kids get involved in helping the community. If they see how they can play an important role in building the community, they'll resist violence that would tear it down.

The following are a few ideas on how youngsters can reduce their risks of being involved in violence.

•Play, walk, or skate with a friend rather than alone. Always let a responsible adult know where you are and who you are with.

•Never go anywhere with someone you or your folks don't know and trust.

•Don't hang around known trouble spots or with kids who think violence is cool.

•Don't use alcohol or other drugs; they attract violent types of people and encourage violence as part of their mind-altering properties.

•Learn how to be a conflict solver for your friends and schoolmates. Get training in mediation skills to help others work out problems without force.

•Don't carry a weapon. You lose whether you use it or it's against you.

CITY OF QUINCY IN COUNCIL

ORDER NO. 94-036

February 22, 1994

ORDERED:

Be it ordained by the City of Quincy that the Revised Ordinances of the City of Quincy, 1992, as Amended be further Amended by adding in Chapter Two a new section, Section 2.137 entitled Commission on the Family.

COMMISSION ON THE FAMILY SECTION 2.137.010: MISSION

In the past thirty (30) years, the American family has undergone major change. There has been an increase in the number of single parent families, blended families, divorced families, dual career families, teen parents and children not living with families.

Changed family patterns pose significant challenges to parents who are trying to raise children without blueprints or knowledge of how to cope. Many of the old and traditional extended family supports do not exist. The Commission on the Family thereby is established, to create a Quincy organization which will both genuinely seek to determine the real range of family needs and assemble the public and private resources necessary to meet the challenge.

SECTION 2.137.020: ESTABLISHED

There is hereby established in the City of Quincy a Commission on the Family, hereafter referred to as "THE COMMISSION."

SECTION 2.137.030: FUNCTIONS, DUTIES AND RULES

To prepare and complete a family needs assessment to determine the current and future needs of the family.

To identify, evaluate and recommend to the families of Quincy those resources available to meet needs.

To provide families with a directory of, and contact with, all those agencies, public and private, providing services to families.

To identify those areas of family need where resources are lacking, and work toward the creation or discovery of those resources at all levels of the public and private sector to meet those needs.

To work specifically with families to explain ways in which the public school system can be more effective in meeting the changing needs of families.

To work with city departments and the public school system to create those after school and evening programs that will provide wholesome and meaningful educational and recreational opportunities for youth.

To work closely with all service provider departments of the city, such as Quincy Hospital, to create new and innovative ways in which families can be assisted by those dynamic and growing institutions.

To provide families with a sense of family community that breaks down the sense of isolation that many parents and children feel as a result of the changing family structure.

To work with the police department, particularly the drug unit, to provide the department with a sense of how families feel about law enforcement, as it pertains to them and who it could become more effective and more sensitive to family needs.

To assist new families moving into the City of Quincy in becoming acquainted with the Commission on the Family and with all services provided to families in areas such as education, health, recreation and employment.

To create an atmosphere or climate in which people fully understand the full scope of community resources to keep the family strong.

To establish and maintain a channel for Quincy citizens of all ages to volunteer their efforts in ways to help children and families, including but not limited to such activities as mentoring and talent banks.

To create an annual calendar of events—family oriented, non-alcoholic events. Said calendar shall be distributed free of charge to Quincy residents. The Commission shall look into private sources of funding, but public sources shall not be excluded to publish said calendar.

SECTION 2.137.040: COMPOSITION

The Commission shall consist of seventeen (17) members, all of whom shall either live or work in Quincy.

SECTION 2.137.050: APPOINTMENT; TERMS; VACANCIES

Thirteen (13) appointments to The Commission shall be made by the Mayor for a term of three (3) years, with four (4) members being appointed on the first Monday of February. Vacancies, as well as initial appointments, shall be for the remainder of the unexpired term. So far as practical, members appointed shall be from the following fields: Public Education; Law Enforcement; City Planning; Job Training; Domestic Violence; Recreation; Clergy; Business; Media;

Social Services; Community Services; Health Care; and Mental Health. The Commission shall annually elect a Chair from among its members, and may elect other officers as it deems necessary. All members shall serve without compensation. The Commission shall constitute a quorum and a majority of those present shall be sufficient for any action taken by The Commission, except where this ordinance provides otherwise.

For the initial appointments to The Commission, the Mayor shall appoint members as follows:

FIVE MEMBERS FOR A TERM OF THREE (3) YEARS

FOUR MEMBERS FOR A TERM OF TWO (2) YEARS

FOUR MEMBERS FOR A TERM OF ONE (1) YEAR

Thereafter the Mayor shall appoint each successor to a term of three (3) years. No member of The Commission may serve for more than (2) consecutive terms. A member having served two (2) consecutive terms must remain off The Commission for at least one (1) year before becoming eligible for reappointment.

Four (4) appointments to The Commission shall be made by the Family Council in a member to be determined by the By-Laws of the Family Council.

SECTION 2.137.060: FAMILY COUNCIL

The Family Council shall be a source of information and serve to advise The Family Commission on the needs of the family resources necessary to meet those needs and any and all other matters inherent in the operation of The Family Commission.

There shall be established, by The Commission, a Family Council, hereafter referred to as "THE COUNCIL". The Council shall have at least fifteen (15) members, but not more than twenty-five (25). Members shall be chosen by The Commission upon the recommendation of the Chairperson of The Family Commission with any member of The Commission having the right to submit a name or names directly to The Commission for consideration. All members of The Family Council must reside in Quincy.

Appointment of members to The Family Council shall follow the following guidelines: Families which are blended, are affected by divorce, contain dual careers, have grandparents raising grandchildren, follow a traditional model and represent different areas of the City.

Members of The Council shall be appointed for three (3) year terms, with 1/3 of the members being appointed on the first of February of each year. Four (4) alternate members shall be appointed, who in the absence or the inability of any member of The Family Council to attend and participate in the affairs of The Commission, may be designated by the Chair of The Commission to act in the place of a regular council member.

For initial appointments to The Council, The Commission shall appoint members as follows:

1/3 OF THE MEMBERS FOR A TERM OF THREE (3) YEARS

1/3 OF THE MEMBERS FOR A TERM OF TWO (2) YEARS

1/3 OF THE MEMBERS FOR A TERM OF ONE (1) YEAR

Thereafter The Commission shall appoint each successor to a term of three (3) years. No member of The Council may serve for more than two (2) consecutive terms. A member having served two (2) consecutive terms must remain off The Council for at least one (1) year before becoming eligible for re-appointment.

The Council shall meet at least ten (10) times annually and shall provide minutes of its meetings to The Commission. A majority of the total number of council members appointed shall constitute a quorum, and a majority of the total number of council members appointed shall constitute a quorum, and a majority of those present shall be sufficient for any action taken by The Council, unless where this ordinance provides otherwise, or the rules of The Commission provide otherwise.

The Family Council shall elect from its membership a chairperson and all other officers it deems necessary as provided for in The Council By-Laws.

SECTION 2.137.070: ANNUAL REPORT

Maria Kalantzis Takes Oath As Educator

Maria Kalantzis of Quincy, a junior at Boston University, took the oath of an educator at a recent School of Education Junior Pinning Ceremony.

During the ceremony, Kalantzis recited an affirmation similar to the oaths taken by doctors and nurses upon entering their profession.

Kalantzis, a science education major, is a 1991 graduate of North Quincy High School. She is the daughter of Constantine and Effie Kalantzis of Willow Ave.

ordeal would end. He said those soldiers declared Missing in Action, especially those of Korean and Vietnam, "must never be forgotten.

"Our elected officials must push for a full accounting and accept nothing less than substantial facts. We must not accept bureaucratic excuses and dismissals.

"These were experiences, not war stories. As experiences they should be a lesson to all of us, so that our government can recognize at an early stage what is happening in other countries, and not support regimes, for economic or expedient reasons.

"Today, we are here to show remembrance, reverence, and, I hope, commitment to our departed comrades, family and friends."

Noble then recited a poem by C. Randall Carrier, "Freedom Isn't Free, written as a veterans tribute. In part, the poem reads:

"I had a thought that came to me; concerning freedom, it isn't free.

But yet, so often one thing we'll do is take it for granted, oh yes, it's true.

When in the balance it's finally weighed, you'll find a costly price was paid.

For many there are who gave their all; their wealth, and their lives, when duty called."

Memorial Day has honored the nation's war dead since the Civil War. Now, more than ever Noble told the 300 people gathered at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, it is paramount for "us here to impress on others the importance of this day.

"That one day each year be kept special so that those who have gone before be properly honored and remembered."

Noble underscored the lessons of history by reciting a poem written by Dr. Diane Willard, a third grade teacher at the Squantum School.

"Point to the fact that at every turn the present--which is what we all know grows out of what happened a long time ago, the future which is on its way, depends upon what we all do today."

"So we go on with our lives," Noble continued," but keep in mind that by our individual actions we can change things, make this a better community and a better America."

Two Draft Studies Conclude: No Negative Impact Seen From Wal-Mart

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The proposed Wal-Mart retail store development in Quincy Point would not have a negative impact on property values nor Quincy Center businesses and would generate over $4.6 million in property taxes in 10 years, according to two separate draft studies released Tuesday.

Both studies were expected to be discussed at three public hearings Wednesday beginning at 7 p.m. in the Council Chamber of City Hall. The authors of the two studies were scheduled to attend the hearings.

The two studies, contracted by Quincy 2000, the city's public-private revitalization corporation, examined the impact of the proposed development of a Wal-Mart retail store and a supermarket at the corner of Southern Artery and Quincy Ave. The 239,500-square foot development project, called Granite Crossing, would be built near the Falls Condominiums located off Quincy Ave. on Falls Boulevard.

The first study on the economic impact of the abutting retail development on the Falls Condominium near the proposed Wal-Mart site concludes that mitigation from the developer would be "likely sufficient to protect the existing complex and its owners from a loss in unit values relating directly to the construction and proximity of the proposed retail project."

The second study on the economic impact on Quincy Center businesses concluded Wal-Mart would not be detrimental to downtown retailers. Furthermore, the study said downtown retailers would reap additional revenue from spin-off business if Wal-Mart came to town.

The study on property values at the Falls Condominium was conducted by John E. Kline, CRE, senior vice president of Hunneman Appraisal and Consulting Company, Boston. The study on the impact on downtown business was done by Gary Mongeon of RKG Associates Inc., of Durham, N.H.

Officials from Quincy 2000 agreed with the results of the two studies.

"Our take is that this (Wal-Mart development) would not have a Public Hearing June 13 On School Improvements

A public hearing on planned renovations to two Quincy public schools will be held Monday, June 13 at 7:30 p.m. at the Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston.

School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymond said the committee's Building Needs Subcommittee is holding the hearing to allow community input on projects at the Parker Elementary School in North Quincy and the soon-to-be-reopened Beechwood Elementary School in Wollaston, currently the site of the Beechwood Center.

Mayor James Sheets has included improvements for those and other schools as part of a nearly $10 million bond issue he submitted to the City Council Monday night. Sheets said the improvements, which total more than half of the entire bond issue, include:

- $4.8 million for a new gymnasium and other renovations at the Parker School, as well as renovations including the addition of several classrooms at Beechwood.

- $300,000 for other public school improvements, including the completion of an auditorium at Quincy High School, changes at both Quincy

First Non-Union Hikes Since 1990 Sheets Seeks Raises For Mayor, Council 49 City Employees

By ROBERT BOSWORTH and MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets has proposed FY95 pay increases for himself, the City Council, 24 department heads and 25 other non-union city employees.

The raises, added to Quincy's FY95 municipal budget Monday night, would increase the mayor's salary from $55,587 to $62,500, a hike of 12.4 percent; councilors' salaries from $10,107 to $12,607 apiece or 24 percent and other non-union salaries by an average of 8.1 percent.

The FY95 budget approved by the City Council Monday night totalled $133,539,802 after the council made several cuts during recent budget sessions.

The pay raises, which have been sent to the council's Ordinance Committee, are expected to be voted on at the June 20 council meeting. The raises are the first pay hikes for non-union city employees since Jan. 1, 1990.

Sheets said the average figure was based on the fact that the city's union employees have averaged an approximately 8 percent raise over the last three years.

"We used that (8 percent figure) as kind of a benchmark," he said.

The pay raises, which also cover non-union department assistants, clerks and secretaries, range from a low of 2.2 percent for the planning director to a high of 14.2 percent for the plumbing/gas inspector.

The proposal also calls for the elimination of a $7,515 stipend for the purchasing director for his duties as parking clerk and in its place a 28.9 percent pay raise, as well as a 24 percent pay raise for the personnel director and the elimination of $5,000 and $500 stipends for her duties as health plan administrator and labor service director. With the stipends factored in, those directors would earn an additional 7.1 percent and 10.3 percent respectively if the ordinance is adopted.

The mayor said the reason for the differences in the raises is based on his view that different positions require different levels of responsibility. He added that he tried to break up the major salaries into "six or seven categories" corresponding to those levels so that in the future, all non-union employees will receive the same increase, in terms of percentage, in their pay raises.

If the FY95 raises are approved, five department heads, not including school administrators, would still earn more than the mayor in base salary. They are the police chief and fire chief at $69,500 each; and the city auditor, Public Works commissioner and director of Data Processing who would all earn $63,500.

Here is a list of the proposed pay raises for the city's non-union department employees:

- Police chief, from $67,506 to $69,500, 2.9 percent.
- Fire chief, $67,506 to $69,500, 2.9 percent.
- City auditor, $60,132 to $63,500, 5.6 percent.
- DPW commissioner, $58,770 to $63,500, 8 percent.
- Director, data processing, $60,713 to $63,500, 4.6 percent.
- Planning director, $53,788 to $55,000, 2.2 percent.
- City solicitor, $51,040 to $55,000, 7.7 percent.
- Traffic engineer, $50,939 to $54,500, 6.9 percent.
- Personnel director, $43,945 to $44,000, 24 percent.
- City clerk, $47,703 to $52,500, 10 percent.
- Treasurer/collector, $48,676 to $52,500, 7.8 percent.
- Library director, $48,920 to $52,500, 7.3 percent.
- Executive director, P/F/C, $49,805 to $52,500, 5.4 percent.
- Health commissioner, $48,967 to $52,500, 7.2 percent.
- Building inspector, $50,341 to $52,500, 4.1 percent.
- City engineer, $46,374 to $52,500, 13.2 percent.
- Recreation director, $43,937 to $47,500, 8.1 percent.

Foy Reappointed Auditor

The City Council unanimously reappointed Robert Foy as city auditor for another three-year term Monday night.

Foy has served four previous terms as auditor since 1982. Previously, he served as Quincy's treasurer-collector for 10 years after being appointed to the position by then-Mayor Walter Hannon in 1972.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio described Foy as "candid and honest" and someone who is always willing to help councillors when they are in need of guidance.

"We get a great education from him," said Fabrizio.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, Foy attended Central Junior High School and is a graduate of Quincy High School and Boston College, where he received a bachelor's degree in accounting. He currently lives in Wollaston.

18 Quincy Firefighters Graduate At Shipyard

Eighteen firefighters graduated from the Quincy Fire Department's new training center at the Fore River shipyard last Friday.

The 18 men are the first new firefighters to join the 216-member department since 1990. Mayor James Sheets pinned the badges on each man, lined up in identical navy blue pants, jackets and pants during the ceremony at the training center. A crowd of about 130 friends and relatives attended, as well as a number of fire officials including Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, Massachusetts Fire Marshal James Kauffman and Steven Coan, director of the Massachusetts Fire Academy.

The new recruits were officially hired at a swearing-in ceremony last April, but had to complete 38 days of training before they could earn their badges.

Led by Capt. Frank Sullivan, the training officer, the recruits put on breathing tanks and extinguished fires, hoisted ladders, tamed hoses, chopped through walls and tore open car roofs.

The process of joining the department began for the recruits on Jan. 20, 1990 when more than 11,000 people took the state firefighter exam. More than 1,000 of those tested answered all of the questions correctly, so Quincy held a lottery to choose the order in which candidates would be considered for a job.

However, the lottery eventually did not matter because city officials went through the entire list. Many were not eligible because they did not pass the background check or the medical, psychological or strength tests.

The 18 graduates are: James A. Bailey, Steven Baylis, Paul Campbell, Christopher Condon, Peter DiBona, Michael Flynn, John P. Gillan, John McCarthy, James McCluskey, Stephen Mitchell, Russell Nord, Paul O'Grady, Stephen H. Wells and Michael Worley, all of Quincy; Stephen Grazioso and Paul F. Sheets Submits $10M Bond Issue For City Improvements

Mayor James Sheets has submitted a bond issue totalling nearly $10 million for various city improvements to the City Council.

The City Council put the bond issue into committee Monday night. Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, chairman of the council's Finance Committee, said Tuesday the council will begin to discuss the matter at its July 20 meeting but will likely vote on it at a later date.

The mayor's proposed $9,980,000 bond issue can be broken down into the following areas:

•$2.9 million for improvements to city parks and playgrounds. Sheets said that figure was reached after a six-month survey done by Thomas Koch, his executive secretary. Sheets said Koch must meet individually with city councillors before specifics on those improvements can be publicly discussed.

•$4.8 million for the addition of a gymnasium and other renovations to the Parker Elementary School as well as renovations to the soon-to-be reopened Beechwood Knoll Elementary School.

•$300,000 for capital improvements to other public schools. The mayor said these would mainly consist of the completion of an auditorium for Quincy High School, mandatory renovations corresponding with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) at Quincy High and the Center for Technical Education, and the replacement of windows at the Broad Meadows Middle School.

•$200,000 for the completion of improvements to sea walls in Houghs Neck and Adams Shore.

•$600,000 for Wollaston

Center improvements, including construction on the area's streets, sidewalks, lighting, and more.

•$170,000 to help the Thomas Crane Public Library meet ADA requirements.

•$50,000 for improvements to the Parkingway and Ross Parking Garage, including fences, lighting, new sidewalks and other embellishment.

•$125,000 for a traffic study and environmental impact report (EIR) related to the proposed Quincy Center Concourse project. Sheets said this money might actually be reimbursed if the state funds the study and EIR.

•$40,000 for fire hydrants and $20,000 for water meters, both of which Sheets called "standards replacements."

"In particular, the fire hydrants are starting to break," he said. "And we can't have that."

Council Passes New Bomb Ordinance

A new ordinance was passed with emergency preamble by the City Council Monday night to protect Squantum residents from the detonation of bombs brought to a police gun range Moon Island by the City of Boston.

The ordinance, which was introduced by Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, essentially gives residents more protection against such activity by requiring anyone wishing to take explosive devices to the site to first receive permission from Fire Chief Thomas Gorman. Ayers said he, Gorman and the city solicitor's office worked jointly in creating the ordinance.

"We've put together this ordinance because of the bombs that have been going out there," said Ayers. "I personally feel it should not be happening."

"The people of Squantum are well-served by this ordinance," said City Council President Michael Cheney.

Mayor James Sheets called for the ordinance two weeks ago following a ruling by Norfolk Superior Court Judge Robert Mulligan that Boston may take bombs to the island for detonation purposes. Moon Island is owned by Boston by falls within Quincy city limits in Squantum.

Sheets and other city officials have suggested that Boston find another site to detonate the bombs. Boston officials, however, have said Moon Island is the safest place to do so.

The new ordinance, with the emergency preamble, technically goes into effect immediately after the council's approval Monday night and being signed by the mayor Tuesday. However, it still requires the approval of Massachusetts Fire Marshal James Kauffman.

Gorman said he expects Kauffman to approve the ordinance as soon as he receives it.

A City Council Reunion

It's the reunion season and there's a rare one in the works.

Plans are underway for a get-together of all living former city councillors along with the present council. That adds up to 35: 26 former councillors and nine present.

The reunion is being planned by former Mayor Frank McCauley, Dist. Atty. William Delahunt and former Dist. Atty. George Burke, all of whom served in the city council.

McCAULEY

DELAHUNT

BURKE

"We plan to hold it in September," says McCauley, who is sort of the historian and statistician for the event. He has come up with some interesting stats.

For example, the 35 former and present councillors represent a total of 262 1/2 years service in the council. That averages out to 7 1/2 years each.

Present member and former mayor Joseph LaRaia holds the longevity record of the 35 with 19 years council service. Now Mayor James Sheets is runner-up with 16 and former councillor John Lydon, third with 14.

The oldest of the 35 is Alfred Helfrich, who is 89 and the lone surviving Plan E city council member. He served from 1950 to 1955.

Christian Burkhard, who was Ward 4 councillor from 1938-1941 and at-large from 1943-47, died in Florida in April at age 91.

Burkhard's death leaves Thomas Gilmartin as the living councillor with the oldest service period. He was Ward 6 councillor from 1946 to 1949. Gilmartin is now in his 80s.

Five of the 35 went onto become mayor: Walter Hannon, LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, McCauley and Sheets.

Other high offices were attained:

Before moving on to the district attorney's office, Burke and Delahunt both served as state representatives as did Hannon, Tobin and Sheets.

Tobin was also elected state senator and is now clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court. Two other state senators came out of the 35—James McCormack and Paul Harold.

Clifford Marshall went on from the council to be elected state representative and now wears the badge of Norfolk County Sheriff.

Warren Powers is now an associate justice of Quincy District Court.

Daniel Raymondi, like McCauley, went from the school committee to the city council. Raymondi was elected Norfolk County treasurer and is now vice chairman of the Quincy school committee.

George McDonald went on to become a county commissioner.

Dr. George Gales Jr. Wins Physicians Award

Dr. George F. Gales Jr. of Quincy recently received the Physician's Recognition Award of the American Medical Association.

The award is given in acknowledgement of participation in continuing medical education over a three-year period.

Dr. Gales practices internal medicine in Quincy, has served as chief of medicine at Quincy Hospital, and is currently serving as vice president of the Quincy Hospital Medical Staff.

Of the 35, 11 became council presidents: Burke, LaRaia, Tobin, Lydon, Sheets, Steve McGrath, Leo Kelly, Ted DeCristofaro, Patricia Toland, Charles Phelan and present president, Michael Cheney. McGrath is now city solicitor and Toland, assistant city clerk.

The other former councillors among the 35 are: Albert Barilaro, Joanne Condon, Edward Graham, Dennis Harrington, Richard Koch, Jr., John Koegler, Thelophilus (Ted) McClelland and Thomas Nutley.

Present councillors, of course, in addition to Cheney, DeCristofaro, LaRaia and Phelan, are Bruce Ayers, Tim Cahill, Lawrence Chretien, Tom Fabrizio and Peter Kolson.

"We hope we haven't overlooked anyone," says McCauley. If they have, McCauley can be reached at 479-6230.

If all goes well, the reunion might become an annual event.

CALL HIM LUCKY: Mayor James Sheets was one of the big winners at the annual Quincy Jewish War Veterans Tombola drawing.

Sheets won a whole year of Megabucks tickets. His ticket was drawn by Jessie Minkofsky, wife of Tombola Chairman David Minkofsky.

Tombola proceeds go to the JWV Post's hospital work, scholarships and community projects.

Maybe His Honor will hit the big one with one of those Megabucks tickets. Just think of all the grass seed, shrubs and trees he could buy for his Cleaner Quincy program. And more of those street lamps. Or maybe float a loan to the city if times get tough.

All kinds of possibilities. Hit it, Jim.

TOLAND

NICE TO SEE Assistant City Clerk Pat Toland back on the job after a several weeks hospital stay and home recuperating period. She makes City Hall a lot brighter with her presence.

PERSONAL TO TED: Don't forget your promise.

BILL MAC MULLEN, executive director of the Quincy Shipbuilding Museum, really looked the part of a Union soldier at the recent impressive funeral services and honor ceremonies for the Unknown Civil War veteran.

MacMullen has Civil War authenticity in the family to draw on. An ancestor, Francis Melcher, was a major in the Pennsylvania 168th Infantry who was taken prisoner by the Confederates at Cold Harbor, Va. in 1863. He died in Libby Prison in Richmond, Va.

Laura Janowitch Wins Science Award

Laura Janowitch of Quincy recently won the fifth grade's Best Use of Scientific Method Award at the annual Science Fair at the Brimmer and May School in Chestnut Hill.

Laura, the daughter of Dr. Lawrence Janowitch and Nancy Hannah, won for her project entitled,

"Weight Placement and Car Speed."

Students in Grades 4 - 8 participate in the Science Fair, designing and completing an independent science project for display. Prizes are awarded in each grade for Best Presentation and Best Use of Scientific Method.

BATTLING THE PAIN OF CANCER

Until recently, the choice that eventually faces many cancer patients seemed impossible: take narcotic painkillers that ease discomfort but tend to make one groggy or remain alert and cope with intense pain.

Today, however, there is another option in the form of the FDA-approved drug Metaston. With a single injection, this solution of radioactive strontium-89 can greatly reduce or eliminate bone pain for as long as six months. The drug works by gravitating toward the outer layers of bone and irradiating cancer cells that have spread there from such initial onset sites as the breast or prostate. Metaston is being hailed as a promising tool to back up the front-line therapies of radiation and chemotherapy.

The FDA approval of Metaston is good news for many cancer sufferers and their loved ones. If you'd like more information on this or any other column topic, feel free to call the doctors—myself or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We place strong emphasis on caring for the patient, rather than simply treating the disease. Office hours are by appointment. We have ample parking at our office, located at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A postcard view of Quincy Square featuring the Art Deco style Granite Trust Company bank building. Rogers Jewelry store is the only business in this scene that is still operating today with the same location. In 1929 Howard Johnson opened his first full fledged restaurant in the bank building and it was open there for over 30 years until it was relocated to the Southeast Expressway in West Quincy. The Art Theater and the buildings beyond it on the right were on the site of today's Quincy Center Plaza. Notice the familiar design of the old street lights.

Adams Academy Recommended For New City Hall

The Veterans Memorial Committee, ignoring the recommendations of the Planning Board, selected the Adams Academy grounds at Hancock and Adams Sts., as the best available site for a proposed new City Hall.

The Committee, headed by Rep. William W. Jenness, also suggested that adjoining land north of the site, valued at $45,000, be taken all the way to the edge of the South Shore Buick property.

The Planning Board had already held public hearings on proposals to locate the new City Hall in the so-called "Apex" at Hancock and Washington Sts., site of the Bargain Center, and the Hardwick estate.

Jenness noted that those sites could cost Quincy taxpayers as much as $325,000 in land damages, or $2.50 on the tax rate, a sum that would be unfair to newly returned veteran homeowners.

QUINCY BAY CLEANUP

Mayor Charles A. Ross, testifying before the House Committee on Ways and Means, argued that construction of a sewage treatment plant at Nut Island "will clean up the terrible mess on the shores of Quincy Bay."

The Committee was hearing an $18 million bill directed at cleaning up pollution in Boston Harbor an adjacent waters.

Howard E. Porter of the Health Department condemned "the wholesale dumping of raw sewage into this beautiful recreation area."

"On hot days," he said, "we get hundreds of calls and our answer is the same: 'Don't go in if the water is dirty. If it looks clean and you go in, take a shower immediately when you get home.'"

Memorial Re-dedication At Montclair School A Day To Remember

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On behalf of my brother and the 17 other boys from Montclair whose names are engraved on the bronze plaque in the center of the war memorial on the grounds of the Montclair School, I thank the Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association for the re-dedication of the memorial.

The re-dedication now shares the memorial with all of those from Montclair who fought in all wars as noted on the right hand granite facade with the re-dedication date of May 12, 1994. The left hand granite facade features the original dedication honoring all those from Montclair who served in World War II. The original dedication was on Sept. 8, 1946.

I know that many hours were devoted to this cause by a number of people, spearheaded by Janet Crowley, Mattie Panarelli, Peter Capolla, M.C. Pat McDermott and Quincy Director of Veterans Services Henry Bradley. I also noticed the handiwork of Ray Cattaneo and the Quincy Park Department and I am sure there are others that were involved but unbeknown to me. I thank them one and all.

The attendance by the mayor, other elected officials and the resolve by the Massachusetts House of Representatives, presented by Rep. Bellotti, were all very much appreciated.

The children and faculty of the Montclair School added a tremendous touch of class to the ceremony. It was a very emotional morning for me as well as having a proud feeling for my first alma mater. It seemed that the entire student body poured out of the school and sat on the lawn, each holding a flag. And best of all, you couldn't have asked for them to be better behaved.

The Montclair School Bond was great as they played various renditions between speeches and readings by essay winners, as was the School Chorus and the Fifth Grade Choral Reading.

It was a day to remember and to thank God for the privilege of living in a community like Montclair.

Feels City Discriminates Against Military

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am a member of the United States Coast Guard and have been living in Quincy since I reported to the Marine Safety Office in Boston in July.

I am 28 years old. In addition to serving as a member of the Armed Services of the United States, I vote, pay taxes, serve as a juror and generally do everything a normal upstanding citizen of the United States is expected to do.

I have found, however, that in Quincy I am not afforded the same constitutional rights as the rest of the residents. I am referring to the arcane city law that states without a Massachusetts state driver's license, I am not allowed to buy alcohol in the city of Quincy.

As I'm sure you are aware, active members of the United States military are not required to carry a motor vehicle license in every state they are transferred to. To expect us to do so is ridiculous. In other places that I have been stationed, a military ID is accepted, if not downright respected.

Yet every bar, club or liquor store in the city of Quincy that I have attempted to purchase alcohol at has told me that my military ID is not worth the paper it is written on. This despite the fact that I always back it up with my New York State Drivers License.

I find it ironic that this discrimination against military members occurs in a city as rich in military history as Quincy. Perhaps it is time to add a clause into your city statutes that allows law-abiding citizens of legal drinking age who choose to serve their country the right to enjoy a beer within the city limits.

Lauralee Summer Deserves A Lot Of Credit QHS Graduate Harvard Bound Despite Bumpy Road

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Lauralee Summer has certainly come a long way in the past four years, from living in a hotel in Hull with her mother to attending Harvard in the fall, following her graduation from Quincy High School Monday night.

Summer recalls numerous nights in the hotel when shots were fired and sirens seemed to ring constantly through the night, and how she knew full well she would not get a lot of rest.

That, however did not deter the ambitious Summer from achieving a 1460 on her SAT's and the 15th rank in a class of 292 students.

In addition to her high academic accomplishments, Summer finds the time to wrestle for the Quincy High women's wrestling team and play the violin in the school orchestra and the flute in the marching band.

Summer, who grew up in various homeless shelters with her mother, Elizabeth Summer, on the East and West coasts, credits her mother with helping her remain strong amid the consternation surrounding her fatherless childhood.

"My mother always told me I could do anything, that it was up to me," Summer said. "She taught me that learning is important, she would take me on walks and point out things in nature."

She also finds the time to tutor elementary school children and volunteer for Amnesty International. Last summer, she was in Florida helping victims of Hurricane Andrew, building houses with a church group she joined.

Lauralee, a Christian who adorns herself with a nose ring and dyes her hair blue and purple, says she owes a lot to her faith in God to help her get through the tough times she endured growing up.

Summer and her mother have spent the majority of Summer's life in shelters for the homeless and welfare hotels in three states before moving to Hull.

While living in Hull, Elizabeth and Lauralee attended the Church of the Nazarene in Hingham, where they met Marion Stout, who in August 1990 invited the Summers to live with her and share rent in Wollaston.

This was the first time in a long while that Lauralee felt her life had gained some stability. Her academic performance at Quincy High was tremendous, as she participated in the school's Heritage Program, an alternative program for those student with disciplinary problems or unusual backgrounds.

"It's very rewarding to see Harvard pick up someone like Lauralee," Charlie McLaughlin, director of the Heritage Program, said. "She's just a different character. A very gentle, sincere personality. She's very humble and doesn't view herself as being as spectacular as I do."

Her high school career was not perfect, though She did run into some difficulty her sophomore year, which she said followed a stressful freshman year when she "tried to be perfect, to do everything right."

When she came home with C's and D's that year, Summer was thinking of not even bothering to apply to Harvard, until professors from her Harvard Extension School classes encouraged her to give it a shot.

"They wrote the most wonderful recommendations," she said. "They said I had to apply."

In her essay in the application to Harvard, which granted her almost a full four-year scholarship, she wrote:

"I learned that wealth is not what I have; rather it is who I am. Being poor, being homeless, having my startled eyes opened to blinding lights and long rows of metal cots from which so many strangers were arising, these were not disadvantages, but blessings, because they taught me more about myself."

After plans to visit her sister and half-brothers in Oregon this summer, she will get ready for yet another challenge in the fall at Harvard.

"A whole new part of my life is beginning," Summer said.

Scarborough Flute Trio Concert At Historical Society

The Quincy Historical Society, as part of its "Music at the Academy" series, will present the Scarborough Flute Trio in concert at Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center, Sunday, at 2 p.m.

The program will feature music by Tchaikovsky, Pachelbel, other composers and also provide a look at the history of the flute and its music in the past 300 years. A special feature will be the performance of music from the notebook of John Quincy Adams, an avid flutist as a young man, and from the notebook of Nathaniel Wales, a local 18th-century flutist. That notebook is now part of the Historical Society's collection.

The Scarborough Flute Trio consists of Virginia Sindelar, Nancy Drinkwine and Sarah Smojenski, all three of whom are highly accomplished ensemble and solo performers. The program offers concertgoers a chance to hear an excellent example of one of the more uncommon types of chamber groups in an intimate auditorium with excellent acoustics.

Admission is $2, to help defray the expense of the concert. The program is also supported in part by the Quincy Arts Council. For information, call 773-1144.

Quincy School Social Health Coordinator John (Butch) Mahoney: His Job Is Keeping The Public Schools Safe

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Q. What are your main duties as social health coordinator for the school system?

A. Well, basically it's making the schools safe for the kids, which means that you have to do drug investigations. You have to make sure that they attend school, that the school is a safe environment for both the kids and the staff, you're a court liaison and a police liaison. So anything that has to do with the courts, family problems, or police problems go through my office.

Q. How did you go from playing for the Boston Patriots into your present line of work?

A. Well, in the early days of the Patriots we used to practice in the afternoon over in East Boston, and I had my days free, so I started substitute teaching in Roxbury. I taught English to a class of 55 from about late October (1961) to June (1962), and I kind of liked it. So in the spring of 1962, when the Patriots decided not to have me back, I started looking around the South Shore, and I went to Scituate and Cohasset and a few other places. And I was hired in Scituate as a teacher of five different subjects: ancient history, world history, U.S. history, sociology and general business. And I found out that all the kids in all these classes were the same kids; they were the "trouble kids." And I was also the assistant football, head wrestling, and head track coach. And I ended up staying there 10 years.

Q. And how did you make the switch from teaching to the type of work you're doing now?

A. By 1967 and '68 the Vietnam crisis and the drug issues started surfacing in the smaller communities, and it really baffled me when one of my students, one of my football players, overdosed and died. And I became more interested in these kinds of problems, and so by the time I started to investigate reasons why kids turn into drug societies, I decided to change my career in 1972.

Q. How big is the drug problem in the Quincy Public Schools?

A. Well, I don't think the problem is anywhere near what it was 20 years ago, because we have a staff of administrators and teachers, and we have the support of the superintendent and his office, the mayor's office, and certainly the support of the Quincy Police Department because they are very much involved with the DARE Program, with the Crime Prevention Program, with the Public Safety Program, and with the PAL (Police Athletic League) Program. It's just an incredible network, a collaborative approach to deal with the issues.

So the kids know that we're not going to tolerate any drugs in the schools. That does not mean that we don't catch kids from time to time. But we do have undercover operations; we've done six since I've been here, and the mayor has been very supportive as well as the district attorney and the sheriff of Norfolk County. So that collaborative approach sends a message to everybody that we're not going to tolerate it. Does that mean there's no drugs in Quincy? No, there are, but we try to keep them out of the schools.

Q. I assume the problem is worse with the older kids, but how young do they start?

A. I would be remiss if I said kids at the age of 8 or 9 or 10 didn't experiment, but it's a very, very limited experience for kids that young. Most of the kids are of middle school or high school age, and I think that the numbers have been reduced drastically in terms of percentages. The message is getting out there that drugs are bad. But that does not mean the kids aren't still doing drugs. It simply means we have a better chance of kids doing more positive things, more constructive things. Things that would help their image, their lifestyle. Certainly the biggest influence on kids is their peers, and if you hang with kids who do drugs, chances are good that you'll do drugs. So we try to get kids to hang with kids who don't do drugs.

Q. Peer pressure is undoubtedly part of the problem, but why do you think kids start doing drugs in the first place?

A. Well, I'll go back to that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." And I really believe that programs in music and arts, and the athletic areas, and when you keep kids busy after school and keep those ballparks going, the recreation programs, and if you spend time with your kids and are good parents, I think those are the keys to helping kids develop

JOHN 'BUTCH' MAHONEY in his office at Quincy High School. Mahoney has served 22 years as social health coordinator for the Quincy Public Schools, helping students through drug-related and other problems.

FULL NAME: John William Mahoney

AGE: 58

ADDRESS: lifelong resident of Wollaston

OCCUPATION: a licensed independent certified social worker (LICSW), he has served as social health coordinator for the Quincy Public Schools for 22 years. Previously held various educational positions in Scituate and Boston; overall, has worked in education for 33 years

EDUCATION: graduate of North Quincy High School, 1954; served in the U.S. Army and Marines during the Korean War before receiving a bachelor's degree in political science as a pre-law major at American International College in Springfield, 1961; received master's degree in education from Boston State College, 1967; received certificate of advanced graduate studies (CAGS) from Yale University, 1971

MISC.: before pursuing a full-time career in education, played cornerback for the Boston (now New England) Patriots during the 1961 season

FAMILY: married to the former Ruth LeBaron. They have two children: Daniel, 35, of Squantum and Susan Storer, 31, of Montclair confidence in themselves so they can stand alone and say "no" when the opportunities present themselves.

Q. How exactly do you interact with these kids?

A. Well, I like kids, basically, and I think my role is difficult because I wear three hats: sometimes I'm the social worker and sometimes I'm the arresting officer, so I'm into education, treatment rehabilitation, and law enforcement/detection. And depending on the situation, depending on the kid—where he's coming from, his home environment, the seriousness of the offense—I take each case on an independent basis. And I don't think the criminal justice system is going to change kids' behavior. I don't think locking kids up is necessarily the answer. On the other hand, some kids ought to be locked up, and some kids ought to be told early on that "this is wrong and it's not going to be accepted, and you're going to be punished." So it's a question of risk-reward ratio: if there's very little risk, and a lot of reward, kids are going to do it. If there's a high risk, which means they're going to be punished, they may think twice before they do it. It's an individual decision.

So I think we have to restructure the laws in terms of, if the law says you're going to get time (in jail), then get time.

Don't get probation, get time immediately for the first offense. Then they'll think about it the second time, and they won't be doing it.

Q. So you think there's certain individuals where the only solution is to just lock them up for awhile, and then maybe they'll learn?

A. Yeah, I asked a psychiatrist down at Yale many years ago what he meant by rehabilitation, and he thought I was kidding him. And finally I said, "no, I really want to know what you mean by rehabilitation." He said, "to rehabilitate, to go back to." My response to him was, "What if you were never there? What if you never had the training? What if you never had the love and the guidance and the direction? How can you go back to what you never had?"

So some of these kids never had it, and the only way they're going to get it is if you lock them up, and somehow or other show them that you care enough to spend some time with them. And I'm talking early on, I'm talking 12 or 13 years old. By the time they're 16 and 17, it's too late.

Q. Is there a weapons problem in the Quincy schools? I seem to recall a gun being found in a locker at Quincy High School about a year and a half ago.

A. Well, we have five security people right now, and their job, along with the administrators and deans and assistant principals is to make sure there are no weapons in the school, and of course that's my role. And we do from time to time pick up knives from kids. Drugs are only symptomatic of other problems, and when you get involved in that kind of lifestyle, sometimes you need weapons to defend yourself.

However, we have never had one gun in any Quincy public school. We've had knives and other types of weapons, but never a gun.

Q. What about the incident at Quincy High?

A. That was a misunderstanding; we got information in the school that somebody had a gun, but actually the gun was outside City Hall. It was a Quincy High School student, but the gun was never in the school.

Now, another problem that comes out of drugs and gangs and weapons is unwanted pregnancies, and the sexual behavior of kids is questionable. I'm concerned because it's a big picture; kids are doing drugs, and hanging with gangs and carrying weapons and so forth, and they're not doing constructive things. That takes away from them being worthwhile citizens when they're 17, 18, 19 years old.

Q. On the lighter side, I understand you're on the Quincy Korean War Memorial Committee that plans to establish a memorial for veterans of that war in the city.

A. Yes, and it's a long time coming. I'm a veteran of the war and I consider myself very lucky; the 54,247 guys that died were not as lucky. We had over 103,000 wounded; we had over 38 killed from Quincy alone and I felt that it's a long time overdue, that these people were not recognized for what they did. So I pulled together a group of people onto a committee, and we're working very hard; June 25 is going to be the groundbreaking ceremony in front of Veterans Memorial Stadium, and on June 25, 1995—June 25 was the opening of the war—the monument will be presented to the city.

We're all working very hard to raise the $60,000 necessary to put the memorial up.

Q. You're known to many people as "Butch." How did you get that nickname?

A. I was born 12 pounds, and I was the youngest, at that time, of four kids. We were a large family, and very competitive; my father was a boxer, and he brought me up as a fighter. So I started out as a boxer, and he kind of looked at me as being the tough guy.

Q. Do you think this competitiveness, this fighting spirit, has helped you in your work?

A. There's no question about it. But I think more important than being tough, is being caring and anticipating what kids are all about. I've been there before; I grew up as a poor kid, and so I know what it's like to go without. I also know what it's like to get the accolades and the trophies and so forth.

So what I'd like to see is the same thing I'd like to see for my six grandchildren: that they find some niche in life and go for it.

Auto Repair Shop License Approved With Stipulations

By LISA CONNELL
License Board officials approved an automobile repair shop license for Japanese Motor Specialists, 97 Liberty St., following a three-week continuance by the Board to allow all residential and commercial abutters a chance to voice their opinion. The license was approved unanimously but with stipulations regarding operating hours, off-street parking and area landscaping.

Proprietor Tjo Tjin "Dino" Liang, who currently works at Willard St. Autobody, will run an appointment-only repair shop for luxury, high-end motor vehicles.

Liang, who lives in Quincy with his wife and son, was also granted a Motor 2 license and a permit to store up to 150 gallons of gasoline in the tanks of vehicles at the site.

Ronald Eckert Jr., counsel for commercial abutter John Balzano, owner of D & D Deli, 101 Liberty St., said the license would not be compatible with selling food. According to Eckert, ventilators on the outside of Balzano's building may collect the fumes from Liang's operation and circulate them within the immediate area.

Eckert said stipulations posed earlier by Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, following a neighborhood meeting, "will lessen the impact but even a limited garage will affect the selling of food..."

According to a letter by Fabrizio to the board, these stipulations involve off-street parking and landscaping.

Residents in the area are concerned about traffic congestion and the pollution from fumes that such congestion may cause. Some abutters fear the physical beauty of the neighborhood may be compromised.

Counsel for Liang, Quincy Atty. Robert Tombari Jr., said, "The traffic is horrendous down there--how do you discriminate which fumes are coming from which cars or whether its from the cars in the shop or from the cars going by?"

"The whole area has gone through some changes. I've lived in Quincy all my life... The problem in Quincy is that every one lives near everyone else," said City Clerk and Licensing Board Chairman Joseph Shea.

Edward Lappen, owner of Lappen Auto Supply Co., 94 Liberty St., referring to the mixture of residential and commercial properties in the area, did not contest the license but expressed a concern that the building always be maintained properly.

At earlier meetings, Balzano and other residents said they did not want to experience the same problems that they had with former tenants. These problems, Shea said, stemmed from a tenant outgrowing their space.

Following a brief discussion, the board voted unanimously to approve the license but mandated that business hours be Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., that no business be conducted on Sunday and that the area be maintained and landscaped. Work will be allowed on vehicles beyond 6:30 p.m. if needed

The ordinance also calls for a $7,500 salary for an administrative assistant to the police chief--formerly a union position--and $2,000 for a stipend for the assessors chairman.

Sheets had originally proposed an FY95 city budget of $113,652,802, but the City Council cut $113,000 from that figure for the final total. Items cut included $50,000 from unemployment compensation, $50,000 from worker's compensation, $12,000 from the city's Furnace Brook Golf Course account and $1,000 from the assessors office.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, chairman of the City Council Finance Committee, said he was pleased with the cuts.

"We have a balanced budget, and we were able to make the cuts without affecting services," he said.

The City Council also passed the city's FY95 Community Development Block Grant budget of $2.5 million Monday night. Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, while discussing that budget, said he wanted it publicly known that his ward does not always benefit from the CDBG budget as much as people might think.

Chretien said in FY94, his ward only received $11,000 in CDBG funds outside of $400,000 for improvements to Quincy Center. While he said the improvement project is a "great project," he added that he feels his ward has been shortchanged in other areas.

By LISA CONNELL
License Board officials voted Tuesday to continue a request by proprietor Anna Kwong, for a common victualer license in order to review, with Kwong, on-site, the physical changes the proposed building must undergo as it is converted from a bakery to a take-out restaurant.

Kwong is hoping to receive a license for a Happy Express Take-Out, a proposed Chinese restaurant at 150-154 Granite St., located within the Star Market shopping complex and near a fruit store.

Kwong's attorney, Lawrence Moss, accused the License Board of stonewalling the application, claiming the board was practicing a selective enforcement of ethnic restaurants in the city of Quincy.

"I believe you're selectively enforcing the laws in Quincy and that there is a prejudice against Chinese restaurants in the city," said Moss.

To date, there are 12 Chinese restaurants in Quincy.

Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue said that the prospective site "was a former bakery that did not need the same type of equipment and operational set-up that is required, by state code, of a take-out restaurant. Gallahue explained to Moss and Kwong that since a transfer of license ownership was involved in this case, potential new license holders must make changes necessary to the site.

Moss accused the board of slowing down the license approval procedure by listing interior and exterior site changes that must be made.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman told Moss that the board was just stating what improvements an earlier inspection of the site found. Shortly after the board first heard Kwong's proposal on May 24, Shea, Building Inspector and Board Vice-Chairman Matthias Mulvey and Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence Chretien inspected the site, according to Shea.

"We're just stating what things were found on an earlier inspection, said Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Karen Cashman Grand Marshal Parade, Fireworks To Celebrate Flag Day June 14

Quincy's annual Flag Day Parade will be held Tuesday, June 14 at 7 p.m., followed by a World War II Victory Flag raising ceremony and fireworks display at Adams Field.

The Quincy Flag Day Parade, which honors U.S. veterans, the U.S. flag and youth groups, begins at 7 p.m. at the intersection of Washington and Codding St., proceeds north to and on Hancock St. The parade route passes Veterans Memorial Stadium and ends at Adams Field at the intersection of Hancock St. and Southern Artery.

The parade's grand marshal is Quincy's own 1994 Olympic Bronze Medal winner, Karen Cashman. Cashman won the bronze medal in the women's short track speedskating. She was a member of the U.S. 3,000 meter relay team in Lillehammer, Norway.

"We are thrilled that Karen Cashman will participate in this year's parade," said Parade Day Committee Co-Chairman

KAREN CASHMAN
Edward Keohane. "She is an outstanding person as well as an athlete and the people of Quincy are very proud of her accomplishments."

Following the parade at Adams Field, the World War II Victory Flag will be raised. The flag measures 45 feet by 90 feet and weighs approximately 300 pounds. The flag will be travelling directly to Quincy from France following ceremonies marking the 50th anniversary of the D-Day invasion.

The evening will conclude with a fireworks display, orchestrated by Rockingham Fireworks Display Company of Seabrook, N.H. More than 1,000 shells will be projected skyward for 20 minutes, starting at approximately 9 p.m.

The Flag Day Parade is sponsored by the City of Quincy, the Quincy Partnership and the Koch Club.

"This board is fair; It has nothing to do with whether it's a Chinese or an Irish or an Italian restaurant," said Gorman.

Moss said he believed the license was subject to Chretien's approval and not to a list of physical change requirements. "It is my position," said Moss,
"that if I come back three and four times I don't want the list expanding."

"All we want to do is help. We don't want to see someone get burned," said Gorman.

Gorman explained to Moss that the list of changes are typical requirements, on a case by case basis, presented to prospective business owners so that they know what is city code regulations must be followed.

A major point to be resolved, according to Gallahue and City Clerk and Licensing Board Chairman Joseph Shea involves a dumpster at the site which rests against the rear door. Shea said in case of a fire or other emergency, rear-door exiting may not be possible and would pose a safety hazard.

Further changes, said Gallahue, include installation of a three-compartment sink, a garbage disposal, a sprinkler system, fire alarms and a restroom.

"They know this will be done; they know this will be an investment. They're not going to make these investments unless they know there's going to be a cv [common victualer]

granted.

At this point, Gallahue suggested the entire board meet with Kwong so everyone could inspect the premises.

According to Shea, the License Board, which Shea has served on for the past year and a half, often continues license requests in order to review all the pertinent facts and details.

"The board in the past has been accused of moving too fast," he said.

The board voted to conduct an on-site inspection of the premises Wednesday, June 15, at 10 a.m. with an alternative date of Thursday, June 16 at 2 p.m.

739 Receive Degrees At Commencement Quincy College Graduates Hear Importance Of Education In Workplace

By WAYNE FITZPATRICK
John T. Dunlop, professor emeritus at Harvard University, emphasized the importance of education in a changing work force to this year's graduates of Quincy College during the college's 35th commencement Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Referring to the work he has done on the changing nature of the American workplace, Dunlop described the future of the work force to the 739 graduates as one of diversification, a trait he noticed in the graduates.

"I am happy to note that 68 percent of you (graduates) are women," Dunlop said to resounding applause from the audience and graduates.

"I am also anxious to point out to you and to employers in this community that it is projected that in the next 15 years, only two thirds of those who will be employed are women or racial minorities, while one third of our labor force will be comprised of white males," said Dunlop, former U.S. Secretary of Labor under President Ford.

Reciting figures from his new research on labor employment and education, Dunlop told the graduates they had improved their employment opportunities.

"The unemployment rate, we know, varies inversely with levels of education. In 1992, the unemployment rate for those who had less than a high school education was 11.4 percent, for those with a high school education it was 6.8 percent, for those with a college degree it was only three and a half percent," Dunlop noted.

He also stressed the rewards of earning a college degree in modern America.

"I also want to say a word in this set of facts about the gap in earnings between those who were higher paid and more educated, skilled workers on the one hand and those who were lower paying, less educated and less skilled in the United States," Dunlop said.

"In recent years, those with less than a high school education earning, on the average, made $20,000 a year, those with four years of high school earn $27,000 a year and those with one to three years of college earn about $33,000 a year and those with four years or more earn $44,000."

Dunlop ended his address by recalling the immortal words of Yogi Berra, Hall of Fame catcher for the New York Yankees. "If we do not change our direction we will end up where we are headed."

He also received a plaque by Dr. Patricia Ryan, dean of Academic Affairs.

Dunlop was introduced by Sen. Michael Morrissey whom he called an "outstanding leader in the American labor movement in this century."

The commencement was marked by other presentations.

A veteran of World War II, Sullivan was an integral reason for the growth of Local 254 over the past 35 years.

college.

"The SGA is pleased to support this expansion," Andino said.

The ceremony began with the singing of "America the Beautiful" led by Professor Robert J. Waywood.

Eugene Creedon, secretary of the Quincy School Committee and superintendent of Quincy Public Schools, urged the graduates to look beyond their graduation and to continue their educational process.

"This step being taken this afternoon is but a continuation of some of the already significant steps that you have taken in your lives that will lead you to continue to experience the joy and satisfaction of achieving your own personal goals," Creedon said.

In his first college commencement as interim president, Dr. Donald Young focused on the changes which Quincy College has undergone since he became interim president.

"To say that 1994 was a year of changes goes to the heart of the matter."

"This year brought in a surprising fashion new leadership to Quincy College, new roles for people, new challenges, new experiences, new opportunities, new plans for next year, new college calendar," Young said.

Dr. Ryan remembered the 30th anniversary of professor Dr. Edward Kelly's graduation from the college.

"Dr. Kelly should serve as an inspiration to you. He is a graduate of Quincy College, went on to Boston University with a doctorate, so it can be done with time."

Kathleen Dewey, president of Phi Theta Kappa, described Quincy College as a diverse community.

"Today's celebration of graduation exemplifies the community's diversity quite well. Our student body is diversified."

"Quincy College is truly international," she added.

QUINCY FIREBALLER SHAUN KIVLIN lets go with a pitch in his win over Braintree. Kivlin gave up four early runs before retiring 18 straight batters. He was replaced by Tom Malvesti in the eighth inning.

QUINCY SENIOR TOM MALVESTI chugs around third for a run in the sixth inning. His run tied the game at 4-4, after the Presidents had been down 4-0.

PAT DONOVAN SLIDES into home for Quincy's second run of the game in the fifth inning. The senior first baseman singled and hit a sacrifice RBI while recording 14 putouts in the field, including the first and final outs of the game.

Quincy Battles Back, Beats Braintree 10-4 tournament game.

By KERRY BYRNE

The Quincy High School baseball team overcame a case of early jitters to put away the Braintree Wamps, 10-4, at Adams Field in the first round of Division I South tournament play.

It looked like the Presidents were in for a long day when Braintree took a 4-0 lead with two runs in each of the first two innings. Quincy pitching and fielding (three errors in the first two innings) were both shaky in the early moments of the game, while Presidents batters went down 1-2-3 in their first two rounds at the plate.

But the Quincy defense, which had been near-flawless in the last week of the season, rallied around junior pitcher Shaun Kivlin and held fast through the rest of the game, while the Braintree defense crumbled under heavy hitting from the likes of seniors Jon Gangi and Tom Malvesti. After Kivlin found his groove late in the second the Presidents retired 18 straight Braintree batters.

"Shaun is a real tough kid, he was the story of the game," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "He could of folded after that start but he came up big when he had to."

After battling back to 4-2 with single runs in both the fourth (Gangi) and fifth (Pat Donovan) innings, Quincy took the lead with three in the sixth. Senior Steve Miller opened the decisive inning with a walk. He advanced when Malvesti singled, Malvesti single-handedly accounting for half of Quincy's output with three RBIs and two runs while going 3 for 4. Miller stole third with Kivlin at the plate and scored when the pitcher hit - and reached - on a fielders choice. Malvesti would come across the plate when sophomore Joe Biagini (1 for 3, two RBIs) singled. Winning pitcher Kivlin would score the game's winning run when senior Tim Messing hit a pop fly that was dropped by the Braintree right fielder.

Quincy put the game out of reach with three more runs in the seventh. Gangi (3 for 4, BB, three runs) opened the inning with a walk. After moving to second on a wild pitch, he came home on a single by Malvesti. Malvesti and Kivlin would again score to close out the inning.

A single by Malvesti in the eighth knocked in Gangi and Miller and closed out the Quincy scoring.

After Braintree's four-run burst Kivlin allowed just one more hit before being replaced by Malvesti in the eighth. He gave up only four hits in the contest. The Presidents committed no errors over the final seven innings.

Top defensive stars included first baseman Donovan who recorded 14 putouts and ended the game by anchoring a double play started by senior third baseman Mike Caporale. Miller also had a great day in the field, assisting on four putouts from his second base position.

"I think the kids were tight and Shaun was a little nervous at the beginning of the game," said Sylvia. "But they settled down and took advantage of the breaks that came their way."

Quincy was scheduled to host New Bedford Tuesday afternoon at Adams Field. New Bedford upset Dartmouth and their Boston Red Sox pitching prospect Brian big stick, collecting three hits, including one round tripper. Steve Joyce clubbed a long triple. Justin players Ian Cain, ATSS Kiley and Anthony Tufo got hits and played exceptionally well in the field.

Adam Smith swung the

ATSS also routed Flavin & Flavin, 18-5.

Morrisette Hosts Canton In 50th Opener

The Morrisette Post American Legion baseball team will open its 50th season today (Thursday) as they play Canton at Adams Field at 8:30 p.m.

Morrisette will follow with games against Quincy on Friday, Holbrook on Sunday and Randolph on Monday. Each game will be played at Adams Field and will begin at 8:30. The Holbrook game will begin at 8 p.m.

Eighth year head coach Dave Perdios feels his team has a lot of work to do if they are to win their fifth straight Zone 6 title. The team lost eight players from last year's team, including three starting pitchers, three infielders and their starting catcher.

Perdios will also have to deal with the early season problem of putting a team together as nine of his players are still involved in high school tournaments and haven't been available for preseason games. The coach also believes the 10 team league will be much stronger this season.

"It will be a dog-fight right to the end this year," said Perdios. "Any one of six teams could win."

Morrisette has only four players remaining from their 1992 State Championship team: outfielder Dave Reinhart, pitcher/infielder Tommy Malvesti, pitcher/outfielder Dan Duncan and pitcher/outfielder Mark Cahill. The coach expects these four players to provide leadership for the younger players.

Fifth-year pitching coach Tom Malvesti, who has done a great job in the past, will have his work cut out for him this year as only Tommy Malvesti, Duncan and Pat Bryan have limited experience as starters. Cahill has not pitched in the past but has looked impressive in preseason ball. Also looking for starting jobs are Mike Kenney, Paul Marnikovic and Jeff Russell.

Sean Dolbere, Joe Biagini and Tim Zamboni will compete for the starting catcher position.

Malvesti is the only returning infielder from last year's group which set a team record in turning 26 double plays. Seeking to round out the infield are A.J. Carthas, Neil Connolly, Chris Cotter, Tom Cuneo, Jeff Russell and Andy Joyce.

The outfield will be a team strong point with five returning starters: Reinhart, Duncan, Cahill, Brian Hayes and Jim Sapienza. These players will also have to hit well if the team is to succeed.

Since 1945 Morrisette has built and maintained one the strongest Legion programs in the state, winning 26 zone titles, two state titles, a N.E. Regional title and a trip to the Legion World Series. They have never had a losing season.

Including Perdios, Morrisette has had just four coaches in its history; the others being Nick Malvesti (20 years), Connie Carlozzi (four years) and Ray Cattaneo (17 years).

Back for his 40th year with the team is former scorekeeper and statistician Frank Osborne. Osborne serves as athletic officer and chief fundraiser. He and his wife Ellinor are responsible for putting together the annual team ad book. Returning for his last year as long time scorekeeper and statistician is Richard "Berger" Ryan.

Also assisting Perdios will be Chris Dolan who is responsible for charting pitches and serves as equipment manager.

Meets Natick Tonight North Advances In Boys Volleyball Tournament

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

The North Quincy High School boys' volleyball team won their first ever tournament match Monday, a three games to one victory over Chelmsford High School to advance to the MIAA quarterfinals.

North (18-3) travels to third-seeded Natick (17-1) tonight (Thursday) for the next round at 7 p.m. A victory would put North in the semi-finals on June 15.

Statistical leaders for North included Ken Goon, scoring 10 points off serves, and Jackie Lei with 10 blocks in the match. Matthew Groom also contributed with 10 kills.

North entered the match with an extra-high level of confidence. This confidence showed brightly when the Raiders walked away with a 15-1 in the first game of the best-of-five match. The first game win was made easy by the setting of senior Warren Fong and the blocking of junior Jackie Lei.

The second game was not as easy, even though North raced out to an 11-3 lead. A timeout and a few substitutions by Chelmsford allowed them to catch up and close the score to 12-8. Excellent play by Goon and key blocking by sophomore James Rendle paved North's way to a 15-12 win and a two-game to none lead.

The third game was very tough for the Raiders as serving and communication went flat for a while and fell behind, 6-3. North recovered to take a 7-6 lead. The remainder of the game went back and forth and when the dust settled, Chelmsford won the game 15-10 to cut North's lead to two games to one.

Seeing action in the third game off the bench for North was sophomore Jason Liu.

In the fourth game, Chelmsford bolted to a quick 4-0 lead and the home crowd began to worry. North Quincy head coach John Perkins sent a new server, junior Samson Lee, into the game. Lee's serving brought North back into the game and tied the score at 4-4. North once again trailed, 6-5, but good serving and quick hustle play by Rendle helped bring the Raiders to a 15-6 win in the game and a three games to one win in the match.

"Game four was a battle," said coach Perkins. "Robert Johnston and Matthew Groom did a nice job setting."

Recently, Warren Fong, Robert Johnston and Matthew Groom were all selected to the South Alliance All-Star team while Groom and Johnston were named to the Boston Globe's All-Scholastic team.

Pat Gregoli notched a win as Cable bested VFW, 7-2.

Hall picked up the save. VFW took an early lead when Steve Rochon doubled and came home on a single by Joe Tower.

Cable responded with a six-run second inning. Alther scored the first run when he was knocked in by a Peter Turowski single. Wilson hit a two-run double and Hutchings cracked a two run single. Hutchings scored the inning's final run when Ardagna smacked a two-bagger. Alther scored Cable's final run in the fifth when Ardagna hit his second double of the game.

COOLANT LEAKS
If you find a puddle of yellow-green fluid beneath your car, the immediate suspicion should be of a coolant leak. To find the cause, raise the hood and start a visual inspection of the cooling system with a look at the hoses and clamps in the area of the radiator. If a hose has cracked through, try wrapping it with electrical tape before making an immediate trip for replacement. If a clamp is loose, try tightening it. Even then, the clamp is likely to need replacing. If a leak at the hoses and clamps show nothing apparently wrong, check the radiator itself for cracks or a leaky petcock drain at the bottom of the unit. In any case, fill the radiator to replace any leaked fluid and get to an auto technician right away. Major leaks may require a tow.

HINT: A failed thermostat can lead to engine overheating.

People generally put a great deal of money into their cars. With the initial purchase price, insurance, tune-ups and repairs, you can end up with a sizable investment. Doesn't it make sense to make sure you have your car serviced and repaired by the best technicians around? You and your car deserve the very best and here at LEO & WALSH'S SUNCOCO you'll get it. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550) and get acquainted. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer.

No Negative Impact Seen From Wal-Mart

detrimental impact on Quincy businesses. Quincy retailers would have an opportunity to access these (Wal-Mart) shoppers," said Charles D'Aprix, executive director of Quincy 2000. D'Aprix pointed out the business economic study shows the city losing $123 million in "leakage sales" per year. With Wal-Mart, D'Aprix said that revenue would be generated by Wal-Mart shoppers who would theoretically remain in the city to purchase other products.

"We need to look at keeping these kind of dollars in the City of Quincy," D'Aprix said.

According to the economic impact study, the fears of some downtown merchants who have said Wal-Mart would drive them out of business are exaggerated.

"Based upon observations of existing store offerings and interviews with downtown retailers conducted for this report, relatively few merchants were found to be offering the types of merchandise that would directly compete with the proposed development.

"Therefore, the projections presented in this report are likely to be toward the high end of the range of likely economic impacts on Quincy. Because of anticipated market growth over the forecast, these impacts on the downtown are projected to be temporary and could be reversed if aggressive measures are employed by the downtown business community to effectively compete with, and complement, Wal-Mart's presence in (Quincy)."

In addition, the economic impact report projects the net property tax benefit to the city to exceed $466,500 annually over 10 years. The figure includes direct taxes and additional revenues generated by other new development.

The mitigation package proposed by Wal-Mart developer Atlantic Development Corporation would also be a significant boost to business in Quincy Center, D'Aprix said.

Presently, the developer would:

- Fund the hiring of a Quincy 2000 employee for one year who would "stir up" new retailers in the downtown business district.

- Work with retailers downtown to craft marketing strategies to "play off Wal-Mart."

- Pay for an interactive video kiosk in the lobby of Wal-Mart. The video machine would allow downtown merchants to advertise their stores at no charge and give Wal-Mart shoppers a sense of the business downtown.

- Provide quality signage for Quincy Center visible from the Wal-Mart site.

- Clean-up the city's parking areas.

- Pay for the demolition of the former Childworld and Cummings Store site in Quincy Center to make way for Decelle clothing store. D'Aprix said neither the property owner nor the clothing retailer could pay for the demolition estimated at $400,000. Union workers agreed to knock the demolition price down to $100,000, D'Aprix said.

"The (Decelle) project could not move forward without that agreement," D'Aprix said.

The entire package is worth estimated $250,000, D'Aprix said.

In addition, Quincy 2000 and Quincy College will sponsor a series of seminars featuring national speakers for the retail community to help merchants play off Wal-Mart. The seminars will help retailers craft business strategies and find their niche, D'Aprix said.

The property value study concluded that there would be no negative effect on condominium prices from close proximity to well-planned and well-maintained retail developments.

"With the mitigation proposed by Atlantic Development, including both short term mitigation during construction and permanent mitigation undertaken on the Falls Condominium property and immediately abutting buffer land, is likely sufficient to protect the existing complex and its owners from a loss in unit values relating directly to the construction and proximity of the proposed retail project," the conclusion stated.

As part of the mitigation, the developer would clean up the area which is a former construction site, remove all hazardous material, and take over all maintenance of Falls Boulevard including plowing, sanding, sweeping, litter control and maintenance of pavements and landscaping.

Joe Mannarino, deputy director of Quincy 2000, pointed out the real estate value impact study examined similar developments constructed near apartment and condo complexes.

"They found property values stable, and in some instances, the residents like to be close to shopping centers and they prefer to live next to these complexes."

"Hunneman believes Wal-Mart would have no detrimental impact on property values and rents at the Falls," Mannarino said.

Relocated From City Hall Flag Pole Finds New Home At Wollaston School

An old city flag pole has found a new home.

Mayor James Sheets and City Purchasing Agent Michael McFarland recently dedicated the "new" flag pole at the Wollaston Elementary School on Beale St.

The flag pole was originally located in front of the City Hall annex. The pole was removed to make way for the city's "Walk of Names" project. New flag poles will be placed at the Walk of Names site.

The idea to put a flag pole on the front lawn of the school was generated by the Quincy Department of Public Works beautification contest. McFarland, who is also a Wollaston School parent, asked the mayor if the school could have the flag pole.

The school's original flag pole extends off the front of the building. With the new pole on the lawn, the fifth grade students are responsible for raising and lowering the flag on school days.

A recent rededication ceremony was held in conjunction with a Memorial Day observance. All of the students assembled on the lawn while Mayor James Sheets and Dr. Elizabeth Bostrom, the principal of the Wollaston School, began the memorial program.

The school band, directed by John Gulinello, played traditional music for the occasion. Some of the classes also made presentations in honor of Memorial Day.

Michelle Doherty and Matthew Mooney raised the flag during the ceremony. They are fifth grade students at the Wollaston School.

A new American flag presented to the school was donated by the George F. Bryan Veterans of Foreign Wars Post of Quincy.

To Acquire Quincy Savings Bank Citizens Bank Plans To Make Quincy Regional Headquarters

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Citizens Financial Group, Inc., which has reached a definitive agreement to acquire Quincy Savings Bank, plans to make Quincy its regional headquarters on the South Shore, the chairman and CEO of Quincy Savings Bank said Tuesday.

"It's my belief that they (Citizens Bank) will move their regional headquarters to Quincy and the South Shore region will include branches of Quincy Savings Bank as well as branches of the former Boston Five Cents Savings, Newworld Bank and Plymouth Five Cents Savings," said Quincy Savings Bank Chairman and CEO Charles R. Simpson.

"Citizens Bank will really have a significant regional presence on the South Shore," Simpson said. He said he is unsure whether Quincy Savings Bank's headquarters at 1200 Hancock St. will become the site of Citizen Bank's regional administrative offices.

Citizens Bank presently has a branch office at Presidents Place, one block from 1200 Hancock St.

Citizens Financial Group, Inc., which operates banks under the name Citizens Bank of Massachusetts, has offered to buy Quincy Savings Bank for $139.9 million, or $25.75 a share. The deal, which requires regulatory and shareholder approval, would not take effect until the first quarter of 1995.

The acquisition would add 14 branches to the existing 54 branches Citizens Bank has in Massachusetts if all branches remain open. The acquisition would also give Citizens the lead market share of deposits in Quincy and several other South Shore communities.

Decisions regarding possible branch closings and layoffs are expected in several months after a review of branch locations and staffing levels, the president and chief executive officer of Citizens Bank said Tuesday.

Quincy Savings Bank has $333 million in assets. Chartered in 1845, it has 14 branches: four in Quincy, two in Norwell, two in Hingham, and one each in Brockton, Hanover, Braintree, West Plymouth, Marshfield and Scituate.

$4.8-M Bond Issue May Be Increased For 2 School Projects

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A proposed $4.8 million bond issue for two of the city's public schools may have to be increased to a larger amount, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

Sheets recently submitted the bond issue to the City Council as part of a larger bond package totaling nearly $10 million. The $4.8 million would fund the construction of a new gymnasium and other improvements at the Parker Elementary School in North Quincy as well as the addition of several classrooms and additional renovations at the soon-to-be-reopened Beechwood Elementary School in Wollaston.

The mayor said the original figure for the work submitted by the chosen architect of the projects—Harold Goyette of Cold and Goyette Architects and Planners Inc. of Cambridge—was around $3.6 million or $3.7 million. Sheets said he received that figure soon after he put together the bond package and included the $4.8 million figure.

Sheets said, however, that the bottom line figure recently presented to him by the architect was for $6 million. That, said the mayor, is unrealistic.

"We think his prices are high," said Sheets.

The mayor noted that city officials, including Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton, are discussing the figures with Goyette. Sheets said the city will "try and back everything into" the $4.8 million figure.

Sheets added, however, that he thinks the final figure may well end up being $100,000 to $250,000 more than the current bond issue proposal, in which case he will send an amended bond issue to the City Council as soon as possible.

Wal-Mart Public Hearing To Be Closed June 28

A public hearing on the proposed construction of a Wal-Mart store near The Falls condominium complex in Quincy Point will be closed at a special meeting of the City Council June 29.

The hearing was left open after the council heard public testimony June 8 at Quincy City Hall.

Council President Michael Cheney said Tuesday that no more oral public testimony on the matter will be accepted, but added that residents are welcome to bring written, video and other testimony to the City Council Office at City Hall before June 29.

Testimony may be mailed to "Granite Crossing Project," c/o City Council President Michael Cheney, City Council Office, Quincy City Hall-City Council Office, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Cheney also said documentation on the proposed project, including traffic, environmental and other reports have been set up at the office in a library-file system for the public to review. Residents are welcome to review the materials between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m., he said.

Hingham developer Donald MacKinnon has proposed building a Wal-Mart store and an as-yet unnamed supermarket on 242,800 square feet at the Quincy Point site. He has said the project would create $575,000 in tax revenues, 200 construction jobs for union workers, 500 part-time and full-time positions for store employees and business that would spill over into the city's Quincy Center business district.

Some business leaders, however, including the

Abutters Raise Concerns

Dunkin Donuts License Granted With Conditions

By LISA CONNELL
License Board officials granted a common victualer license, with conditions, for a Dunkin Donuts shop at 550 Adams St. in answer to several residential abutters' concerns over the plethora of eating establishments along much of the length of Adams Street in Quincy that leads into East Milton Square.

Spare. John Govostes and his wife Francine will own and operate the donut shop at 550 Adams St. Govostes currently owns and operates eight other Dunkin Donut sites, several of which are in Quincy.

The site is within the Walgreen Plaza on Adams St., a strip mall that is owned by Atkinson Realty Trust, an agency of Stop & Shop Realty, according to Johnson, counsel for the Govostes.

A key condition of the Govostes' license is that the shop will be a "dry" store, whereby food is prepared off-site and delivered to the store on a regular basis.

Deliveries will be made twice a day from a Dorchester commissary that Govostes also owns, said Johnson. As there will be no baking on site, excessive odors and garbage caused by food preparation will be controlled, according to Johnson.

Prior to Tuesday's hearing, several community meetings were held, said Johnson, "to ensure no detrimental impact on the neighborhood or environment."

Johnson presented the board with a petition signed by approximately 500 abutters in support of the shop proposal. Johnson said he also received support for the Govostes' plan from City Councillors Lawrence Chretien, Thomas Fabrizio, Timothy Cahill and Michael Cheney.

City Clerk and Licensing Board Chairman Joseph Shea read a letter by Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence Chretien stating his support for the proposal and the fact that the Govostes' were willing to have the License Board place several conditions on the license.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio spoke in favor of the license as long as the specific conditions were outlined and put in writing for city officials to monitor.

Shea said that he had received a petition with nearly 30 signatures in opposition to the proposal.

Norma Rodberg of 32 Campbell St., a residential abutter opposing the site, stated her concern over the number of eating establishments continuing to infiltrate Adams St. despite an earlier campaign promise by Mayor James Sheets to control this growth.

"I don't care how quiet the trucks are or even if the tires wear cotton batting; the noise is disheartening. Why, in a residential area, do we need to have more traffic than we already have?"

DPW Conference Room Named In Memory Of Allan MacDonald

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The conference room at the city's Department of Public Works building, 55 Sea St., has been named after the late Allan F. MacDonald.

MacDonald served as the city's assistant building inspector from 1951 to 1966 and building inspector from 1966 until his retirement in 1986. After that, he served on the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals until October 1992. He died in December 1992 of cancer at the age of 74.

Several family members and city officials, including Mayor James Sheets, attended a ceremony Monday marking the first official day of the Allan F. MacDonald Conference Room.

"He was a gentleman, a professional who understood people and worked well with people," Sheets said of MacDonald. "He was an outstanding building inspector and highly respected in his profession. Allan MacDonald was tough, but fair, and was always very reasonable with the average person who walked into his office; he would always help the little guy."

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey said MacDonald should be best remembered for making Quincy the first community in the United States to require heat detectors, which preceded smoke detectors, in all homes. That ordinance was approved by the City Council and then Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa in 1958, he said.

"He pushed for it so that it happened here in the city, and then it went like wildfire throughout the rest of the country," said Mulvey.

Among the family members who attended the ceremony were MacDonald's widow, Stephanie, of Quincy; his brothers and sisters-in-law, Donald and Mary MacDonald and Jay and Virginia MacDonald, all of Quincy; and sister and brother-in-law, Claire and John Fallon of Daytona Beach, Fla.

"I consider it an honor," Donald MacDonald said of the dedication on behalf of the family. "We're very happy it happened."

Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence Chretien will hold a fund-raiser tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 8 p.m. at 1 Adams St.,

Groundbreaking Saturday, June 25 $60,000 Monument, Park Planned For Quincy's 38 Korean War Dead

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
Nearly 40 years have passed since the end of the Korean War, a war which claimed the lives of 54,247 men including 38 from Quincy.

Now, some four decades later, the fallen soldiers of that "Forgotten War" will finally be remembered and recognized in Quincy.

A groundbreaking for the Quincy Korean War Memorial monument will be held Saturday, June 25 at 10 a.m. at Hancock St. and Southern Artery adjacent Veterans' Memorial Stadium. The Korean War Memorial Committee hopes to raise $60,000 to erect and dedicate the monument Sunday, June 25, 1995, the 45th anniversary of the United States entry into the Korean War.

A collation will follow the groundbreaking at the George F. Bryan VFW Post on Broad St., Quincy.

John "Butch" Mahoney, social health coordinator for Quincy Public Schools and chairman of the Quincy Korean War Memorial Committee, said the monument is highly appropriate and long overdue.

"I think we owe it to the guys who didn't come back," said Mahoney, a Korean War veteran. "I'm very lucky (to have served and return) and I think the mayor and the committee have a real appreciation of what Korean war veterans did."

"They're heroes. I'm sure the families (of the veterans) feel the same way. Forty-five years is really too long."

Mahoney, who said he thought about the monument for several years, added, "They're all Quincy guys and they should be remembered."

The monument will also serve as a memorial for all U.S. Korean War casualties. Nearly as many G.I.'s were killed in three years of Korea as were killed during the 14 years of Vietnam.

The monument will be the centerpiece of a veterans park planned at the Hancock St. and Southern Artery site.

The memorial will stand 7 feet 4 inches high, 3 feet 6 inches wide and approximately 17 feet long at the base. The top portion and first bases will be made of polished black granite and feature a hand-cut carving of an eagle, City of Quincy seal and lettering in 23-karat gold.

Flanking the center portion of the monument will be two large granite tablets. On the tablets will be carved the names of Quincy's 38 Korean War casualties. The names will be also be painted in 23-karat gold lettering.

Mahoney said the flanking pieces of the monument with the names of Quincy's Korean War dead will be set at a 38-degree angle from the main piece. The number 38 is significant because it was the parallel which North Korea crossed into South Korea to start the war, and it is the number of Quincy veterans killed during the war.

The base of the monument will bear the number of war dead (54,246), Wounded (103,284), Missing in Action (8,177), and Prisoners of War (7,000).

Names of Quincy's Korean War dead which will be inscribed are:

Robert L. Adams, Albert J. Bergeron, Thomas B. Bishop, Michael J. Broderich, Lawrence A. Bruno, James H. Cameron, Howard E. Davis, Walter A. Della Chiesa, Robert James Duffy, Kenneth F. Ehlers, Gordon J. Erickson, Lee H. Favorite, Robert J. Foley, Daniel N. Gilbert, Frederick H. Graves, Albert J. Happel, Mervyn K. Horn, Robert W. Leaman, George R. MacDonald.

Also, Bernard A. MacDougall, David MacLachlan Jr., Lloyd S. MacLeod, Michael W. Mahar, John Mariano, Chester E. Paris, Armand G. Poirier, Malcolm B. Reardon, Albert L. Rogers, Roger F. Schneider, Edward Fleming, George A. Smart, George

Pizza Parlor Proposed Next Door To NQHS

BY LISA CONNELL
License Board officials heard a proposal by representatives of the D'Angelo/Pizza Hut chain for a common victualer license for a site next to North Quincy High School.

The proposed restaurant would occupy the site of the former Coletta Garage and former Merit gas station at 270 Hancock St. Quincy Attorney Edward Fleming, representative for D'Angelo's, said that D'Angelo's currently has a purchase and sale agreement with the trustee in bankruptcy.

Fleming said initial plans call for a thorough cleaning of the property, including removal of underground gasoline tanks.

Pending the outcome of environmental tests to be performed in the future, Fleming said D'Angelo's will do whatever is necessary to make the site safe for restaurant use.

Currently, a McDonald's restaurant is directly across the street from the high school and proposed eatery.

School Superintendent Eugene Creodon, in a telephone interview, said he would reserve judgment on the D'Angelo's/Pizza Hut proposal until more information was presented.

Discussion on this matter will be continued at the June 28 License Board meeting.

Farmers' Market Opens Friday

Quincy Farmers' Market will open for its 12th season Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Hancock Parking Lot across from Quincy District Court.

The market will continue through the season until the end of October.

Many of the same farmers are returning this season, in addition to one or two new growers. The Stillman Farm of Lunenburg, an APR Farm—a farm protected from development—is returning for the 10th season. Verrill Farm of Concord will bring its strawberries, greens, beets, radishes, and asparagus. Noquochoke Orchard of Westport will again feature 27 varieties of apples, along with peaches, pears and plums later in July.

As the season advances, consumers will find additional vegetables and berries ripening each week. The end of July is the peak season for sweet corn and field-ripened tomatoes.

The market will feature produce that is picked ripe and sold that day, and unusual varieties of fruits and vegetables.

Farmers' Markets not only benefit the farmers but also assure consumers the availability of local produce. Working farms preserve open space without using tax dollars.

The Quincy Farmers' Market also accepts food stamps.

The newest letters to be added to the English alphabet are "j" and "v," which came into use after 1630. Before that time they were used only as variants of "i" and "u."

UNLOCKING THE KEY TO ALZHEIMER'S

One of the terrifying things about Alzheimer's disease is that it seems to strike so unpredictably. That may change. Researchers have discovered a genetic clue that may help answer the question of who is likely to get Alzheimer's and why. A gene known to be linked to heart disease has been found to be a potential risk factor for Alzheimer's as well. The marker gene affects the body's production of a protein that shepherds cholesterol through the circulatory system. When a person inherits a particular variant of the gene from a parent, the risk of Alzheimer's triples. If the same variant is inherited from both parents, a person's chance of developing Alzheimer's is multiplied eight times.

P.S. Discovering the cause of Alzheimer's could open the way to stopping or delaying the onset of the disease.

We can all hope that it won't be too long before researchers unlock the secrets of Alzheimer's disease. Still Going Strong Bob Foy is one of the last of City Hall's Old Guard—and still going strong. Foy goes back five mayors and 12 city councils.

Unanimously elected to his fifth three year term as city auditor by the city council the other night, he came to City Hall in 1972 with incoming Mayor Walter Hannon who tapped him as his treasurer-collector.

Foy was reappointed through a 10-year period by Mayors Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin and Frank McCauley.

He then became auditor in 1982—an appointment the city council, not the mayor, makes. But, if that job did come under the mayor, present Mayor James Sheets no doubt would have picked Foy, too.

You might say Foy is the Great Survivor. He's been appointed and re-appointed by Republican and Democrat mayors and Republican and Democrat city councillors over a 22-year period.

Obviously, though they might at times differ politically, the mayors and councillors know a good man when they see one.

STEVE FARQUAR has left Continental Cablevision for a career change and new challenge in Phoenix, Ariz.

Farquar, area manager (Quincy and eight other communities) for Continental, will become vice president and general manager for People's Choice TV, which offers transmitter (wireless) cable television.

The transmitter is 2,000 feet on top of a mountain from where you can see 30 miles away. The transmitter beams 33 cable TV channels directly to the homes. The potential is one million homes.

"It's a real exciting area," says Steve.

A former Quincy resident who has been living in Scituate, he started out with American Cablestems 13 years ago as warehouse manager when American won the Quincy franchise.

Steve's wife, Elizabeth, is also looking forward to life in Phoenix. She has been writing a column for the Boston Globe Sunday South Weekly for several years as plans to do some free-lance writing in the Phoenix area.

We wish them both good luck and lots of success.

And we're going to miss Steve on the local media scene. A classy guy.

FR. WILLIAM MCCARTHY, pastor of St. John's Church and one of Quincy's all-time popular clergymen, after whom Fr. Bill's Place was named, has returned to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Boston, for treatment of the depression that came on him four months ago. Wishing you a speedy and complete recovery, Father.

IT HAS BEEN a long, hard haul for Bryant Carter, Sr., past commander of Wollaston Legion Post, since he suffered a stroke in April.

CARTER

After a stay at Quincy Hospital, he was transferred to the Braintree Rehabilitation Hospital and then to the Colonial Nursing Home, 125 Broad St., Weymouth.

Last week, he developed pneumonia and was sent back to Quincy Hospital. He is now back at the Colonial Nursing Home.

Some good news though. He is showing "a little improvement," his son, Bryant, Jr., reports.

Your North Quincy High School class of 1942 classmates and your fellow senior strollers at the South Shore Plaza are rooting for you, Bryant.

THERE ARE THOUSANDS of names on the Vietnam War Memorial in Washington, D.C. Trying to find a particular one is not easy.

Daniel Camali, son of Josephine Camali, of the City Clerk's office, was in Washington with his three children, Adriana, Anthony and Christopher, during the recent school vacation.

He wasn't looking for any one name but one suddenly jumped out at him. It was that of Paul Grasso who he grew up with in South Quincy.

It startled him to unexpectedly see the name.

Grasso is locally honored with a playground named after him on Columbia St.

Civil War Soldier Burial On Continental Cablevision

The 45-minute program will document the recent

A short program produced by Libbie Payne, documenting Quincy's involvement in the Civil War, will precede each broadcast to give the viewer a historical perspective on the day's events.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A World War I vintage postcard view of the Tubular Rivet & Stud Company's factory in Wollaston. This picture was taken from near the Frost Coal Company's coal yards on Weston Avenue. At the time of this photo the "Tubie" employed almost 1000 people and it was the largest factory of its kind in the world. Later it built more buildings on this site. By the early 1960's fastening technology had changed and as the rivet business dwindled the company moved to a much smaller plant in Braintree. Later the large building in this picture was used by a corrugated box company. Today it is part of the Mallen Bray condominium complex which is named after the founder of the TR & S Company.

$24-M Urged For Harbor Sewage Cleanup

A special legislative commission that had been studying sewage disposal in Metropolitan Boston for 10 months issued its long-awaited report which recommended expenditure of $24,717,000 in improvements to eliminate pollution in Boston Harbor.

The commission, which included Rep. Joseph L. Whiton of Quincy, called for the construction of sewage treatment plants at a cost of $3 million each at Moon Island, Squantum, and Nut Island, Houghs Neck. The federal government would pay 45 per cent of the cost.

"Engineers employed by the commission," said the report, "have stated that conditions approaching an intensity dangerous to the public health may now make the waters at some point unfit for bathing."

"We find that the public expects and demands action as soon as possible to purify harbor waters."

RESTITUTION REFUSED

The City Council refused to authorize restitution of $105 that School Supt. James N. Muir spent out of his own pocket to attend the convention of the American Association of School Administrators in Cleveland several months ago.

But the Council appropriated $300 that would permit Lt. William Ferrazzi to attend a three-month FBI police academy in Washington. The police chief, two captains and the other lieutenants were ineligible to attend since they were over 45 years old.

CELEBRATION SCRUBBED?

George O. Dixon, president of the Squantum Improvement Association, said the 30-year-old annual Fourth of July celebration in Squantum was in danger of being dropped for lack of interest.

"We will make one more try Friday night," he said. "If we can get out a representative group of people willing to work on the program we will go immediately into the plans for the day."

"Otherwise we will have to let our 30-year custom drop."

Clinton's Health Care Plan Is Bad For All

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
According to a study conducted by the economic research firm, DRI/McGraw-Hill, the typical American household may have to forfeit $461 worth of annual medical services under President Clinton's proposed health care scheme.

That's the same as nine visits to the doctor!
For some people who just don't get sick very much, this may not be a big deal. But to thousands of elderly Americans who are getting more susceptible to illness and injury everyday, this loss of medical services could be devastating.

And since I'm sure elderly Americans will be asked to bear a huge portion of the cost of this plan -- just as we had to do with Clinton's recent tax increase on Social Security benefits -- it doesn't make sense that we should also have to suffer the most.

Of course, I think this plan is bad for all Americans, not just the elderly. No one should have to face sub-quality, rationed health care. America, despite its very real problems, is still the envy of the world when it comes to quality medical care. No one is denied life-saving emergency treatment.

But if President Clinton's plan passes and the government limits how much the nation can spend on health care, our medical quality is going to plummet along with our access to care. Just look at the experience of the former Eastern bloc nations!

Exclusive Health Alliances Are Not The Answer

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
The Clinton administration is proposing exclusive health alliances that would destroy existing employer-sponsored health plans, known as self-funded plans. Self-funding of employee health benefits is an alternative for an employer who might otherwise purchase a traditional fully insured employee benefit program.

Under President Clinton's exclusive health alliances, most businesses and individuals would be required to purchase insurance through cooperatives established by the government. Consumers and employers would be forced to switch from their current health plan into an exclusive purchasing pool offering a limited number of health plans.

Health care reform is definitely in order, but exclusive health alliances are not the answer. Health alliances would infringe upon the consumer's right to choose a doctor and hospital, as well as the employer's right to choose a health plan. Employers should have free choice to fund health benefits utilizing the most efficient options available, including traditional insurance arrangements, self-funded plans or prepaid health maintenance organizations.

I hope that your editorial staff will report on both sides of the issue, in order for the public to have a clear understanding of the issues.

$60,000 Monument, Park Planned For Quincy's 38 Korean War Dead

(Cont'd from Page 3)

C. Stevens, Richard F. Sullivan, John J. Sweeney, Paul W. Sweeney, Joseph A. Therrien Jr., Joseph D. Toomey, Donald S. Waldie and Donald E. Wolf.

A. Monti Granite Company of Quincy will create the monument.

The veterans park will also feature benches, flag poles with the American, United Nations and MIA/POW flags, and a brick walkway or "memorial path." Mahoney said a small section of Southern Artery which runs directly in front of the planned park will be renamed Korean War Veterans Way.

Contributions for the monument and "memorial path" are needed, Mahoney said. Donations can be made out to "Korean War Veterans Memorial Fund" and mailed to The Korean War Memorial Fund, P.O. Box 0161, Quincy, MA 02269.

The "memorial path" will consist of bricks which can be purchased for a tax-deductible donation of $100. Veterans, family, friends, veteran or fraternal groups, corporations and other organizations are encouraged to purchase a brick in the name of a veteran to "help show that we all remember those who served this great country," Mahoney said.

Three lines of up to 15 characters (letters and spaces) can be inscribed on each brick. Orders can be mailed to the above address. For more information on ordering bricks, call 773-5476, or 464-4435.

Cut-off date for accepting brick donations for the memorial dedication ceremony is April 15, 1995. Brick donations received after that date will be installed afterwards, Mahoney said.

Mahoney said he hopes the monument drive has community appeal. He noted the Ward 2 Civic Association has contributed $1,000 toward the monument.

He said he is also receiving support from local veterans organizations, including Quincy, Morrisette, Wollaston, Houghs Neck and Nickerson American Legion Posts, the Bryan VFW Post, D.A.V. Chapter 79, the William R. Caddy Marine Corps League, Quincy Chapter V.C.V.C.A.F., North Quincy VFW Post, and the Quincy Memorial Post 7 AMVETS.

A number of city officials, committee members, veterans groups and invited guests will attend the June 25th groundbreaking. Among those invited are Park Shinil, consul general of the Republic of Korea in Boston, Myung-Hwan Yu, Korean foreign minister who will represent Ambassador Yoo, and Cong. Gerry Studds.

Committee members are Carmine "Chuck" Antonellis, Joseph H. Brooker, Martin Flaherty, John "Sonny" Joyce, Robert LaFleur, Ken Lotterhand, Nino Maddelena, Dan Mahoney, Edward McAllister, Quincy Police Chief Francis, Lawrence Norton, Henry Roche, Joyce Talbot and John J. Williams. Mayor James Sheets is honorary chairman.

Local state officials, city councillors, school committee members, Supt. Gene Creedon, and clergy will also attend the groundbreaking. Mahoney said others will take part in the ceremony, including honor guards from the fire and police departments and veterans organizations.

As a tribute to Quincy's Korean War casualties, 38 uniformed National Guardsmen will each hold the name of a veteran whose name will appear on the monument during the ceremony.

The memorial project has been endorsed by Mayor James Sheets, the City Council and the Quincy School Committee.

FIRE OFFICIALS comb over the remains of Kent's Carpet Outlet following the three-alarm fire that destroyed the Quincy Shore Drive landmark last Friday. The blaze, which officials said was caused by faulty wiring, caused $400,000 damage to the building. (Quincy Sun photo by Tom Gorman)

At Kent's Carpet Outlet Faulty Wiring The Cause Of $400,000 Store Fire

Quincy and state fire officials have determined that a fire that destroyed Kent's Carpet Outlet on Quincy Shore Drive last Friday was caused by faulty wiring.

Quincy Fire Capt. Thomas Lyons said both city and state fire officials agreed that the blaze began because of faulty electrical wiring in a basement showroom wall. The store was completely destroyed and damage was estimated at $400,000.

The fire started shortly before 10 a.m. in the store's basement, where hundreds of carpet remnants were stored. The store's manager, Thomas Dargin and a female customer escaped without injury.

Three firefighters were injured while battling the blaze: Joseph Ceurvels, who injured his knee; John Keegan, who suffered from smoke inhalation; and Thomas Mulloy, who cut his leg. All were treated and released Friday from Quincy Hospital.

In all, thirty firefighters, including one company from Boston, battled the blaze. The Quincy Fire Department had six engines at the scene, three ladder trucks and one rescue squad.

Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said the fire moved quickly and created tremendous pressure inside the store, blowing out the large front windows and showering glass over the sidewalk and street. The roof also collapsed. The chief added that firefighters had the fire under control within an hour.

The store was the site of the original weather station owned by Don Kent, dean of New England meteorologists, who started the store with his brother, Roger in 1946. Co-owner Thomas Rykema said he would like to rebuild at the store at its longtime site at the corner of Quincy Shore Drive and Davis Street, but said he would consult with his partner, Edward McAndrews, before making a decision.

The Kents sold the store to Rykema and McAndrews in 1984.

managers of Woolworth's in Quincy Center and Bradlee's in Quincy Point, have said their businesses and Quincy Center in general would be adversely affected if Wal-Mart comes to Quincy.

A majority of residents at The Falls recently voted to work with MacKinnon by agreeing to accept $600,000 in concessions if he receives city permission to build at the site. However, a group of residents led by Sylvia Mignon expressed opposition to the project at the June 8 public hearing.

Mignon, 42, who has lived at The Falls since February, said residents at the condominium complex felt they were being "steamrolled" into accepting MacKinnon's project and that the vote should not be taken as a sign that they want Wal-Mart as a neighbor.

Atty. Donald Vaughan, who is representing the residents, also said the condominium owners still have concerns.

Dunkin Donuts License Granted With Conditions

"Adams St. has become, between the gas stations [and this] a boulevard; it's not a thing of beauty anymore," said Rodberg.

Fabrizio empathized with Rodberg, yet did note that not every restaurant proposal brought to him has made it to the License Board for approval. "we could have been up here every month for the last four and one-half years with every proposal that's come in from a sub shop or a pizza shop," he said.

Other conditions of the license, as outlined by Building Inspector and License Board Vice Chairman Matthias

Mulvey, are that the shop close at 10 p.m., that signage be regulated and that as many local residents as possible be hired.

Clarification Regarding Proposed Pay Raises For 2 Department Heads

A listing of proposed pay raises for 49 city employees, the mayor and city councillors in last week's Quincy Sun did not reflect stipends of two department heads and therefore the percentage increase in annual pay for the two positions was incorrect.

The listing for the personnel director should have read: FY94 base salary of $43,945, plus $5500 in stipends for a total salary of $49,445; proposed FY95 salary $54,500, an increase of $5055 or 10.2 percent.

The listing for the purchasing director should have read: FY94 base salary $36,825, plus a $7,515 stipend for a total salary of $44,340; proposed FY95 salary $47,500, an increase of $3,160 or 7.1 percent.

If approved by the City Council, the stipends for those two department heads would be "eliminated" but the dollar amounts would be rolled into their salaries. By combining the base pay and stipend figure, the actual pay raise percentage can be determined.

Last week's story explained the stipends but the listing did not reflect those stipends in their FY94 pay, therefore the 24 percent increase for the personnel director and the 28.1 percent increase for the purchasing agent were incorrect. With the stipends factored in as part of their pay, the personnel director would receive a raise of 10.2 percent and the purchasing agent a raise of 7.1 percent if the proposed pay hikes are approved.

Merrymount School Receives $1,129 Grant

The Merrymount Elementary School recently won a $1,129 Bays Action Grant from the Massachusetts Bays Program.

State Environmental Affairs Secretary Trudy Cox made the announcement last week while touring the Town River area of Quincy with U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Regional Administrator John DeVillars.

Coxe said the Merrymount School will use the grant for a student study of animals, their habitats, and the effects of pollution on them. The study will consist of a four-week interdisciplinary unit on pollution, taking water samples, interpreting data and sharing the information with a partner school.

A total of 17 businesses, citizens' and community groups from Cape Cod to the North Shore received 1994 Bays Action Grants of $500 to $1,500 which totaled almost $23,000.

Paul Graham Elected President Of Quincy Community Action

Paul D. Graham, general manager of Mail Express, a Quincy-based, direct mail company, has been elected president of the Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. by its 33-member board of directors, announces QCAP Executive Director Rosemary Wahlberg.

Graham succeeds outgoing president, Janet Crowley.

Graham was first appointed to the QCAP board of directors in April 1992 by Councillor Michael Cheney. He has served the past two years on the Finance Committee where he has assisted fundraising and public awareness efforts.

PAUL GRAHAM

In his capacity as president, Graham will oversee the activities of all six QCAP programs: Community Care for Kids, Energy Conservation, Fuel Assistance, Head Start, Housing and South West Community Center.

QCAP, Inc. is a private non-profit corporation, founded in 1965 as a community action agency to help alleviate the effects of poverty on individuals and families while encouraging and promoting self-sufficiency. It has an annual budget of $7.5 million and employs 150 staff members.

QCAP is governed by a 33-member board of directors made up of one-third neighborhood representatives, one-third private sector representatives, and one-third elected officials or their appointees. It serves the communities of Quincy, Milton, Weymouth and other surrounding towns.

Citizens Bank Plans To Make Quincy Regional Headquarters

Principals for the two institutions said the acquisition will strengthen Citizens Bank's position in the Boston-South Shore area and benefit shareholders and customers.

"The Quincy Savings Bank acquisition helps in our efforts to build a strong banking franchise in Boston, along the South Shore and onto Cape Cod," said Citizens Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer Lawrence K. Fish.

"We now have a tremendous foundation for growth in Boston, Quincy, Plymouth, Hyannis, and the communities that surround them. We have built Citizens very deliberately to ensure that we stay within our mission of providing customers with the very best service in a community bank setting.

"This acquisition furthers our community bank goals," Fish added.

Simpson Jr. called the transaction an "excellent opportunity for Quincy Savings Bank's shareholders and customers.

"After the acquisition is complete," Simpson said, "Quincy Savings Bank customers will have access to an expanded branch network in which to transact their business. As we look to the future, we are confident that Citizens will continue Quincy Savings Bank's tradition of providing outstanding service to those who live or work on the South Shore."

Simpson said he feels confident Citizens Bank will continue Quincy Savings Bank's tradition of community banking. "I think (Quincy Savings) bank has worked very hard to become an integral part of the growth of this community and the South Shore and this bank has tried to meet its responsibilities of serving those most in need to those not very much in need and that tradition will hopefully continue.

"I have seen substantial evidence that their involvement relates very closely to that of Quincy Savings Bank's and they have resources beyond Quincy Savings and I hope they can take community banking to the next plateau," Simpson said.

Simpson, who has worked 32 years for Quincy Savings Bank, said he will likely move on after the acquisition.

"As captain of this ship, it's time to get out of the way and let a larger ship into the berth. They have asked me to stay on but I feel the time is for change."

Simpson said the acquisition process should not disturb the banking needs of Quincy Savings Bank customers "one iota."

Robert M. Mahoney, president and chief executive officer of Citizens Bank of Massachusetts, said Quincy Savings Bank customers "will feel very comfortable becoming part of the Citizens family. Our workforce is rich in diversity and eager to find creative products and services that customers want and expect from their bank."

"The Quincy Savings Bank acquisition represents a dramatic expansion of our market share on the South Shore," Mahoney said. "While we will be reviewing branch locations and staffing levels, decisions of those issues will be made in several months following a thorough analysis."

Mayor James Sheets called the acquisition "two losses for the city" but added he is optimistic Citizens Bank will become "a good neighbor."

"First, (Quincy Savings) bank has been the city's hometown bank for almost 150 years. And second, Chuck Simpson is a business leader who is irreplaceable and extremely community sensitive."

However, the mayor held out hope that Citizens Bank will continue Quincy Savings Bank's tradition and reputation.

"I believe Citizens Bank will be a good neighbor. I look for a good relationship to develop," the mayor added.

This is the third major acquisition by Citizens Financial Group in Massachusetts in the past 14 months, joining the former Boston Five Cents Savings Bank and the former Newbold Bancorp. During the same period, Citizens has also acquired two banks in southeastern Connecticut.

Citizens is the first largest commercial bank in New England and the 65th largest bank holding company in the country. The Quincy Savings Bank acquisition is subject to shareholder and regulatory approval and is expected to be completed in 1995. When completed, Citizens Bank of Massachusetts will have $4.1 billion in assets.

$4.8-M Bond Issue May Be Increased

mond said he spoke to the mayor Monday about increasing the amount of the school bond issue for additional improvements to the Beechwood School. Raymond said under the current proposal, the school would receive four classrooms, a kindergarten room and a media center, but the Building Needs Subcommittee of the School Committee voted Monday night that six classrooms, a kindergarten room, media center and community room would better suit the school's needs in the long run.

Raymond said now would be a good time to make as many improvements to the schools as possible because interest rates are extremely low for a 20-year bond package such as the mayor has proposed. He added that it is his understanding that the state also considers the school projects reimbursable and so the city could end up getting back at least some of the school bond issue.

Sheets confirmed that he and Raymond discussed the project but did not disclose any details about their conversation.

Raymond said about 75 people attended a public hearing on the school projects held by the Building Needs Subcommittee Monday night and expressed unanimous support of the planned improvements to the Beechwood and Parker Schools. Among those in attendance, he said, were Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and Rep. Stephen Tobin who vowed to support the bond issue as much as possible on the state level.

The School Committee as a whole was scheduled to vote last night (Wednesday) on whether the mayor should increase the bond issue for additional classrooms at Beechwood, Raymond said.

The Building Needs Subcommittee includes Raymond, Linda Stice and Sean Barry, but members JoAnn Bragg and Stephen Durkin attended Monday night's hearing and expressed support of increasing the proposed number of classrooms at Beechwood, according to Raymond.

He added that the public should be aware that the planned improvements to both the Beechwood and the Parker Schools are part of a "methodical and professional" plan of the School Committee to relieve overcrowding in the city's school system, not simply a "crisis by crisis measure." That plan includes the recent opening of the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center in West Quincy and the construction of a four-classroom addition to the Bernazzani Elementary School.

SENSING PROBLEMS

In today's high-tech automobile, the failure of an engine sensor can lead to rough running. A case in point involves the oxygen (O2) sensor that measures the amount of oxygen in the exhaust gases. Mounted on the exhaust manifold, the oxygen sensor uses this measurement to set the proper fuel/air mixture. The use of contaminated fuel or an overly rich fuel mixture can cause an oxygen sensor to foul, there by blocking the electric current that it needs to function.

As a result, a car with a fouled oxygen sensor might display hesitation, poor fuel economy, and black exhaust smoke. Once the problem of the fouled oxygen sensor is found, the auto technician will likely further investigate the factors that caused it to foul.

HINT: A fouled oxygen sensor may be caused by a weak ignition spark or gas in the engine oil.

Four Local AWHs Students Attend Mexico Student-Retreat

Four Archbishop Williams High School students from Quincy recently learned about the realities of daily living in Mexico during a study-retreat in Cuernavaca near Mexico City.

Olivia Chamberland, Susan Deskins, Leah Robertson and Christine Skjold all of Quincy were among 15 AWHs students who took part in the educational experience. Their education came from meeting their guides, the Mexican sisters of Guadalupe; hearing guest speakers, and visiting the people who live in the shanty towns called "barrios."

The four Quincy students were moved by their experience.

The retreat, co-sponsored by the Mexican Sisters of Guadalupe and the Benedictine Monks of Easton Priory in Vermont, was part of AWHs' campus ministry department's "Cross & Road" program. The program is intended to give students an awareness of the needs of others.

"One thing I hope to bring home is my change in attitude towards everything and everyone around me," Robertson said.

"The people I met live in houses made of cardboard yet they live with pride and faith in God," Deskins said.

Chamberland agreed. "I learned you don't need material things to be a great person."

Skjold added, "What touched me the most was the great faith the people have. My life has been changed."

Edged Out By New Bedford

Heartbreaking Loss For Quincy

By KERRY BYRNE

The Quincy High School baseball team dropped a heartbreaking 4-3 decision to defending state champion New Bedford last week. The disappointing outcome ended Quincy's postseason drive in the second round.

The game proved to be one of the most exciting ball games in recent memory. In the space of one inning the partisan crowd at Quincy's Adams Field went from ecstasy to agony over the fate of their Presidents.

Down 2-0 in the eighth, the Presidents rallied for three runs in the bottom of the inning. As the Quincy faithful hushed in anticipation, junior Steve Barrett cracked a single, followed by a successful Jeff Russell bunt. In the last at-bats of their high school careers, Jon Gangi loaded the bases with an infield single while Tom Malvesti hit a deep shot to center field that was caught but allowed Barrett to tag up from third. The sacrifice fly made the score 2-1 with two outs.

With the fate of the season riding on the outcome, Shaun Kivlin clubbed a chippy, high bouncer for an infield base hit. Russell scored from third while a New Bedford error allowed Gangi to come around from second with the go-ahead run. The boisterous crowd reacted in kind; after being held in check for seven innings the Presidents led 3-2 going into the ninth.

The battle-tested New Bedford Whalers responded to the deficit in superb fashion, however. They combined key hits, bunts and walks to drive in the tying and winning runs. The Presidents went down 1-2-3 to end the contest.

Coach Bob Sylvia spoke to the team after the game and told them to hold their heads high.

"Our players had a lot to be proud of," said Sylvia. "They had a great season and they'll have a lot of good memories to look back on."

Quincy pitchers Steve Miller, Russell and Malvesti sparked as they held the Whalers to only four runs. New Bedford rattled New England's best pitcher, Dartmouth's Brian Rose, for nine runs in the tournament's first round. The 9-6 loss was the Boston Red Sox draftee's worst outing of his high school career.

Russell was particularly impressive on the mound for Quincy. The sophomore allowed no runs and two hits in three-plus innings of work. He sent the Whalers down 1-2-3 in the sixth and eighth innings.

Several key players will give the Presidents a strong nucleus next year. Kivlin, a top batsman and burler, will provide top-notch offense and defense. Russell ended the year with several great pitching performances and could do the same next season. Barrett was near flawless in left field and had an eye for the key hit. Sophomore Joe Biagini gave the team great range in right field this season and will anchor the defense behind the plate next year. Biagini swung the stick impressively throughout the season. The Presidents also boasted a top flight group of freshman ball players this year. Many could see varsity time in 1995.

Departing seniors include Malvesti, Gangi, Miller, Jimmy Menz, Pat Donovan, Chris Cotter, Mike Caporale, Sean MacDonald, Tim Messing, Chris DeLisle and Jason Dalrymple. Sylvia had high praise for all his senior players, calling them one of the hardest working groups he's ever had.

Babe Ruth

Vasquez Pitches, Bats Fire Dept. Past Tirrell In Extra Session

Manny Vasquez was the hero as Fire Dept. edged Tirrell Services in extra innings, 5-4, in Babe Ruth League action.

Vasquez recorded the win in just one inning of relief work. He also knocked in the game-tying run in the eighth inning and scored the winning run on a hard line drive by James McDonagh.

Fire Dept. took a 3-2 lead in the fifth when Kevin McQue was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored on a rare error.

Tirrell tied the game at 3 in the sixth when Randy Feetham clubbed an RBI double. They took a 4-3 lead in the top of the eighth inning.

Bobby Walsh of Fire Dept. gave up three runs on five hits in seven innings on the mound. Tirrell's Chad Feetham scattered four hits and three runs over seven innings of work.

For Fire Dept. it was their second win in a row and ended Tirrell's four-game winning streak.

Andrew Byrne outduelled Mike Travers as the Elks topped Granite City Electric, 7-2.

The win improved the Elks record to 8-2. For Byrne it was his second complete game in as many starts.

Aggressive base running by the Elks led to several runs. Byrne scored the Elks' first run after walking, stealing second and coming home on the overthrow. Eric Wood singled and scored after stealing second and third.

The Elks put the game away late. Chris Bregoli and Kevin Shaw both singled. They came home on Matt McLaughlin's double. Steve Clarke's single also brought in a run. Defensively the Elks were led by Scott Staiti and Ted McGillicuddy; both made sparkling plays in the field. Wood also played another superb game behind the plate, nailing two runners on steal attempts.

Travers pitched outstanding baseball through six innings. He also recorded Granite City's first hit of the contest.

Bryan Post edged Local, 4-2, as hurler Jon Ryan fired a two-hitter with 10 Ks.

Ryan also picked off three runners. Catcher Mike Eddy threw out three runners attempting to steal.

Local jumped out to an early 2-1 lead on hits by Steve Maze and Brian Ross.

Bryan staged a dramatic rally in the sixth, scoring three runs on hits by Mark Kelly, Mike Sullivan and Eddy to seal the win. Gates led the offense with two hits and fine base running and was a defensive standout as well.

Kevin Cellucci, Steve Wiltshire, Mike Shaw, Matt Graham, Shawn Manning and Craig Bigham all played well in the win.

Bryan Post also beat Quincy Police, 9-1, behind the excellent pitching of Eddy.

Pat Cummings, Bigham and Cellucci anchored the Bryan defense. Graham, Shaw and Norton contributed with key plays.

Manning paced the offense with four hits. Wiltshire nailed three hits including a long home run. Gates, Ryan, Kelly, Eddy and Bill Graney also aided the attack.

Mike Johnson, Mike Markham and Adam Tiro hit well for Police. Pat Dugan starred defensively.

Ryan Ploof scored in the bottom of the seventh to give Morrisette a 5-4 win over Barry's Deli.

Ploof also struck out seven to notch the win. Down 4-0 in the sixth, Morrisette sent four runners across the plate to tie the game and set up the last inning heroics. Dave Keddy walloped a three run triple and was knocked in with the tying run when Rich Rose sacrificed.

Ploof scored after he singled then stole second and third. He was knocked home by Mike Centrella's single. Jason Crossman and Jonathon Haddad helped preserve the win with solid defensive play.

Geoff Meade fanned six in the tough loss. He also belted two base hits. Mike Hannon recorded a single and a double. Greg Conway played well in the field.

Morrisette also eked out a 5-4 win over VFW.

Again Morrisette found themselves trailing before a three run sixth inning secured the win. Ploof came in to relieve winning pitcher Anthony Caprigno in the sixth. He recorded the save thanks to four strikeouts.

Dave Keddy (double, single) and Jeff Feiner (two singles) led Morrisette's offensive attack. Caprigno, Mike Green, Rich Rose and Pat Kenny paced the defense.

Mark Kelly fanned seven in the losing effort. Kevin Cellucci clubbed two base hits and Steve Wiltshire and Brian Gates were sharp in the field.

Morrisette finally found some breathing room in a 12-2 win over Quincy Police.

Mike Green notched the win and Ploof again earned the save with five Ks in 2-plus innings of relief work.

Keddy (double, single), Feiner (double, single), Greg Peck (double) and Haddad (two singles) fueled the Morrisette offense. Chris Duffy, Chris Cummings, Tim Doyle and Jamie Grossi sparked on the diamond.

Police hurler Ray Satre fanned five batters. Colin Shea picked up two base hits and Robbie Winter and Mike Johnston were the top defensive performers.

International League

O'Connell Hits For Cycle, Leads Everlasting To Win

Billy O'Connell hit a home run in the game's final inning to complete the cycle as Everlasting Engraving pasted New England Personnel, 17-9, in International League ball.

O'Connell and winning pitcher John Leonard got plenty of support from the rest of the Everlasting crew. Pat McDonough cracked a round tripper and a single and posted five RBIs. Matt Langille hit a single and a triple while Chris Leonard clubbed a two bagger. Chris Mannix and Jeff Langille had two singles each. In the field Leonard combined with third baseman Jarrod Decelle for the 1-5 double play to end the game.

Nathan Dorasario belted a fifth inning two-run homer for N.E. Personnel. Jason Snaith and Mike Kane hit two singles each. From his shortstop position Snaith snared a hard hit line drive up the middle for his team's top defensive play.

Everlasting Engraving scored five runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to post a 13-12 win over Hennessy Appliance.

Leonard struck out five to earn the win. John Hanifin paced the offensive attack with three base hits. O'Connell and Matt Langille cracked two singles each. Mannix recorded the game-winning RBI. O'Connell, Mannix, Decelle and Paul Inferred sparked on the diamond. The game's top defensive play was turned in by Chris Barden who made a difficult catch of a well hit line drive.

Hurler Chuck Feeley fanned seven in the losing effort. He was backed solidly by the work of Kevin Sullivan.

Finish Season With 18-4 Record North Bows To Natick In MIAA Quarterfinals

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

North Quincy High School's 1993-94 athletic season came to an end last Thursday when the boys' volleyball team dropped a 3-1 decision to Natick in the MIAA quarterfinals. The Red Raiders finished the season with an 18-4 record.

Leading the way for North were Robert Johnston with 15 kills followed by Matthew Groom with eight and James Rendle with seven. Groom led the team with 13 points off serves. Jacky Lei and Ken Goon, the two juniors who will lead the team next year, combined for 33 blocks.

The second game was a memorable one. Trailing 10-0, North began a remarkable comeback. They slowly chipped away behind the strong serving of Johnston and tied the score 14-14. Natick held on to win the game, 16-14 and take a 2-0 lead in the match.

North won the third game, 15-10, but it did not come easy. Trailing 5-0 the Raiders came back to tie the score 6-6, thanks to great blocking by Groom. Natick again took the lead but North, led by the great play of Warren Fong, tied the score at 10-10. Johnston accounted for three straight service points to give North the lead for good.

The Red Raiders got off to a quick 3-0 lead in the fourth game, but five straight Natick points gave them the lead to stay. North tried to come back, but the opposing hitters were too powerful for the inexperienced Raiders.

Natick got tired late in the game and allowed North to stay close. At one point the Raiders scored when a ball bounced off the back of a Natick player. It was a struggle for both teams near the end as it took Natick six tries to score the match point and win 15-13. North was unable to capitalize on many chances at the end of the match - they scored only one point and failed on three other serves.

The Raiders lost the match's first game, 15-6.

"We came out strong in the first game, taking a 5-0 lead," said head coach John Perkins. "The character of this team showed late in the first and second games. We made them earn every point."

In their final schoolboy appearance for North were Groom, Johnston, Fong and Diep Nguyen.

For the Red Raiders it was an end to the best season in their history, a season in which nobody expected them to do so well. With only four seniors on this year's roster coach Perkins and assistants Jim Berger and Kipp Caldwell have a great deal to look forward to next season.

After Canton Loss Morrisette Rebounds For 3 Victories

Morrisette Legion opened the season with a loss to Canton but rebounded with wins over Quincy, Holbrook and Randolph.

Against Canton, Morrisette used three untested pitchers - the result was nine walks, eight hits and a 7-2 loss.

Morrisette started strong. They scored their only two runs in the first inning when Dave Reinhardt's triple drove in Tom Malvesti and Dan Duncan's infield single knocked in Reinhardt. Reinhardt had a great night. He went 2 for 3 and made the defensive play of the game in center field. With singles were Fran Cotter, Joey Biagini, A.J. Carthas and Malvesti.

Canton pitcher George Mish retired the last 13 batters he faced and did not issue a walk.

Mark Cahill, Jeff Russell and Paul Marmikovic worked the mound for Quincy. Cahill was charged with the loss.

Morrisette rebounded with a 9-4 come-from-behind win over cross-town rival Quincy.

Trailing 2-0 in the sixth, Morrisette took the lead as they sent 14 batters to the plate. They capitalized on three costly errors, five walks and one wild pitch to go with three hits in the inning. Bases-loaded walks by Tom Cuneo and Mike Kenney tied the game at 2-2, and caused Quincy starting pitcher Tim Byrne to be replaced by youngster Scott Pyre.

A two run single by Andy Joyce gave Morrisette the lead. Neil Connolly then reached base on an error and Malvesti drove home one run with a single. Walks by Duncan and Brian Hayes walked which set up Biagini's two run base hit. Two more runs came across the plate due to a wild pitch and an error.

Sixteen-year-old pitcher Mike Kenney was impressive in his first Legion start, a complete game victory. He gave up five hits, walked one and struck out two. Only one run was earned. At the plate he reached base three times and was credited with one RBI. He started a sharp double play to end the game.

Tim Byrne pitched well for Quincy. He held Morrisette scoreless for 6-1/3 innings and all the runs scored against him were unearned. Steve Miller doubled home two runs and George Wirtz had an RBI single. Mark Carlson and Steve Koch had base hits.

Morrisette put together a 12-hit attack and played error-free defense in their 7-3 win over Holbrook.

Sean Dolbere was perfect in 2-1/3 innings of relief work. He had five of the seven batters he faced.

Holbrook opened with two runs in the first inning against starter Duncan. The runs came courtesy of two walks, a single and a double.

Morrisette took the lead with three runs in the third. Two runs in the fourth provided the winning margin.

Duncan tired in the fifth and walked four straight batters to give Holbrook their third run of the contest. Fireman Dolbere ended the threat with a strike out to close the inning.

Morrisette's big bats were swung by Reinhardt (3 for 4, two doubles, RBI, stolen base), Sean Connolly (2 for 3, sac fly, three RBIs), Malvesti (RBI double), Duncan (double) and A.J. Carthas (two hits, RBI). Joyce, Biagini and Cuneo each had singles. Hayes had an RBI on a sacrifice fly.

Reinhardt recorded two more great catches in centerfield and Hayes had an assist at the plate from his right field position.

Morrisette closed the week with a 7-3 win over Randolph.

Randolph took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first due to shaky play by Morrisette. But the home team answered with five of their own in the bottom of the inning. Joyce and Neil Connolly reached on errors and Malvesti singled to load the bases. With two outs, Duncan nailed an RBI single. A.J. Carthas cleared the bases with a triple. Hayes followed with another triple for the fifth run.

Malvesti notched the win with a complete game performance. He mowed down 15 in seven innings while allowing just four hits and one walk. Only one of Randolph's three runs was earned.

Malvesti aided his cause with two base hits. Duncan also nailed two hits. Joyce recorded an RBI with a sacrifice fly.

Morrisette will travel to Milton today (Thursday) for a 6 p.m. game. They host Weymouth Saturday at 8 p.m., West Roxbury Tuesday at 8:30 and Milton Wednesday, also at 8:30.

Junior League

Cable Takes Pair From South Shore Buick

Continental Cable of the Junior League took two games from South Shore Buick during the week.

Ryan Hutchings pitched five strong innings and Pat Bregoli got the save as Cable won the first contest, 10-5.

Buick jumped to a quick 3-0 due to the hitting of Paul Lentini, T.J. Bell and John Fidalgo. Cable bounced back with two runs due to RBI singles by Hutchings and Justin Hall.

Cable broke the game open in the fourth with six runs. Scoring were Bregoli, Hall, Dan Duggan, Mike Welch, Joe Ardagna and Joe Sudak each scored or knocked in runs. Cable added two more in the fifth.

Cable took the second contest, 13-2, behind the master two-hit pitching performance by Hall.

Sean Boostroom struck out 10 as his Colonial Federal club cut Cable, 6-5.

Boostroom (3 for 4, triple, double, single) also drove in the winning runs when he hit a bases-loaded double in the bottom of the sixth.

Cable took the early lead but Colonial Federal came back as Jimmy Cattaneo singled and Kyle Piazza and Chris Lockhead both walked. Tom Doucette singled, Rene Lumaghini walked and Mark Reggiani singled to drive in runs. Cable got a run back on a Sudak single.

Welch also recorded 10 Ks in the losing effort.

The Lions suffered just their second loss of the season as they were tamed by Kiwanis Club, 9-2.

The Kiwanis win was the result of a great night by Mike Carloni. The big right-hander fanned 11 and shut down the high-powered Lions attack. He also single-handedly outscored the Lions team when he hit a three-run home run.

Marc McCarthy and Tim Kennedy each had three hits for Kiwanis. Mike Sullivan made a fine catch in left field.

Patrick Jaehnig and Chris Doherty both pitched well for Lions.

Carloni's performance was made more impressive by the fact that Lions exploded for 36 runs in their next two games, both wins over Beacon Sports.

The first win, 16-9, was led by the hitting of Ryan Kreuger (home run), Andrew Currie (home run), Jaehnig (double, triple), Josh Smith (two doubles) and Mike Keddy, Brian Deputala and Dan O'Toole (two hits each).

Brent and Keith Austin and Michael Feetham played well for Beacon.

Deputala and Jaehnig were the leaders in Lions' 20-7 win in the rematch.

Deputala struck out 13 and aided his cause by nailing three hits and scoring five runs. Jaehnig was 3 for 3 with a single, double and long home run to left field. Currie, O'Toole and Smith each collected three hits. Mark Maher smashed a bases-loaded triple and Brandon Sleeth chipped in with two solid singles. Mike Feiner played good defense in support of pitchers Ryan Piccinin and Phil McGillicuddy, both of whom were strong on the mound.

Police's Matt McAnn hit a long home run and struck out seven batters in just three innings of work. Vincent Traietti fanned four in 2-1/3 innings.

Frank Alibrandi was the winning pitcher as the Elks recorded their second win over Quincy Police.

Alibrandi allowed just three hits and one run in the first five innings in his first pitching appearance of the season. He also reached base five times and scored three runs. Lynch, Piccinin, McGillicuddy and Mike Feiner had multiple hit games. David Armstrong scored three runs and Miller and Matt Barrett played well on defense.

Jimmy Cashins recorded two hits for Police. Jamie LaFleur helped turn an outstanding double play.

With three more wins during the week Rotary stayed atop the American League.

Rotary topped the snakebitten Quincy Police club, 7-2.

Joe Thorley fanned 10 and allowed three hits as he went the distance for Rotary.

Matt Millerick went 2 for 3 including his second roundtripper of the season - a long shot which cleared the center field fence at McCoy Field. Adam Goodrich (3 for 3), Kiva Tupe and Thorley each doubled. Frankie Curreri, Brian Kalil and Mike Ryan each chipped in with singles. Tom Maloney, Kieran Ryan, David Benn, Pat Duff and Jackie Liuzzo played great defensive ball.

McAnn, LaFleur and James Newhall recorded the hits for Police. Paul Burke, Richard Bonvie and Andrew Ross played well.

Rotary also retired VFW, 7-5.

Goodrich struck out 10 and gave up six hits to post the victory.

Rotary's big inning came in the fourth when Tupe doubled, Millerick singled him home and Ryan laid down a beautiful bunt. Millerick and Ryan scored on a Thorley hit. Rookie Benn squeezed home Thorley with a bunt single. Hitting stars included Curreri (two doubles), Millerick (2 for 3, double), Tupe (two doubles), Goodrich (double) and Ryan (single). Maloney and Liuzzo were again strong defensively.

Joe Tower pitched well for VFW. He struck out eight while going 2 for 4 with a double at the plate. Steve Rochon (2 for 4, double) and Chris Walsh (2 for 3) also hit well. Jeff Haslett and David Rochon were strong in the field.

Rotary ended the week by again edging by VFW, 9-8. It was Rotary's eighth win in a row.

Curreri, Kalil and Paul Wise each banded roundtrippers for Rotary.

With the game tied 8-8 going into the seventh Millerick came in to relieve Tupe and held VFW scoreless. In the bottom of the inning Tupe led off with a double. Wise's single drove in Tupe for the winning run.

Three football players from Quincy will play for the South squad in the 16th annual Shriners High School Football Classic Friday, June 17 at Boston University's Nickerson Field. Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

North Quincy High linemen Brian Raftery and Dave Pacino and Quincy High quarterback Mike Bartlett will represent the city at the Classic.

The game features 90 of the top football players in eastern and central Massachusetts.

For Raftery - arguably the best defensive lineman in eastern Mass. last season - the game is just a warm-up. He'll don a Rutgers University practice jersey later in the summer as he prepares for his first year as a Scarlet Knight. (Is their a connection here? Red Raider turned Scarlet Knight?) Raftery was also a powerful power forward on the North Quincy hoop team.

According to many sources, Pacino was one of the top all-around kids in Quincy Public Schools. The 5'8" bulldog was tough on the gridiron and on the ice. More importantly, he was a National Honor Society student and North Quincy's Class of 1994 vice-president. Last word was that he'll pursue his academics at Boston College in the fall. (Great choice, Dave!)

Bartlett led Quincy High to a 7-3 record last season and was considered the top quarterback in Division I football. He will be taking the snaps for the South team Friday night. Bartlett was a fiery leader for Quincy on the football field and on the basketball court. He'll play football at Westfield State College in September.

Tom Malvesti was one of the Quincy High baseball players to suffer through the tough 4-3 tournament loss to New Bedford last week. In fact, Malvesti was on the mound in the decisive ninth inning.

But it seems he's recovered nicely from that game's disappointing finish: In Morrisette's 7-3 win over Randolph Mal mowed down 15 batters in a seven inning complete game performance. He allowed just four hits, one earned run and one walk. According to Berger Ryan, whose been with the team since long before Malvesti was born, the number of Ks was the "most in recent memory."

The Quincy Tennis Club will offer a free tennis clinic Tuesday, June 21 from 1-3 p.m. for children ages 7-11.

Children should be accompanied by an adult for registration and orientation purposes and must bring their own tennis racket.

The Quincy Tennis Club is located at the rear of 17-1/2 Glendale Road. For more info call Ken Rickson at 479-6106.

The South Shore YMCA will offer an 8-week coed volleyball program this summer.

The program begins Wednesday, June 29, from 8 to 10 p.m. Play is recreational and all abilities are welcome.

The Y will also offer a new FIT KID program for boys and girls ages 7-12. Classes will begin June 27. Registration for both programs begins June 15.

For further info call 479-8500, ext. 117 or 135.

I'm afraid I committed an injustice two weeks ago when reporting on the pitching performances put together by Andrew Currie, Danny O'Toole and Brian Deptula - the K-Crew of the Lions ball club in Quincy's Junior League.

The three young hurlers have had an amazing number of wins and strikeouts in leading their team to a 12-2 mark. I erroneously stated that they recorded their Ks in seven inning games when, in fact, the Junior League plays only six inning games. My apologies to those players.

As of last week, they were still going strong. Currie was 6-0 with 60 victims - that's 10 for every six innings of work. O'Toole was 3-1 with 39 strikeouts and Deptula fanned 15 in one six inning performance. The totals: 114 strikeouts in 65 innings for the K-Crew.

Justin Hall of Continental Cable, also in the Junior League, has been just as impressive. As of last week the 10-year-old fireballer had whiffed 46 batters in just 23-2/3 innings of work. That's nearly two per inning, an incredible number for the young ball player.

Weight Loss Program at YMCA

The South Shore Hospital and the South Shore YMCA are offering a combined program of weight loss and nutrition education at the YMCA, Coddington St., Quincy Center.

Classes begin Monday June 20 and continue through Friday, Aug. 15.

Classes meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings. The program includes Nautilus strength training, cardiovascular exercise, comprehensive fitness evaluations and weekly nutrition lectures by a registered dietitian.

For further information, contact Brian Wesner or Sue Ramsden at 479-8500.

St. John's Baseball

McDonnell Big On Mound, At Plate

Bob McDonnell was the winning pitcher and hit two 2-run homers as A.H. Campbell & Sons topped S. Matarazzo Dentistry, 15-12, in St. John's Little League ball.

Pat Kane went 4 for 4 with a home run, double, two triples, four RBIs and four runs scored. McDonnell added three runs and a double to his batting totals. Also with outstanding days at the plate were Mike McClellan (3 for 3, 2-run homer, three RBIs, two stolen bases, walk), Matt Darois (3 for 4, home run, double, two RBIs) and John D'Olimpio (2 for 4, two runs).

Ryan Casey fanned five in two innings of relief work.

The two clubs also met a second time and battled for a 5-5 tie.

McDonnell fanned nine Matarazzo batters in three innings of work.

McClellan hit another 2-run homer. Darois stole four bases.

Campbell also fought to an 8-8 tie with Agnitti Insurance.

Agnitti needed a strong comeback effort to tie the contest. Hits by Agnitti's Dan Jones, Dan Walker and Derek Johnson helped force the tie.

BFI topped Continental Cable, 10-8.

Brad Dimartino swung a big stick in the short effort. He went 2 for 3 with a home run and two RBIs. Julio Ochoa was 1 for 2 with a roundtripper and two runs scored. Sean Bailey was 1 for 2 with a homer and three RBIs. Also with strong days offensively were Brett Williams (three walks, one run, one stolen base) and Kristopher Kamborian (1 for 2, RBI, one run).

Donut King Wins Slugfest

Donut King edged Nation One Mortgage, 15-14, in a St. John's Junior Farm League offensive show.

Donut King exploded for 11 runs in the first inning. Kyle Carmody (home run), Anthony Boyle (double), Eddie Laura, James Collins, Ricki Schifone, Jonathan Mendez, Mike McPhee and Chris Kirschner were the main weapons in the first inning.

In the second inning

Boyle hit a home run with Cote Shaw on base.

Nation One got home run shots by Brian French, Billy Brooks and Jeremy Craig. Other top hitters were Kelly Powers, Marc Darois and Nick Lawrence. Shaun Giudici and Kevin Larkin led the defensive effort.

Donut King was topped by 7-11 Franklin St., 14-9.

Donut King got several notable performances in the loss. Boyle hit a triple in the first inning and followed that with a 3-run triple in the second. Boyle ended his offensive show with a fourth inning home run. Steve Summerling had a second inning roundtripper. Shawn McRae hit a 1-run double.

DiBona Plumbing & Heating edged the Braves, 2-1.

DiBona's Bill Jones and Marc Lopez were impressive as they pitched their team to victory.

Derek Ruiz drove in both Pirate runs with a double in the first inning. Jones, Tom Chernick and Bob McEvoy made outstanding plays in the field.

DiBona also played to a 2-2 tie with the Dodgers in another pitchers duel.

Lopez and Ruiz combined to stifle the Dodger attack. Key hits by Mike Bandera and Anthony Fernandez aided the DiBona attack. Bob McEvoy was superb behind the plate.

Kolson said the purpose of the appropriation is to

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

In going through some notes,
I found the following poem by an anonymous writer which I hope all fathers will read...

WALK A LITTLE PLAINER, DADDY

Walk a little plainer, Daddy, Said a little boy so tall
I'm following in your footsteps And I don't want to fall.
Sometimes your steps are very plain
So walk a little plainer, Daddy For you are leading me.

I know that once you walked this way many years ago!
And what you did along the way I'd really like to know.
For sometimes when I am tempted I don't know what to do
So walk a little plainer, Daddy For I must follow you.

Someday when I'm grown up You are like I want to be Then I will have a little boy Who will want to follow me
And I would want to lead him right And help him to be true
So walk a little plainer, Daddy For we must follow you.

City Parking Lots To Stay Independent

By MICHAEL WHALEN
Saying that financially it is the best move for the city, Mayor James Sheets announced Tuesday that Quincy's parking system will remain under contract with an independent company. The mayor said he made the decision based on conversations with Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon, who is part of a committee that is studying the current status of the parking system, and retired Purchasing Agent Robert Denver Jr. who the mayor said has in-depth knowledge of how the system works. Sheets announced last April that the city was considering taking over the management of the system, which includes the Ross Parking Garage and Hancock Parking Lot, both in Quincy Center.

Gillon said Tuesday he has not made a formal recommendation to the mayor that the parking system continue to be run by an independent company, but he also confirmed that in all likelihood, that probably will be his recommendation.

Quincy's five-year contract with Metropolitan Parking Systems Inc., which currently operates both the Ross Garage and Hancock Lot, expires June 30. The new fiscal year begins July 1.

Sheets said information he has received indicates that the city would save money in the long run by allowing the parking system to remain under contract because of insurance and other issues. However, neither he nor Gillon could provide a dollar amount on what the total savings would be.

Gillon said a request for proposals (R.F.P.) for bids on the parking contract will likely be necessary for the system to remain under contract for two reasons: first, because "existing contract language" would not allow Metropolitan's contract to simply be renewed; and second, because a somewhat different system will be in place. Sheets still plans to offer two-hour free parking on the ground level of the Ross Garage, a decision which may ultimately impact the Hancock Lot as well.

The mayor first announced plans to offer free parking at the Ross Garage in March, saying it would be offered as an incentive to consumers who want to shop in Quincy Center as part of his mission to revitalize the downtown section of the city. Details of the plan have still not been fully worked out, Sheets said.

Sheets told The Quincy Sun last March that he hoped to have any changes in the parking system in place before the start of the new fiscal year. On Tuesday, he said he would like it to happen "as soon as possible." Gillon, however, said his formal recommendation might not be ready by July 1, although it will be submitted "within the next five weeks."

Gillon said he is not sure if the city can legally receive an extension beyond July 1 to get the contract situation settled but added that he has asked City Solicitor Stephen McGrath to look into the matter.

McGrath said at press time that he has not had time to research the matter but will do so as soon as possible.

Gillon said if no extension is allowed, the city might have to take over the parking system in the interim until the situation is resolved.

"We'll do what we have to do," he said.

Gillon told The Sun in March that Metropolitan Parking, which began its contract with Quincy on July 1, 1989, pays the city an annual fee of $125,000 for the use of both the Ross Parking Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot. The fee is paid on a monthly basis, 1/12 at a time, he said.

In addition, the city shares a portion of the gross revenue earned by Metropolitan. If the two parking areas earn between $500,000 and $600,000 in a year, the city receives 33 percent, Gillon said. Anything between $600,000 and $750,000 means a 50 percent take for the city, while anything over $750,000 translates into 65 percent for Quincy.

Dan Baker, head of Metropolitan, could not be reached for comment at press time.

Opponents, Proponents Clash Over Wal-Mart

By LIAM FITZGERALD
Opponents and proponents of a proposed Wal-Mart store in Quincy Point met face-to-face outside City Hall Monday night as each group expressed reasons for their contrasting opinions on the project.

Approximately two dozen Wal-Mart opponents calling themselves the Quincy "We're Against the Wal" Committee held "Stop Wal-Mart" signs and shouted their concerns. The anti-Wal-Mart group, many of whom live in the Falls Condominiums near the site of the proposed retail store on Quincy Ave., said the project would increase traffic and crime and predicted the demise of small business in Quincy Center.

Sharing the same sidewalk, approximately 20 Wal-Mart project proponents verbally clashed with the opponents. The Wal-Mart supporters, some holding signs reading "Build Granite Crossing," "Help Us Help Our Families," and "We Need Union Jobs," said the project would stimulate the local economy and provide jobs for local citizens.

The 40-minute demonstration, monitored by eight policemen, was noisy but peaceful.

The demonstration

illustrated the apparent increasing polarization of the Wal-Mart issue in Quincy.

"With 245,000 square feet of warehouse style retail space and 1200 parking spaces, this Wal-Mart will have staggering impacts on the area and on all of Quincy," Sylvia Mignon, a resident of the Falls Condominium Group since February and one of the leaders of the Quincy "We're Against the Wal" group, said.

"The dream of home ownership has become a nightmare. I shouldn't have to raise my child in a shopping center," she said.

Mignon disputed the findings of a Quincy 2000 study which concluded

Golf Course Petition Also Passed By Legislature

New Governance Approved For Quincy College

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Two home-rule petitions passed by the City Council in March have been approved by the Massachusetts Senate and House of Representatives and were on the desk of Gov. William Weld Tuesday.

The governor must now decide whether to sign the petitions, one of which would establish an independent board of governors as the new governing body over Quincy College and the other which would allow Quincy to enter a lease agreement with a local developer to build a golf course-recreation complex at the former landfill site in West Quincy.

Weld has 10 days from the moment the petitions are placed on his desk to sign them, and if he does so, they will become law.

Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Ronald Mariano jointly announced the current status of the two petitions at press time Tuesday. Morrissey, the senior member of Quincy's legislative delegation--which also includes Reps. Stephen Tobin and Michael Bellotti--introduced the petitions in the Senate where they received initial approval.

The two petitions were then approved by the House, and given final approval by the Senate, on Tuesday.

Mayor James Sheets said he was very pleased when he heard the news.

"It's a great step forward for the city in two areas--educationally and recreationally," he said.

"The governance change will establish the kind of collegiate governance the New England Association of Schools and Colleges (NEASC) requires of the college. And I think people need a recreational facility of that type in this city, and that would not be possible without the home-rule petition."

"Both are very, very significant occasions and successes for the city."

Sheets' home-rule petition for the Quincy College governance was similar to an initial governance plan formulated by a mayoral task force led by School Committee mem-

Council Votes Against Proposed Residency Law

Following months of controversy, a proposed residency requirement ordinance was voted down by the City Council Monday night.

The council's Ordinance Committee voted 6-2 on the proposed law, which would have required that new workers hired by the City of Quincy be residents of the city.

Ward 1 Councillor and Ordinance Committee Chairman Peter Kolson, who originally proposed the ordinance, and City Council President Michael Cheney were the only two councillors to vote in favor. At-large Councillors Timothy Cahill and Joseph LaRosa, Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers all voted against the proposal.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, who is still regaining his strength after suffering a heart attack and stroke earlier this year, did not attend the meeting.

Kolson introduced the proposal late last year, and reintroduced it this year, because he said it would strengthen Quincy's tax base and generate more consumer dollars for the city, as well as create a stronger feeling of "loyalty" among city employees. The law would only affect employees hired after July 1--the start of the new fiscal year--and current non-residents who are Quincy workers would be "grandfathered" into the system.

Ten people spoke against the proposed law at a public hearing held in the City Council Chambers at City Hall prior to Monday night's vote. No one spoke in favor.

William Arienti, secretary of the Quincy Firefighters Association and a former Quincy resident, said arguments that such an ordinance would increase the city's tax revenues were false because "tax bills will remain the same."

He also questioned the theory that more city-employed residents would mean more shopping dollars for Quincy, saying that he still shops in the city despite the fact that he had to move out of Quincy because of financial reasons.

"Changing my address will not change my shopping habits, and families should have the right to choose the communities they think is

QCBPA Takes Middle Of Road Stance On Wal-Mart

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association has taken a middle-of-the-road stance on the proposed Quincy Wal-Mart store.

At a meeting last week, the association's Board of Directors neither opposed nor endorsed the Wal-Mart store specifically, but approved "new business beneficial as a whole to the community."

The board voted to approve the following motion: "As a business organization, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association has a mission to encourage new business that is beneficial to the community as a whole."

Caryn Smith, owner of Caryn's Corner and president of the QCBPA, said the motion was approved by a majority vote.

The QCBPA has 147 members including retail stores, banks, media, restaurants, beauty shops and professional services.

Wal-Mart Would Open Here In 1996

If the city gives Wal-Mart the green-light, it expects to have its planned Quincy store open in the fall of 1996.

Construction of the 126,057 square-foot store would begin in the summer of 1995 according to a statement this week from Wal-Mart's corporate offices in Bentonville, Arkansas.

The store, which would be located in the Granite Crossing Shopping Center near the Falls Condominium complex on Quincy Ave., would create approximately 200 jobs for area residents, Wal-Mart said.

Hingham developer Donald MacKinnon plans to build the Wal-Mart store and an unnamed supermarket on the 242-800 square-foot site.

"We are proud to be a part of the Quincy area,"

David Glass, Wal-Mart president and chief executive officer said in a statement.

But before Wal-Mart can be part of Quincy, the controversial store will first have to win approval of the City Council. No vote is expected to be taken on it until September.

The store would include a garden center, pharmacy and tire, battery and oil lube express.

Wal-Mart would drain Quincy Center businesses for the first three years before attracting shoppers to the area.

Quincy 2000, the city's public and private partnership for economic development, defended its support for the building of the proposed Wal-Mart retail development, called Granite Crossing Shopping Center, near the Falls Condominiums.

"Quincy is losing hundreds of millions of dollars in retail spending to Braintree and other communities," Quincy 2000 executive director Charles F. D'Aprix said. "It is high time we claim our place as the business capital of the South Shore. Study after study leads to the inescapable conclusion that this project will easily help our downtown retail district."

D'Aprix said the Falls residents who oppose this measure because, as Mignon said, it will serve as a virtual backyard for her child, should realize Wal-Mart would create jobs for many out-of-work union members.

"At some point the not-in-my-backyard opposition has to look unemployed people in the eye and say, 'I know you are out of work, but we know better, you don't need to work at Wal-Mart,'" D'Aprix said. "That represents the worst kind of social and intellectual elitism."

Mignon, an associate professor of criminal justice at the University of Massachusetts-Boston, also referred to a national news program which reported Wal-Mart employing children in Bangladesh for five cents an hour under armed guards for the company's "Made in the USA" products.

Mignon said she also angry because she was not informed by the project's developer, Donald J. MacKinnon, about the proposed shopping center when she and her family moved there four months ago.

"This is a disaster for residents of the Falls," Mignon said. "This will also force small businesses to go out of business. Wal-Mart does not want a piece of the retail pie-the whole pie."

MacKinnon, the president of Atlantic Development Co. of Hingham, said the project has the approval of many Falls residents, while the opponents have hired "outsiders to tell Quincy what decisions to make."

"The Falls residents were 80 percent in favor of the proposal, though the rest of them won't talk to us," MacKinnon said. "Our goal is to take a vacant parcel of land, clean it up, then turn it into a site that will allow Quincy to keep some of the millions or retail dollars spent each year by residents elsewhere."

According to City Council President Michael Cheney, the council will not vote on Wal-Mart's request for a special permit until mid-September at the earliest. The public may comment on the proposal until 7 p.m. June 29 through written testimony.

The opponents welcomed Al Norman of Greenfield, Mass., who helped defeat a proposed Wal-Mart in that city. He urged those present to do whatever it takes to keep Wal-Mart out and small businesses intact.

"They (the Wal-Mart developers) came to my hometown, kicked the door down and said this is where we want to build our store," Norman said. "They didn't care that it was not zoned correctly."

"Finally, the voters said no to Wal-Mart. We didn't want it there, and you should do the same."

Norman mentioned a study done in Iowa regarding the economic impact of Wal-Mart on one town. According to the study, Wal-Mart assumed $10 million in overall sales out of $17 million in small business revenues in one town over a three year period.

"That's exactly what will happen here," Norman said, "if a Wal-Mart is built."

Don Russell, a Wal-Mart opponent and manager of Woolworth's in Quincy Center, agreed.

"This city is a relic, and so is Quincy Center," Russell said. "This is the Last of the Mohicans. There may not be another community in New England like this."

If Wal-Mart is approved, Russell predicted Quincy Center will be a "ghost town" in five years.

"Other towns have fell prey to the cut-throat business tactics of Wal-Mart, don't let the same be said for Quincy."

Russell said he believes a Wal-Mart in Quincy would have a detrimental impact on the entire community.

"The morals, the character, the heart, all will be taken away if Wal-Mart moves in. And when the heart of the city goes, the whole town goes."

Bond Package Increased To Nearly $11 Million

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets has increased a bond package currently before the City Council by $880,000, bringing the total of the package to nearly $11 million.

Sheets recently submitted a bond package of $9,980,000 to the council. More than half of the package—$5.1 million—was for school improvements, while the rest would benefit parks and playgrounds, sea walls, renovations to Wollaston Center and other city projects and improvements.

However, Sheets submitted the following bond issues to the City Council Monday night for addition to the package:

- $400,000 for construction and renovations to the Parker Elementary School in North Quincy and the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School in Wollaston which is to be reopened. In the original package, $4.8 million was earmarked for those projects alone.

- $330,000 for repairs to sea walls in Houghs Neck. In the original package, $200,000 would go toward the sea walls.

- $150,000 for water mains in the Curlew Road area of the city's Adams Shore section.

The additions bring the total of the proposed bond package to $10,860,000.

Sheets said all of the money will fund necessary projects. The sea wall project is more extensive than originally anticipated, he said, while the Adams Shore water mains—which the mayor said are 110 years old—are beginning to cause "bad rusty water" in that neighborhood, he noted.

"We can't have that," he said.

Regarding the Parker and Beechwood schools, Sheets said the architect of the projects—Harold Goyette of Cole and Goyette Architects and Planners Inc. of Cambridge—had originally said the two schools would cost $3.6 million but later came up with a price of $6.6 million. The mayor said he had placed a figure of $4.8 million in the bond package before receiving the bottom-line figure, but assumed that would be enough.

Sheets said city officials discussed the matter with Goyette and the figure was "driven back down" to $4.8 million. However, the additional $400,000 was needed for furniture and sprinkler systems for the schools, the mayor added.

Sheets said the bond package is not as large as it would initially appear. He noted that the $330,000 for sea wall repairs will be reimbursed by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), another $120,000 earmarked for a traffic study of the proposed Quincy Center Concourse project will be reimbursed by the state, and 62 percent of the school improvement bonds—about $3.4 million—will be reimbursed by the state School Building Assistance Board.

City Auditor Robert Foy said the city currently owes over $17 million in bonds. However, he added that the city's debt service—the amount set aside annually in the city budget for bond payments—is down to $6.4 million. That figure is considerably less than the $7.8 million debt service in 1990, the year Sheets took office as mayor, Foy said.

The city's current bond rating with Moody's and Standard & Poor's, two local investment companies, is an "A" rating, according to Foy. He added that while there are two higher ratings—"AAA" and "AA"—the "A" rating is generally the highest that an average city receives.

Foy said interest rates are presently low and now is a good time for the city to bond. At press time, however, he did not have the exact interest rate that will be applied to the current bond package.

The auditor added that the terms of the bonds differ on a case-to-case basis, since some will be paid back in five, some in 10, and some in 20 years. Sheets, however, said the city has saved considerable money in interest in the past by acquiring mainly five- and 10-year bonds.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, chairman of the City Council Finance Committee, said the committee will begin discussing the proposed bond package at a special council meeting June 29.

PARTNERSHIP SIGNING was recently held at Saug Harbor School with school officials and Raytheon Co. The company will provide personnel to teach science classes at the school and expose students to environmental engineering. Students will also visit the Quincy plant. Participating in the signing are, from left, seated Principal Richard O'Brien, Raytheon Executive Mike Fleming, Supt. Gene Creedon. Standing, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and Assistant Principal Allan Osborne.

'Walk Of Names' In Final Stage

The "Walk of Names" project in front of New City Hall Annex in Quincy Center could be completed by the end of the week.

Mayor James Sheets said that the beautification project should be completed by this Friday. The "Walk of Names" was funded solely through private donations and largely through the sale of personalized, dark red bricks.

At press time, flagpoles at the site had been installed and Sheets said he believed all of the bricks had been set. Other components of the project, including lights and benches, were to be installed later this week.

Sheets said the front doors of New City Hall, completion of the project, which have been closed to the public during the time next week.

MORE KUDOS FOR BREAST MILK

A generation ago, new mothers were routinely advised to bottle feed rather than nurse their infants. Today, the opposite is generally encouraged. A recent study even points out that a nutrient in breast milk may be particularly helpful for premature babies. The nutrient, called inositol, appears to aid in the growth and development of infants' lungs. It also protects against retinopathy of prematurity, an eye disease that can lead to blindness. Now that the benefits of the nutrient have been discovered, doctors may choose to add it as a supplement to the diets of premature infants who are fed via tubes, thus granting those premature at least some of the benefits they would otherwise receive from their mothers. P.S. Another recent study indicates that nursing, rather than giving cow's milk, may also protect against childhood diabetes.

Breast feeding has become so popular in the last decade that a new health care specialty has sprung up in response—that of the lactation nurse, who works with new mothers to help them get adjusted to the new process, and to troubleshoot any potential problems. If you'd like more information, feel free to call either of the doctors—myself or Dr. Lisa Antonelli, at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. Office hours are by appointment. Losing An Old Friend

When I heard that Quincy Savings Bank was being sold, I felt like I was losing an old friend. I'm sure many of you had that feeling, too. Quincy Savings was the first bank I knew as a kid growing up in Quincy and where I opened my first savings account with—I think—$5. Or, was it $2?

Later, when I was working at the then Quincy Patriot Ledger, which was then on Temple St., it was so easy to walk around the corner to 1372 Hancock St. to make a deposit (usually very small) or for some other banking transaction (also usually very small).

I got to know most of the people there by name, like: Don Gohl, Lindsay Tait, Aldo Saluti, Maurice Hughes, Russ Smollet, Jim Chicchino, Don Johnson, Lenny Kantola, Arnold Haskell, Sulo Ruuska, May Murray and later Bill Parker and Bill Lomanno.

They got to know me by name as they did all their regular customers. You seldom had to produce a driver's license to cash a check.

From back then to now it has always been a friendly place to do business.

Quincy Savings has been a good friend to me in both personal and business matters. When I started The Sun in 1968, Charlie Pearce who shortly before had become president, helped get us going with bank advertising.

When we were on the second floor above Kincaide Furniture, he made it easy for us to move to our present location at 1372 Hancock St. and when Quincy Savings later sold the building, Chuck Simpson, who succeeded Pearce as president, made it possible for us to purchase our unit as a condo.

There's another fond link. My personal office here at The Sun used to be that of the late Bob Fay, Quincy Savings' popular mortgage officer. I'm sure he kept it a lot nearer than I do.

Quincy Savings has always been a good friend to Quincy as well.

It has been a role model of what a bank should be: community oriented, community involved, giving back to the community.

People like Charlie Pearce and Chuck Simpson were always there for a worthy community project or cause. Not just putting their names on a letterhead but taking active, leading roles.

You always knew they—or someone else from Quincy Savings—would be there with a helping hand. Quincy Savings, sadly is the last bank with Quincy still in its name. Now Colonial Federal Savings will be Quincy's lone community bank. Thank God we still have them.

Quincy Savings will soon be part of the Rhode Island based Citizens Bank, one of today's commercial institution giants.

It's another case in this continuing era of mergers and buy-outs with the little guy being taken over by the big guy.

The most massive single issue of a newspaper has been the Sunday New York Times, which weighed 12 pounds and contained 1,612 pages, on September 14, 1967.

But in this case, Quincy Savings for something like 150 years has worn large community shoes. Let's hope that Citizens Bank will really try to fill them by getting involved in the community.

IT WILL BE an historic night tonight (Thursday) for the Quincy Lions Club as Carolann Speranzo is installed as the club's first female president in its 54-year history.

Her installation and that of other officers will take place at the Cafe de Paris in the Common Market Restaurant, Willard St., West Quincy. Hors d'oeuvres at 6 p.m. and dinner at 6:30.

Carolann, a Quincy optician (owner Second Sight) has been an active member of the Mayor's Commission on the Status on Women and past president.

She will succeed James Flaherty as president of the Lions Club but will not be the city's first president of a Quincy service club. Sylvia Jenkins is president of the Quincy Kiwanis Club.

BILL GALVIN, Democratic candidate for Secretary of State, has some strong political backing here in Quincy.

The former state representative from Brighton has in his corner, among others: Senator Michael Morrissey, Reps. Steve Tobin and Ronald Mariano, former Senator Paul Harold, City Council President Mike Cheney, Councilor Peter Kolson, John (Jake) Comer and Tom Koch, who once worked for Galvin in his state representative office.

Galvin hopes to bring Rep. Michael Bellotti into his camp. Bellotti supported Somerville Mayor Michael Capuano at the state convention. Capuano, however, failed to win enough delegate support at the Democratic state convention to land his name on the ballot as a secretary of state candidate.

ON THE REPUBLICAN side, former Mayor Francis McCauley is backing Mitt Romney, the GOP convention endorsed candidate for U.S. Senate and Susan Gallagher, chairman of the Quincy City Republican Committee, is with John Lakian who also seeks the nomination.

THE SALE OF tickets for the second annual City of Presidents Blues Festival set for July 9, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium is off to a good start.

Among the early orders: eight adult and six children's tickets from Gov. William Weld who plans to make the festival a family outing, reports Joe Hajjar of the Yardrock Blues Club who is producing the event.

"His office says he plans to spend the early part of the day at Foxboro for a World Cup soccer match and then come to Quincy for the Blues Festival," says Hajjar.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $3 for those under 14. You can get them by calling The Yardrock 472-9383 after 2 p.m. and Quincy Tourism 847-0929.

It's a nice take. The music is good and it's a non-alcohol family oriented event which should become bigger and bigger each year.

Hajjar deserves a lot of credit for all the work he is putting into the festival—and at personal financial risk.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A very old postcard view of Anne Hutchinson Square in Wollaston showing the foot of Grandview Avenue. Except for a lot more vegetation not much has changed in this scene. The Taylor building on the left is now the Frank Evans Company, much of the building's architectural details have been covered over with plastic siding. The house up on the hill on the right has been converted into condominiums. The granite wall along Beale Street on the right remains pretty much undisturbed but you probably wouldn't walk along there with a child as the woman here is doing. The stone marker at the bottom on the hill on the right, commemorating Anne Hutchinson, has been moved across the street next to the Wollaston Fire Station.

New Committee Says Wal-Mart Poses Major Threat To Community

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Wal-Mart poses a major threat to the community of Quincy.

It is naive to think that Wal-Mart will attract shoppers to Quincy Center. In reality, time and again Wal-Mart has destroyed downtown shopping areas. Current figures show that for every job created by Wal-Mart 1.5 jobs are lost as smaller businesses are forced to close. Despite Atlantic Development's claim that Wal-Mart will create 500 new jobs, the Quincy 2000 study indicated only 130 net new jobs. It is well-known that the only way any other business can survive is to not sell the same items Wal-Mart sells. Should Quincy expect every retail store to radically alter the type of merchandise it offers?

Business practices of Wal-Mart are offensive and unethical including use of enforced child labor in developing countries, a court conviction for predatory pricing, an anti-union stance, lawsuits for age discrimination, etc.

There has been a strong effort to pressure residents of the Falls Condominium complex into accepting Wal-Mart as a neighbor. Falls owners have been led to believe they must accept a mitigation package now or risk losing any opportunity for mitigation if the City Council approves the project. Owners were pressured into making a decision to accept Wal-Mart even though no data on the decrease in market values and traffic problems were available at the time. The strategy to use the Falls owners to gain support for Wal-Mart has backfired, however. The public hearing before the City Council on June 8th saw Falls residents speak eloquently in opposition to the Wal-Mart project. Owners have not been given many facts, nor sufficient time to gather the facts themselves.

Many important questions are now being raised about the negative impact of Wal-Mart on the quality of life at the Falls.

We are not placated by inadequate and biased reports stating that Wal-Mart will have no negative impact on Quincy Center businesses and residential property values. In fact, a preliminary review by the Codman Company indicated "one cannot conclude that the proposed construction of Atlantic Development would not have a significant adverse impact on the owners at the Falls condominium and the valuation for other adjacent properties in Quincy." We have done our homework, examined the results in other communities, and clearly know the devastation which awaits our community if Wal-Mart comes to Quincy.

Business owners and residents of Quincy have come together to form the We're Against the Wal Committee. Please join our efforts by writing and calling your city councillors and asking them to vote against the special permit which would allow Wal-Mart to be built. Please call 479-4578 for further information on how we can preserve the quality of life in Quincy.

State Subsidy Proposed For Old Colony Line

Four local civic groups, including the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and the Quincy Taxpayers Association met with officials of the New Haven Railroad and suggested the possibility of a state subsidy to enable the New Haven to maintain passenger service on the Old Colony Line.

June 23-29,
37 Years Ago

George Alpert, president of the New Haven, reiterated at the meeting an earlier announcement that unless positive steps are taken to relieve the railroad of the Old Colony's $2.2 million annual deficit, the area served by the line would face loss of service after Oct. 1.

George A. Yarrington, executive director the QTA, strongly opposed the proposed subsidy, calling it "a blank check to the railroad management with no control by the tax-paying public."

If such a subsidy should be granted, said Yarrington, it should be under the control of a public South Shore Transit Authority, which would contract with the New Haven to operate passenger service on a contract basis.

FOR URBAN RENEWAL

City Councillor Edna B. Austin became the first member of the Council to come out flatly for urban renewal when she declared herself wholeheartedly for the program she called "constructive, far-reaching and of long-range significance to the city."

"No doubt my statement will cost me a few votes in a certain section of the city," said Mrs. Austin, "but the future of Quincy as a high-class residential community is far more important than the political future of any councillor."

"I hope that the City Council has the courage—and it takes courage—to take private property for the public good."

PLAN A CANDIDATE

For City Councillor Thomas J. Gilmartin (1946-49) announced his candidacy for one of the nine at-large seats on the Council and, at the same time, he endorsed the candidacy of Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, who was seeking election as mayor under the new Plan A charter.

Gilmartin said the, despite the fact he was backing Della Chiesa against Laurence J. Curtin, leader of the Plan A movement, he would remain faithful to that form of government.

Director Of The Quincy
Recreation Department

Thomas Crane Public Library Director Ann McLaughlin

The Protector And Keeper Of Quincy's Libraries

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Q. You've been director of the library now for just under a year. What's it been like?

A. Well, the first few months I felt very overwhelmed and wondered how anyone ever made a major change like that in their lives; I had a very nice relationship with (retired Library Director) Warren Watson, and having him on the job for so many years as he was, was a real advantage for somebody working with him.

So in the first few months, I felt a bit overwhelmed, but by now, it's the starting to feel pretty good.

Q. Warren Watson was library director for 25 years. He must have been kind of a tough act to follow.

A. It was tough for a lot of reasons. For one thing, he had everything filed away in his head; he could remember every budget change, every budget cut or increase, what file folder everything was in, the history of how regional services had been developed. So I never needed to pay too much attention to those details, because he had everything filed away. Fortunately, Pat Schneider, our secretary was still here, and she was able to find it. But he promised that for the first year I was on the job that he wouldn't be far away by phone and I could call him as many times as I wanted, and thank God he said that (laughs), because I called him a lot of times to try to find the answers to things.

Q. What do you see as the public library's role in the community?

A. I think that the public library has a very important part to play in the life of a city, and I think that in Quincy my belief is shared by a lot of people—that it's a place for families to come, that it's a place for kids to come from a very early age, it's a place for old people to come. It's kind of a refuge for some people, or an escape, and certainly it's a place that students and businessmen use all the time. But it is meant to be a really vital part of the life of the community, and that's definitely how we see it here, and any plans we have for the future are to make the library more available to the people.

Q. Everybody knows that libraries have books, but what else is available at Thomas Crane?

A. Well, besides books, some of our growing collections are things like books on tape, compact discs, and videos, and it's been an interesting process trying to decide which things are appropriate things to offer here at the library and which things aren't. Video stores are on the corner of every street, but the kinds of things we would have in our video collection are things that you wouldn't be able to find in a commercial outlet—things like a PBS series, "how to do it" instructional kinds of videos, and other things people might not have an opportunity to have. We're going to have computers for the public to use available; we have subscriptions to certain databases so that when people are searching for information we'll be able to look up information for them in a way that they wouldn't be able to do normally.

But books are still most the important thing as far as I'm concerned and as far as the staff is concerned. A library without books is not a library, as far as I believe.

Q. I take it, as a library director, you must be a big reader.

A. Yes, my family gets mad at me because when it gets to be a certain time of day, I just want to curl up with my book. I always have two or three books piled beside the bed or piled on a chair and I always carry a book with me while I'm traveling. So it's true, books are one of my favorite things.

Q. Your FY93 budget ($1,531,239) will be larger than the one you had for FY94 ($1,414,505), and one reason for that is the planned return of the Bookmobile (at a cost of $25,654). What does the Bookmobile mean to the city in your opinion?

A. I think it means a great deal to a lot of people in the city. There's been a lot of unhappiness since we had to take the Bookmobile off the road because the Bookmobile was able to go places to people, particularly to people who couldn't ever get to the library. We went to senior housing projects; we

ADDRESS: Falmouth

OCCUPATION: director of the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy since July 1993. Previously served as assistant director for 10 years; overall, has been with Thomas Crane at the main building in Quincy Center and the North Quincy and Adams Shore branches since 1971

EDUCATION: graduated from Milton High School, 1967; received B.A. degree in philosophy (1971) and M.S. degree in library science (1972) from Simmons College in Boston went to neighborhoods where people were handicapped and getting out was difficult. We went to parts of the city that geographically were far away, like Hough Neck and Germantown and Squantum.

FAMILY: married to Gerald Aronson. They have two children: David, 16 and Nathaniel, 13

So being able to bring the library to the people of the city is an important part of what we want to be able to do, and getting the Bookmobile back on the road is going to make a lot of people happy.

Q. The Bookmobile had been taken off the road because of city budget constraints. I take it?

A. Yes, George Zeiba, who drove the Bookmobile, decided to retire in 1991, and it was a time when the budget was tight, so we lost the job. So it's been three years since we took it off the road.

Q. The Quincy Sun ran a story last year about the library's plans to become completely handicapped accessible. How is that plan coming along?

A. Right now we're just waiting for the final drawings from the architects that were hired, and as soon as they have these drawings which I expect any day, they will present them to the local Quincy Historic District Commission. They've already presented the plans to the Massachusetts Historic Commission, the mayor has seen them, and the library trustees have approved them. So the mayor will be funding the actual construction of the walkway and the creation of ramp and the rebuilding of the front door.

We expect that the actual construction bids will go out sometime by the beginning of this summer. So that's been a major achievement, to be able to get a ramp to the front door so the people will be able to get in to the main floor of the main library. Also, two of our branches, Adams Shore and North Quincy, have ramps; Adams Shore thanks to (City Clerk) Joe Shea, because it's a voting place—he made sure there was a ramp there. So right now we are getting figures putting the electric push-bar doors for people in wheelchairs on both of those branches. So the only branch that we will need to do some major work on is Wollaston.

And one of the things that we will do with the Bookmobile is put on a wheelchair lift, so some of the money that's in the budget is the budget figure for retrofitting the Bookmobile and adding this wheelchair lift.

Q. And under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), the city has to make all public buildings completely handicapped accessible soon anyway. When is the ADA deadline?

A. January 1995.

Q. Will the library project be funded by grants as well as through the city?

A. Yes, as I understand it, the mayor intends to pay for part of the construction from block grant development money, and the other part will be part of a bond issue that he is putting together for a lot of the access projects.

Q. The Sun also ran a story earlier this year about the planned expansion of the library, and the fact that some property was to be purchased for that purpose. Where does that stand?

A. We are just waiting for the results of the environmental assessment on the property which is required by banks to determine that there's no environmental contamination, and then we'll set the date to actual set the date to pass papers and purchase the property. And as soon as we do that, we'll be able to move ahead and put out a request for proposals for architects to come in and actually design what it is that will happen on this new piece of property. So we're all waiting each day for the next step to occur, and then we'll be really moving ahead on the next phase of that project.

Q. And where will the funding for the expansion come from?

A. The funding for the architects' drawings will be paid for by the (library) trustees; the funding, in the long-view, for the addition will be a combination of sources. There is a bill in the state Legislature for library construction for which I was at the State House May 25 for a hearing and talked to Sen. Mike Morrissey. It has been approved by the House and is now being considered by the Senate, and if that is funded, then beginning in FY96 there will be $9 million available for the next five years for library construction projects through a competitive grant-round process and we would be a high priority for one of the places that would receive funding. We could probably get around 30 percent, maybe a little more, of the total construction costs from this grant program. So it's something we're keeping our eye on, because it would be a wonderful part of the funding that would be needed. And then the other funds would come from a combination of whatever fund-raising we could do, and then money from the city.

Q. And what are the total price tags for the handicapped accessibility and expansion projects?

A. The cost for the renovations to the main library for the ramp and the walkway and the front door are just about $200,000; that's our construction estimates. The cost for the addition we don't know yet, and that's one of the things that the architect would be determining, but we're guessing somewhere between $6 million and $9 million.

Q. The Thomas Crane Public Library has been designated a National Historic Site, something not all libraries can claim. It must be kind of an honor to be its director.

A. It's a wonderful place to work, and a beautiful building. Public libraries, in some ways, are very uniquely American institutions, and sometimes I think about how fortunate we are to be in a country that values libraries and how lucky we are in this city to have had a family like the Cranes that would pay to have such a beautiful building. And the city, from the day it accepted the Cranes' gift in the 1880s, has protected it and valued it and tried to find a way to set it apart, and keep it from being encroached upon. And I think it's a wonderful thing for the city, but for me, too, to be able to work in a place that's as wonderful as this, and also to be the protector and keeper of a property such as this which is a responsibility that I take very seriously.

June 30 New Deadline To Purchase Granite Workers Statue Bricks

The deadline to purchase bricks for the granite statue to be dedicated at West Quincy's Shea Park in June has been extended to June 30.

The 13-foot statue will depict a young granite worker holding a hammer in one hand and a chisel in the other. The base of the statue is being made from dark gray Quincy granite donated by Linda Montilio of Monti Granite on Central Street, and the statue itself is being sculpted by Andre Iwanczyk of New Jersey.

The $20,000 project is being funded by private donations collected by the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association.

Bricks are being sold for a "walk of names" to be installed around the base of the monument for families wishing to honor a particular granite worker. Bricks are $50 apiece and are being sold on a first-come, first-serve basis.

In addition, granite memorial benches are now being sold. For more information or to purchase a brick or bench, call Alba Tucci at 472-2580, or Steve Cantelli at 479-1019.

Despite A Mean Thief Store Owner, Customers Raise $300 For Cancer In Memory Of His Sister

A Quincy neighborhood store owner who lost a sister to cancer at age 26 and enlisted his customers to join in the fight against cancer turned over the proceeds of a collection, supplemented by his own gift, to the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society, apologizing for his failure to meet his goal.

Carl Fradet, proprietor of the Corner Food Mart at 1060 Hancock St., Quincy, made a presentation of $300 to Rose DiPietro, president of the South Shore Unit, during the recent Jail and Bail fund-raiser at Presidents Place.

He designated the gift in memory of Eileen Rugg, a teacher at Central Junior High School near his store.

For the past three years Fradet has set a goal of $500 to be raised for the society from patrons of his store and children at the school, plus his own contribution.

"This past year we had already exceeded our goal again," Fradet explained, "but a fellow picked up the second of our contribution cans right in front of my eyes and ran out of the store. I was alone in the store so I couldn't leave to go after him. Fortunately, we had collected nearly $245 in an earlier can and we 'rounded it off' to $300."

Fradet pointed out that being a "Mom and Pop" store which he has operated for a number of years, it has a lot of loyal local patrons who want to help. Because of the loss of his sister, he said he "feels very strongly" about the cause of the American Cancer Society.

CARL FRADET (right), owner of The Corner Food Mart, 1060 Hancock St., presents a check for $300 to Cancer Society volunteer Hank Bradley, Quincy Veterans Services director, and Rose DiPietro, president of the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society. Fradet organized a collection at his store, only to have some of it stolen.

Company-wide, the two-day drive raised more than 90 tons of food and over $17,000 in cash donations.

Donated food, collected by Stop and Shop employee volunteers and community members, will go directly to food banks in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. The food banks distribute the product to local food pantries, emergency shelters and soup kitchens in their areas.

MWRA Contingency Plan 'Good News,' Says Studds

The MWRA has pledged to develop a contingency plan to protect endangered species in Massachusetts and Cape Cod Bays in case of adverse impacts to the bays due to the 9.5-mile outfall tunnel, which is now under construction.

Studds, who announced the plan last week, has cited the lack of a contingency plan as one of the biggest flaws in the MWRA's plan to clean up Boston Harbor and has pressed the authority to develop a credible plan before it begins operating the outfall tunnel.

Studds said he learned of the pledge in a recent meeting in his Washington office with MWRA Executive Director Douglas MacDonald who told the congressman the plan will outline what the MWRA would do if its monitoring program indicates that any changes in the bays due to the effluent would harm endangered species, particularly the North Atlantic right whale.

Studds also said he was pleased to hear from MacDonald of changes in the treatment plan and outfall tunnel schedules that mean there will be "far more thorough treatment" of the sewage effluent being discharged than originally planned.

"This is good news for all of us who care about the bays," Studds said. "Monitoring alone won't protect whales, or any other species, unless the results trigger action. The MWRA's commitment to developing a contingency plan, when combined with more thorough treatment of the sewage effluent, are giant steps toward ensuring that the cleanup of Boston Harbor will not take place at the expense of Massachusetts and Cape Cod Bays.

Courtney Rand Winner In EPA Contest

Courtney Rand, a third grader at the Bernazzani School in West Quincy, was recently among 40 winners in a statewide poster and poem contest sponsored by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Courtney was awarded an EPA certificate during the Paul G. Keough Earth Artists Program held at the Park Plaza in Boston. The theme of her winning poster was "Save the Water...So There's Enough to Go Around."

Among those attending the ceremony with Courtney was her family and Lauren Zaccheo, her teacher at the Bernazzani School.

The Earth Artists Program was named after the EPA's former Deputy Regional Administrator, Paul G. Keough, who died earlier this year. More than 2,000 teachers and 50,000 students participated in this year's contest.

Guest speaker at this year's ceremony was WCVB-TV Channel 5 Weather Anchor Dick Albert.

SIGNS OF LOVE, hope, self-esteem and care serve as reminders of what qualities are needed to raise a child. The signs are among the educational structures placed by Point-Webster School Elementary Teacher David Ezickson at the school's beautification project near the Hancock Parking Area at the corner of Chestnut St. and Mechanic St.

"JOY'S GARDEN OF DIVERSITY" was planted in memory of Joy Hanlon, a Point-Webster Elementary School student who died two years ago after touching high tension wires. Joy's family, which planted a tree in her memory, often visit the memorial, part of the Point-Webster School's beautification project at the Hancock Parking Area.

Teacher David Ezickson, Others Convert Sidewalk Area To Outdoor Classroom

Point-Webster School Garden Focuses On Education, Unity And Life

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The sidewalk across from Quincy District Court on Chestnut St. was just an average, run-of-the-mill sidewalk, that is until Point Webster Elementary School teacher David Ezickson decided three years ago that a drastic change had to be made.

Ezickson, along with others from the Point Webster school, beautified the sidewalk with small trees, colorful flowers, as well as a number line and an alphabet made of wood that Ezickson hopes will make learning more enjoyable for kids, especially since it's outdoors in the fresh air.

"It all stems from a feeling I've had for many, many years as a parent, as a teacher, as a member of the community, that education should be outdoors and available 24 hours a day," Ezickson said. "It also comes from a desire to see people being able to gather something from the earth and from the grounds, for their betterment, no matter the age."

Ezickson said it was through the Adopt-an-Island program that he was able to acquire the land across from the District Court and turn it into a veritable patch of living, growing trees along with the simple message of keeping the earth healthy.

"It's to make it look beautiful, to make an outdoor classroom out of it," Ezickson said. "The city, the D.F.W., the parks department, all have assisted in numerous ways, by planting trees and dropping off other materials. The biggest variety of things has occurred with so many people's participation."

DAVID EZICKSON waters flowers planted across from the Quincy District Court, part of a beautification project by the Point-Webster Elementary School.

One volunteer who has given of his time and effort to make the land easy on the eyes is Al Collins, a Quincy resident who has been out there lending a hand from the beginning. He has seen what great things come from helping out, and encourages others to join in and help out.

"That's what makes a community - involvement," Collins said. "When you get a sense of community, you get a sense of safety, a sense of oneness, of togetherness. That's exactly what something like this will do."

Ezickson notes that following the unfortunate death of young Joy Hanlon two years ago, many more have participated in building a memorial to the Quincy girl who died after touching high tension wires one day. Entitled 'Joy's Garden of Diversity,' the memorial includes a tree planted by members of the family with white rocks spelling out 'Joy' below it. There is also a large wooden structure with 240 blocks that already contain pictures of those who have helped make it all possible, though many blocks still remain empty.

The garden's founder added that he recently spoke with Mrs. Hanlon, whom he said was still mourning the loss of her daughter. She told him that since the memorial was built, the family comes to see it rather than going to the cemetery.

"It's to keep her alive in everybody's hearts," Ezickson said. "That will represent Joy's Garden of Diversity. The pictures will be diverse, the kids are diverse. It's diversity that represents everything."

"That's why this was built outside - to be available to everyone, not just one or two people."

In addition to the number line, alphabet and other items, Ezickson plans on implementing even more learning tools, such as an abacus, a sundial and numerous mathematical and geometric shapes. He feels these tools will help children learn in a clean, safe and enjoyable environment for years to come. Currently in the works is a solar system embedded in the ground, which is halfway through production.

There are other subtle reminders of what can be done to make the world a better place for future generations. Signs like 'Nothing ever becomes real until it is experienced' from the poet John Keats, and the sign, 'The More Humane Treatment of Little Folk' by the man Ezickson credits with having put Quincy on the map educationally, Col.

F.W. Parker, the city's first school superintendent.

Chick Langille, who has had three of his children in Ezickson's fifth grade class, said he feels the garden's founder and chief caretaker has not received enough credit for doing such a wonderful thing for the local community.

"He's a great teacher, in and out of the classroom," Langille points out. "He gives back to the community more than anyone realizes. You just want to give a hand anytime you can when you see what great work he has done with this project."

A passerby walking past the garden with a friend stopped suddenly when something caught his eye. He was reading a poem Ezickson said symbolized what he wanted the place to be for everyone - a restful, relaxing, enjoyable place where everyone can stroll by and admire.

The poem was "The Giving Tree" by Shel Silverstein, which tells the story of a young boy and a tree who become good friends and are peace with all that surrounds them.

The last few lines of the poem read:

"Well, said the tree, straightening herself as much as she could, Come, my friend, sit down and rest."

And the boy did and the tree was happy."

That is the message Ezickson is trying to get across - a sense of unity among all people, a community gathered as one to celebrate God's great gift to us - the gift of life.

Wollaston Runs Into Canton Explosion

By KERRY BYRNE

The Wollaston Legion ball club was victimized by Canton's 8-run third inning explosion as they fell, 13-9, Monday at Adams Field. Wollaston dropped to 1-4. Canton improved to 4-2.

Wollaston was also hurt by a vacuum cleaner in left field named Sean Morneau. On two occasions Morneau robbed Wollaston batters of extra-base hits with spectacular leaping catches; both times they had two men on base.

Wollaston held a 2-1 lead going into the decisive inning when Canton mounted their 9-hit, 8-run attack. Each total accounted for more than half of Canton's offensive output for the entire game. Two Wollaston errors in the inning helped further the damage.

"We played well but the one inning has hurt us all season," said Wollaston manager Mike Draicchio. "But give credit where credit is due, they (Canton) seemed to make the big plays when needed and they hit the ball against our pitching."

Wollaston, too, was able to get the bat on the ball. They recorded 10 hits and put 20 men on base during their best offensive outing of the season. It's safe to say had it not been for Morneau's golden glove in left field that the outcome may have been different.

Trailing 9-2 in the bottom of the third, Wollaston's Steve Barrett was beamed in the back of the head by Canton hurler Lee Mish. Terry Manning followed with an infield hit which set up Jon (Gator) Gangi's blast to left center. The ball looked like an RBI double when it left Gator's stick, but Morneau, covering about 40-yards worth of real estate, leapt and the ball fell in the glove at the tip of his outstretched body. Wollaston was unable to get Barrett and Manning across the plate.

After scoring one run in the fourth to make the score 9-3, Wollaston threatened to further tighten the gap. With Barrett and Ron McGann occupying first and second, respectively, Manning ripped a line drive shot up the left field line. Hesitating for a moment, Morneau dove to his right at the last second and made a diving catch for the final out as the ball was about to skim the grassstop.

Wollaston made every effort to fight their way back into the contest. Canton scored two runs in both the fifth and seventh innings and Wollaston responded with three runs both times. But the eight runs in the third inning proved too tall a mountain to climb for the young Wollaston club.

"After the third inning I told the kids not to get their heads down, and I was happy with the way they responded. They didn't give up," said Draicchio.

Wollaston had several outstanding performances despite the loss. Third baseman Matt McGowan went 2 for 4 with a single and a triple that landed inches in front of the 387 sign in left center. Relief pitcher Jesse Casler was 1 for 2 with a walk and a 2-run triple. Casler looked sharp as he pitched 4-1/3 innings of 5-hit ball. Malachy Higgins went 2 for 3 with one RBI. Both Scott Kelly and Ken Hannaford cracked hits and scored runs during their only appearances in the game. Right fielder Mike Santoro played error free ball on his way to recording six putouts.

Wollaston will play cross-town rival Morrisette on Thursday at Adams Field at 8:30 p.m.

"Our players we will be pumped for that game. It should be a good one," said Draicchio.

Manning will take the mound for Wollaston.

Wollaston's previous win was a 4-1 decision over Randolph. They lost to Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree.

FIVE OF QUINCY'S newest police officers recently participated in the Norfolk County Law Enforcement Torch Run. The Quincy officers ran the five-mile course in platoon formation with other recruits from the first municipal police officers class, Canton Police Academy. All proceeds benefit the Mass. Triple A

American League Winner

Led by MVP Jim Parastades, the American League captured an 8-3 win in the Triple A All-Star Game.

The American League held a tight 3-2 lead when runs in the sixth by Dan McDonagh and Pascoqui Rossa, and in the seventh by Danny Long, Peter Connolly and Parastades, broke the game open.

The National League got on the board first when Chris Lumaghini doubled then scored on a two-bagger by Dan Hamilton. Hamilton was nailed at third by Tom Walsh as he tried to stretch the double into a triple.

The NL scored again in the fourth when Sean Haidul cracked a base hit and was able to find his way across the plate. Their final run came in the seventh when Robert Mahoney was singled home by National League MVP Ryan Murray.

Parastades scored the first run for the winning squad in the first inning when he tripled and came home on an errant throw. The AL also scored two runs in the second. Walsh walked then scored off a Mike Gavin double. Consecutive sacrifices by Connolly and Parastades brought Gavin home.

Pitching by both teams was impressive. AL hurler Jake Dugas fanned three and Steve Reddy struck out six in three innings of work. For the NL, Hamilton pitched three innings and Kd five while closer Brian Smith recorded six strikeouts and allowed just one run.

Murray had a great game behind the plate. He worked well with the pitchers and stifled several AL steal attempts. Murray also had an RBI.

The All-Stars were:
American League:
ATSS - Reddy, Adam

MacMillan, John Mercurio, Adam Smith. Yellow Cab - Dugas, Rossa, Steven Chu, Jason London. IHOP - Long, Tom Gouthro, Sean Owens, Jim Wirtz. Flavin & Flavin - Connolly, Gavin, Mark Fowkes. Morrisette Blanks Weymouth, 2-0

The Morrisette Legion baseball team put together its best road game of the season as they blanked Weymouth, 2-0.

Starter Dan Duncan and relievers Sean Dolbear and Tom Malvesti combined for the 3-hit shutout.

Duncan pitched 4-plus innings before tiring. He opened the fifth with two walks and a wild pitch before being replaced by Dolbear. With two men in scoring position, the reliever got out the three batters he faced on ground balls.

Dolbear fell behind the first batter he faced in the sixth, so coach Dave Perdis brought in Malvesti to close out the game. Mal fanned five of the six batters he faced and allowed just one walk to earn credit for the win.

Morrisette scored their two runs in the top half of the sixth. Jim Sapienza doubled with one out. Joe Biagini followed with an infield single. Sapienza came home on an errant throw by a Weymouth infielder which allowed Biagini to take second. Fran Cotter followed with a walk and Andy Joyce delivered a hit which scored Biagini for the insurance run.

Joyce had two hits on the day, including a double. Sapienza also notched two hits. Biagini beat out two balls for infield hits. A.J. Carthas cracked a double and Neil Connolly had a single. Morrisette committed just one error in the field.

Morrisette pitching dug a big hole for themselves as they lost to Milton, 10-5. Morrisette gave up 10 walks, five of them scored runs for Milton.

Morrisette pitching has historically struggled on the mound at Milton. Pat Bryan (2-1/3 innings) started and suffered the loss. Dolbear and Paul Mamikovic were also snakebitten in relief.

Trailing 8-0 in the sixth after clubbing only two hits in the contest, Morrisette finally got the offense rolling. They sent nine men to the plate and scored all five of their runs in the sixth. The highlight was a 3-run roundtripper by Sapienza. Also with hits in the inning were Dave Reinhart, a double, and Malvesti, a single.

Milton responded to the threat with two more runs in the bottom of the inning to close out the game's scoring.

Joyce and Biagini also had hits for Morrisette. Reinhart went 2 for 3.

Morrisette will be the visiting squad when they play Wollaston Legion at Adams Field tonight (Thursday). Morrisette hosts Braintree Tuesday night at 8:30.

Connolly Fans 12 For Flavin Win

Hurler Peter Connolly of Flavin & Flavin mowed down 12 batters en route to a 17-6 complete game victory over Quincy DARE in Triple A action.

Connolly also did damage at the plate; his single, triple and home run left him just two bags short of hitting for the cycle. First baseman Dan McCaughin had a great defensive game as he anchored several putouts and Mike Gavin was strong behind the plate. Paul Desmond cracked three hits.

Scotty Keefe played well for Quincy DARE.

ATSS's Steve Reddy struck out nine as his club recorded a 12-2 victory over Flavin & Flavin. Reddy allowed just three hits.

Adam Smith swung the big stick for ATSS. He capitalized on an "Invisible Hand" that allowed him to crack a triple and a double. John Mercurio blasted a three-run shot that cleared the fence in left field.

Dave Buckley was the winning pitcher as ATSS nipped DARE, 8-6.

Buckley fanned nine batters. Steve Cann was the top batsman with two triples. The win extended ATSS's winning streak to seven.

Quincy PAL pitcher Pat Hanley was the beneficiary of a 24-run burst as his club buried CNA Insurance, 24-9.

Several PAL players had outstanding days at the plate. Bill Clarke went 5 for 5 with a double and two RBIs. He also scored three times. Pat Lahar (3 for 5) recorded a home run and five RBIs. Lahar also scored three runs. Zach Windrel (4 for 5) clubbed a roundtripper and had five RBIs.

Hanley struck out seven and walked just one in 3-1/3 innings of work.

CNA's Chris Lee went 1 for 1, walked three times and scored three runs.

Triple A standings:
American League:
ATSS, 12-3; Yellow Cab, 11-1; IHOP, 9-5; Flavin & Flavin, 6-6-1; Local 2222, 6-8; KFC, 4-9-1; Quincy DARE, 3-11.

National League:
Hurley Insurance, 11-1; Locker Room, 11-3; Quincy PAL, 7-6; Toodies, 5-7-1; CNA, 3-10; Kenny's Lock, 1-10-2; USA Realty, 2-12.

Hall Of Famer

Bob Sylvia: A Standout Player And Coach

By KERRY BYRNE

Two generations of Quincy kids know him as Coach Sylvia. Some just call him "Syl." For nearly 30 years he's been a mainstay at Quincy High School as a physical education teacher and a baseball, golf and hockey coach.

Under his tutelage many Quincy boys have gone on to star in college, but in the mid-1960s, before his coaching and teaching career began, Bob Sylvia was an amazing athlete himself. In May he was honored as such in a ceremony at Lantana's in Randolph inducting him into the Boston Latin High School Athletic Hall of Fame.

"It was truly an honor for me to be inducted into the Hall of Fame," said the graying patriarch of Quincy High sports. "To me it was a cap on my athletic career. It was just an outstanding evening for me personally." Sylvia was supported by his wife Karen and four of his five daughters, Lynda, Michelle, Deborah and Jessica. His oldest, Janine, is an Army Lieutenant stationed in Hawaii and was unable to attend the ceremony.

Sylvia was a 3-sport star at Boston's prestigious Latin School. He played soccer and golf but on the ice is where Sylvia made a name for himself. After starting on the hockey team at Latin, he played for Division I collegiate power Boston University. In 1964-65, his senior year, he was captain of the Terriers squad, leading them to a 25-6 record and a trip to the ECAC playoffs.

In his junior season Sylvia placed third on the team with 21 points in 23 games. As he senior he racked up 17 goals and 21 assists for 38 points, second on the team.

In his three seasons as a varsity player (freshmen weren't eligible to play varsity in those days) Sylvia never won a Beanpot title, but he was involved in one of the tournament's most amazing first round games in 1965 when BU beat Northeastern, 5-4, in a triple-overtime marathon.

His biggest hockey thrill, however, came in his first game as a varsity player at BU. The struggling Terriers (BU finished Sylvia's sophomore season with a 7-16 record) were tied with the #1 ranked RPI

Engineers late in the game. With one minute to play the youngster from Roslindale found himself alone on a breakout. Sylvia flipped the puck past the Engineer netminder and the red light went on - his first goal in his first collegiate game was a giant-killer. Imagine David Gordon's game-winning field goal against #1 Notre Dame coming on the first kick he ever attempted in college.

Today, a star player on the Boston University hockey team is a lock for the National Hockey League. Tony Amonte, Sean McEachern, Mike Sullivan and Keith Tkachuk are just a few of the former BU players who currently star in the NHL.

Things were different in the 1960s, however. There were only six teams in the league, compared to the 26 of today, and Canadian players dominated the league. Over 90% of the NHL's players were from North of the border. Americans were regarded as little more than goons.

Thuggery not being his forte, Sylvia made other plans. He headed to Quincy High where Munroe MacLean (the gym in which Sylvia has worked since it was built COACH BOB SYLVIA flashes a smile with first baseman Pat Donovan following Quincy's 11-3 win over Barnstable in the last week of the regular season. Sylvia, now 58-something, has been a coach at Quincy High since 1965, eleven years before Donovan was born. The coach was recently inducted into the Boston Latin High School Athletic Hall of Fame where he was one of the region's top hockey players.

bears MacLean's name) landed him a job as a coach and phys ed teacher. Sylvia was fresh out of college, just 21-years-old.

Said Sylvia of the legendary MacLean: "MacLean is the guy at Quincy who probably had the most influence on my life, he's the one who got me the job when people thought that someone like Jack Garrity or Bob McCabe would have had the job."

Beside being a great athlete, his education at Boston Latin - the school which produced the likes of John Hancock, Ralph Waldo Emerson and Benjamin Franklin - prepared him well for his life after sports.

"Sports came more easily to me than did the academics at Boston Latin," said Sylvia. "I didn't appreciate it then, but I'm glad my parents (Roscoe, a monument salesman, and Eleanor, a teacher at St. Gregory's in Boston) pushed me. At the time I thought they were putting too much pressure on me, but in retrospect I realize they were doing the best for me."

Although he struggled, admittedly, under the strict academic rigors of Latin, he would go on to advanced studies, earning his Master's of Education degree from Boston University.

This strong parental influence has had a profound impact on Sylvia. The one regret he had during his induction into the Latin Hall of Fame was that his parents were not alive to witness it.

"I'm sure it would have made them extremely proud," said Sylvia. "As a coach I try to tell the kids that they have to make memories for their parents while they're still alive."

And as a coach Sylvia is nothing less than a class act, in victory or in defeat. Despite a frustrating, injury-filled hockey season in 1993-94, Sylvia's Presidents were voted the most sportsmanlike team by the coaches of the Old Colony League. One of his captains, senior defenseman Steve Provost, was given the League's individual sportsmanship award. These honors were earned during a season in which many teams would have let their frustrations get the best of them. The fair play that he tries to instill in his players as a coach was evidenced by the amount of time he spent in the penalty box in 31 games as a BU senior: two minutes.

This season Sylvia's baseball club made it to the second round of the Div. 1 South Sectional division in E. Mass tournament play. It was Quincy's first postseason appearance in several years. They routed Braintree, 10-4, in the opening round before losing a 4-3 heartbreaker to defending state champion New Bedford. Despite the disappointing loss Sylvia found many positives in the season.

"This is a real hard working group of kids. They're certainly achieved beyond what was expected of them."

For Sylvia that is certainly good enough.

Track Club Qualifies 21 For Championships

Members of the Quincy Track Club came up with a number of outstanding performances at the New England Junior Olympics, held last Saturday at Brown University in Providence.

Quincy took 30 prizes and qualified 21 athletes for the Regional Championships to be held at U. Maine - Orono.

Pat Egan was Quincy's top performer, winning all three jumping events in the Youth Boys (13-14) Division. He won the long jump with a distance of 17'7", the triple jump with a 36'8" performance, and the high jump with a leap of 5'10".

Both the Bantam (9-10) girls relay team of Brenna O'Brien, Meghan Mooney, Shannon Paine and Shannon Desmond, and the Midget (11-12) team of Maureen Holleran, Kelly Rose-O'Brien, Genevieve O'Brien and Julie Keane, won gold medals.

Holleran's talents were not restricted to the relays. She also threw the javelin 65-feet, a distance which could beat some high schoolers - however, rules do not allow athletes to move up an age group.

Keane and Mooney also qualified in the 100-meter run. Brenna O'Brien qualified in the 400-meter.

Other two-event qualifiers were Kim

Huerth, long jump, 100-meter hurdles; Claire Quilty, discus, javelin; and Jen Pineo, shot put, discus.

Quincy's other single-event Regional qualifiers were: Jim Callahan, shot put; Chi Chung, discus; Paul Desmond, high jump; Stephanie Fiandaca, long jump; Jim Finn, javelin; John Gray, 800; Malcolm Lynn, long jump; Daniel Ngulter, 200; Maureen O'Brien, 3000; and Andrew Picard, 400.

Sarah Kane, Kelly Lockhead, Ryan Lynch, John Lynch, Colin Mooney and Sean O'Keefe also competed in the New England Junior Olympics for the Quincy Track Club.

FOUR-WHEEL DRIVE

The benefits of four-wheel drive have been obvious since the time that Dutch automotive designer Jacobus Spyker produced the first four-wheel drive vehicle in 1902. Four-wheel drive (4WD) systems improve traction by supplying power to all four wheels, but different systems accomplish this in a number of different ways. Part-time 4WD vehicles normally operate in 2WD, then shift to 4WD on demand when a transfer case is engaged. This system is designed for use in snow, mud, and other slippery conditions not on dry pavement. Full-time 4WD, on the other hand, is designed for use on dry pavement. It can either be engaged while the vehicle is moving (shift-on-the-fly), or must be engaged at certain speeds and/or when the vehicle is stopped or reversed. HINT: Permanently engaged 4WD can either shift power to front and back wheels at a constant ratio or apportion power between front and rear for best traction.

The benefits of maintaining every system in your car are great because it will also give you better mileage and allow your car to last longer. At today's prices, it is not wise to do anything else. To help you properly care for your car, come into the service department at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, where you will be offered the best service available by people who truly care about you and your family. You'll find us conveniently located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). Hours: Mon-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm.

Piccinin also had a multiple-hit game to aid his cause. Shaun Lynch, David Riley and Mike Feiner also had big days at the plate. Billy O'Toole scored three times. Lynch made outstanding plays from his center field position and combined with Riley to nail runners at third and at home. David Armstrong also had a strong day in the winning effort.

Rotary reliever Kiva Tupe added to his impressive season totals with two innings of 1-hit relief. He also cracked two hits himself. Paul Wise and Jackie Liuzzo had good outings for Rotary.

Continental Cable upended Lions, leaders of the American League, 8-6. Cable was led by the superb pitching performance of starter Mike Welch and the relief work of Ryan Hutchings, who quelled a late Lions' rally. Pat Bregoli pitched well in middle relief.

Joe Ardagna (3 for 3, triple) got Cable on the board first with a hit that drove in Hutchings. Mike Keddy gave Lions a lead in the second inning with a sacrifice fly that plated Ryan Kreuger, but Didier Alther's monstrous 3-run dinger put Cable on top for good. The ball cleared the fence by an estimated 30-feet. Cable added insurance runs in the fourth when Hutchings doubled home Chris Wilson and Danny Duggan, and Justin Hall singled in Bregoli. Alther (4 RBIs) drove in Hutchings.

Kreuger's double got a run back for Lions, but there comeback attempt Bregoli, Wilson and Mark Dunn scored early Cable runs.

Ian MacRitchie and Todd White notched RBIs to lead to BP's first three runs. Sean Adam's 3-run home run blast in the sixth closed out Burgin Platter's scoring.

Lions rookie Tom Buckley was outstanding behind the plate. Mark Maher played well.

Keohane's Jody Bravo had the hit of the game with a 2-run shot that landed deep in the pond at St. Moritz. Matt Gregory, Wayne Moynihan and Charlie Vidali played well for Keohane's. Bravo mowed down nine batters in the loss.

Former Quincy High School volleyball ace Lori Novak was recently named Most Valuable Player of the Bentley College women's volleyball team.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We are all fortified by traditions. They play an important part in our lives. Traditions provide patterns on which we can depend and they give us security, a sense of belonging.

A tradition is more than just something that has been handed down. It comes from the heart. A tradition is something that you believe in deeply and would like to see handed down to your children.

Granted, in our hectic way of life today, some of the traditional ways of doing things cannot help but to be changed. However, some of them can. Traditions are important to all of us and most of them have helped us to grow, and even make us think a little more. So I ask you, before changing, or even eliminating your traditions, consider how much they have affected you and what you have learned from them. It might just change your mind.

Transferring To Pittsburgh

Capt., Mrs. Labossiere Leaving Quincy For New Salvation Army Posts

BY LISA CONNELL

After a four-year term as Commanding Officer of the Quincy Corps of the Salvation Army, Captain James Labossiere and his wife, Mrs. Captain Patricia Labossiere, will leave their post at the Quincy Corps and accept new positions in Pittsburgh, Pa.

A reception will be given in their honor Sunday at 6 p.m., following the evening service at the branch office, 6 Baxter St., Quincy Point.

The Labossieres, both in their mid-30's, will continue to focus their efforts on youth service as they will be working with the Divisional Youth Leader in the western part of Pennsylvania. They will also spend some time working at Camp Allegheny in Ellwood, outside of Pittsburgh.

Originally from Fall River, Captain Labossiere attended the Salvation Army Officers Training School in Suffern, N.Y. Upon completion of this program, he served two years in Newburyport and three years in Pittsfield before coming to Quincy four years ago.

He is currently a student at Eastern Nazarene College.

Labossiere knew long ago that he would make a career with the Salvation Army. Influenced by a high school friend's father, who was the Commanding Officer, or Pastor, of the Fall River branch of the Corps, Labossiere said he liked the focus placed on youth programs.

"The Army has historically had a strong youth program giving youths many positive things to do," said Labossiere.

In his new role as Divisional Youth and Candidates Secretary, he will serve as a mentor for those youths interested in further service in the Corps.

His wife will direct the Christian Education and Corp Cadet Center as well as lead youth Bible study programs.

Labossiere and his wife, a Danvers native, first met each other at Camp Wonderland in Sharon, a summer camp run by the Salvation Army. Both were employed as counselors. They are parents of two sons, David, seven, and Daniel, almost four.

"Our four years in Quincy have been very exciting. We've seen our church grow numerically and spiritually," he said, "We had one son born here; yes, it's been a very good stay."

"I would like to express my thanks to the community for their support, financial and otherwise. Public support has been very generous," said Labossiere.

Labossiere was especially thankful of Christmas donations and financial contributions made during times of natural disaster, especially in light of the recent sluggish economy.

Memorial Congregational

Sunday Morning worship will begin at 10 a.m. at Memorial Congregational Church of Atlantic, Sagamore St. and Newbury Ave. Rev. Susanna Griefen will preach on, "We Are A Covenant People." Liturgist will be Barbara Gilliland. Greeters will be Marge Crowell, Jessie Wilkinson and Mona Duncan. A coffee hour will follow the service.

ber Linda Stice.

Reached by telephone Tuesday, Stice said she too was happy to hear the news.

"I'm pleased that the form of governance that the committee (task force) recommended will come to pass," she said. "I think it's a real step forward for the college."

Stice added that "the next step is to put together a really good board of trustees."

Both Morrissey and Mariano expressed what Morrissey termed "lukewarm" support of the college governance issue. Quincy College is currently governed by the School Committee, and both men said they think the committee has done a good job of overseeing the college.

However, since the NEASC has ruled that the college must change its governance system or face losing its accreditation, they gave that petition their full support since it was passed by the City Council in March.

"We felt the School Committee was doing a good job with the college, but the Legislature can't amend a home-rule petition," said Morrissey.

"If we're going to do it, I'm anxious to get it done as soon as possible," said Mariano, who also serves on the School Committee.

Both Morrissey and Mariano, however, expressed strong support of the other petition, which would allow the city to enter into a lease agreement of up to 50 years with Quarry Hills Associates, a group that includes Quincy developer Peter O'Connell and former Mayor Walter Hannan. The agreement calls for the golf course-recreation complex to be maintained the developers but owned by the city, which would be guaranteed 10 percent or between $100,000 and $200,000 from the profits of the 18-hole golf course and rental of function facilities.

Among the highlights of the recreational facility would be baseball, softball and soccer fields as well as walking trails.

"The project at the landfill is a winner all around, and great for the City of Quincy," said Mariano.

"I think the golf course opportunity is a great one for the city," said Morrissey. He added that the developers are currently negotiating with officials connected with Boston's Central Artery "Big Dig" Project to secure fill for the landfill site and were scheduled to meet with them Tuesday.

Morrissey said he would be "shocked" if either petition were not signed by the governor.

"I don't foresee any problems," he said.

Morrissey also noted that the public is still welcome to contact the governor's office regarding the petitions but must do so before he gives them his approval.

Council Votes Against Proposed Residency Law

best for them," he said. "This proposal will do nothing but disrupt the lives of hard-working people who are trying to make Quincy a better place to live."

Dave Doherty, president of the Quincy Patrolmen's Association said the proposed ordinance would place an "unreasonable burden" on the city's police department.

"It will hamper the department's ability to hire the best and the brightest," said Doherty.

Nancy Cross, business agent for District 925, the city's secretarial-clerical union, listed several reasons why the union thought the proposal was unfair, including the fact that it "limits the qualified (job) applicant pool."

"It also leads to crowding," she said. Ann McLaughlin, director of the Thomas Crane Public Library, cited affirmative action and the attracting of minority employees, as well as family hardships, as reasons not to pass a residency requirement ordinance. She added, however, that first and foremost among her concerns was the fact that the library might not be able to find an employee that meets its "professional requirements" in the city.

"Residency could be a recommendation, but I don't think it should be a mandate," said McLaughlin. Thomas Walsh, president of the Quincy Education Association (teachers' union) and a former Quincy resident who said he also left the city for monetary reasons, voiced similar sentiments.

"I don't think a residency requirement will improve anything in this city," he said.

Quincy College, which is represented by the QEA, and Quincy Hospital were the only two city departments exempted from the proposed law. The Quincy School Department (Grades K-12) was not exempted.

Mayor James Sheets and other officials had suggested that the hospital and college be exempted should such a law be passed, saying that those two departments require "specialized" employees such as doctors and professors that might not always be readily found in Quincy.

However, those departments already have a majority of employees that live outside of Quincy.

Chretien said he gave the proposal a lot of thought but ultimately decided to vote against it. Two examples of why residency requirement does not work, he said, are the cities of Boston and Brockton.

"I think of them as something we don't want to become," said Chretien. Fabrizio said he knew Kolson "meant well in his heart" when he proposed the law, but added that it inevitably had an "unfairness" about it because of the departments that were exempted.

"And the gist of it gets lost because of some of the legal complications," he said.

Houghs Neck Center Planning Bus Trip

The Houghs Neck Community Center will sponsor a bus trip Thursday, June 30, to the Hilltop Steakhouse in Saugus.

According to Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger, Quincy Hospital only has 195 employees—or 41 percent of its staff—that live in Quincy as opposed to 282 or 59 percent that are non-residents. Quincy College has 529 employees, or 49 percent, that are residents as opposed to 556 employees or 51 percent that live outside of the city.

In the city's other departments, 493 employees or 61 percent live in Quincy while only 321 or 39 percent are non-residents, according to Yaeger. She added that the numbers listed above were compiled in February of this year.

In addition to those who spoke against the proposal, a number of protesters packed City Hall Monday night. Some were there to protest the residency proposal, while others were there to voice opposition to an unrelated subject—a proposal by a Hingham developer to build a Wal-Mart store near The Falls condominium complex in Quincy Point.

Most councillors agreed with those who spoke against the proposed law. Cahill said he felt he had to vote in opposition, since he voted against a similar proposal several years ago by a building and trade union that wanted to hire Quincy workers over non-residents.

Cahill said another reason he opposed the residency requirement was because he felt it was an example of government officials "overstepping our bounds," adding that one of the few freedoms that government has left its citizens is the right to live where they choose.

"We would all like all employees to live in the city, but obviously not everybody can," said Cahill.

Chretien said he gave the proposal a lot of thought but ultimately decided to vote against it. Two examples of why residency requirement does not work, he said, are the cities of Boston and Brockton.

"I think of them as something we don't want to become," said Chretien. Fabrizio said he knew Kolson "meant well in his heart" when he proposed the law, but added that it inevitably had an "unfairness" about it because of the departments that were exempted.

"And the gist of it gets lost because of some of the legal complications," he said.

Ayers agreed.

"I appreciate what you're (Kolson) trying to do here, but where do you stop your exemptions?," said Ayers.

LaRaia said he saw "no great windfall" for the city if the law were passed.

"And without any great windfall, I see more problems than solving the so-called problems," he said.

Phelan noted that when the law was first proposed, he "spoke in favor of the spirit of the ordinance," but said he could not support it as a mandate. He expressed concern that a Quincy resident who took a Civil Service test might be given a job over a non-resident with a higher score.

"I do feel there should be some local preference hiring, but I think that happens anyway," said Phelan.

Cheney, however, said that was one of the reasons he supported the ordinance, saying preferential hiring is practiced in the police, fire and public works departments. He added that one of the reasons the law was originally proposed was in response to people who expressed frustration over losing jobs to Quincy residents who quickly moved out of the city after being hired.

"It's very frustrating for those people, and the intent of the ordinance was sincere," he said. "There's something wrong with the system if people are allowed to be hired and then move out."

Cheney added that it is wrong for members of the License Board and other city employees to "make policy" in Quincy if they are non-residents.

Kolson, for his part, said he indeed introduced the ordinance because the frustration of others and said he hoped it would be a help to the city in the future.

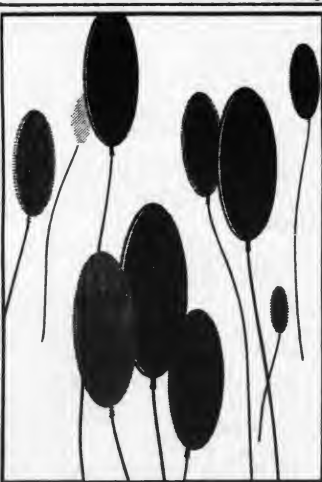

"I was not looking at this ordinance as something of the now," he said.

He added that debate over such issues is healthy both for the council and the city itself.

"In my opinion, when you stop bringing up issues, that's when you get in trouble," he said.

Kolson said after the meeting he had no plans to introduce an amended or similar proposal in the future because of the lack of support on the council.

Public Hearings June 29 On Pneumatic Scale Site

Two public hearings regarding Stop & Shop's request for a permit to build on the Pneumatic Scale site in North Quincy will be held Wednesday, June 29 at 7 and 7:35 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The two hearings will be held jointly by the City Council and the Planning Board. Because the site is zoned Planned Unit Development (PUD), Stop & Shop needs both a favorable recommendation from the Planning Board and a 2/3 vote of the City Council.

The City Council is the special permit granting authority over any site that is zoned PUD.

Ward 3 Councilor Lawrence Chretien said the first hearing will concern Stop & Shop's request to build a store at the Pneumatic Scale site, while the second will consider the supermarket's related request to rezone a nearby city-owned piece of land from Industrial "B" zoning to PUD.

Chretien said the two hearings will overlap one another, since essentially they are related to the same project.

In addition, a neighborhood meeting co-sponsored by Chretien and the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association will be held Thursday, June 23 at 7 p.m. in the gymnasium of the Montclair Elementary School, 8 Belmont St.

Pneumatic Scale plans to vacate its longtime Newport Avenue site in the near future. City officials remain hopeful, however, that the company will remain in Quincy.

Procter & Gamble Community Meeting June 28

A proposal to revamp the Procter & Gamble plant in Quincy Point to a diesel fuel additives manufacturing facility will be discussed at a community meeting Tuesday, June 28 at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall annex, 1305 Hancock St.

The meeting has been scheduled by Council President Michael Cheney, Ward 2 Councilor Ted DeCristofaro and Ward 1 Councilor Peter Kolson. The meeting place was originally the Council Chamber but it was moved because of a scheduling conflict.

The councilors said it is in the best interest of residents living near the plant to attend the meeting. The purpose of the meeting is to provide accurate information regarding the proposed new owners and their operation.

Twin Rivers is proposing to revamp the facility for the purpose of making environmentally safe diesel fuel additives.

Residents will be able to ask questions at the meeting. The councilors said they have received a number of telephone calls at the council office regarding the proposal.

James Ricci of Twin Rivers will attend the meeting and answer questions.

Jordan Marsh Warehouse To Be Bought By MDC

The Metropolitan District Commission announced Monday that it is close to purchasing the Jordan Marsh warehouse in Squantum as part of a waterfront protection program for the Neponset River estuary.

MDC Commissioner Ilyas Bhatti said the warehouse is a "high priority" for the MDC but added that a final price has not been set and there is no timetable for the sale.

Bhatti said the MDC has not yet decided what it will do with the warehouse, which closed in 1991. Possibilities include razing it or leasing it, he said.

The MDC's announcement surprised city officials, who have been working for months to find a tenant for the warehouse. Officials said this week they thought the MDC was only interested in purchasing chasing the marshland around the warehouse, rather than the actual building.

Charles D'Apris, executive director of Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation said he recently set up a meeting to make sure any MDC purchase would not jeopardize Quincy's efforts to create jobs at the vacant warehouse. Among those attending that meeting and officials from the MDC and Federated Department Stores, which owns the property.

When Federal closed the warehouse, about 700 workers were left unemployed. D'Apris said Gov. William Weld is committed to the creation of jobs and the city wants to make sure the MDC shares that commitment.

The MDC, which manages parks, highways and riverfront areas throughout Greater Boston, has been purchasing smaller parcels of land in Squantum in order to create a recreation area for pedestrians, cyclists and boaters. It recently bought property just north of the warehouse.

Bhatti said that land may be turned into a duck hunting preserve and compared the proposed park to the parkland that runs along the Charles River from Boston to Watertown.

The size of the Jordan Marsh warehouse, which is large enough to contain two football fields, has made it difficult for city officials to find a tenant. One developer proposed converting the warehouse to a $100 million convention center, but city officials and Squantum residents opposed the plan.

Reebok International Ltd. agreed earlier this year to temporarily lease space in the warehouse.

Parking Concerns Raised

Marina Bay Restaurant Liquor License Expanded

By LISA CONNELL
License Board officials granted a request Tuesday by Marina Bay restaurant Kristie

Henriksen of Siro's for an extension of her common victualer-all alcoholic beverage license at 333 Victory Rd. which also prompted discussion about parking problems in the waterfront complex and development of the area as a whole.

Henriksen's request, unanimously approved, will result in an additional 52 seats inside and 44 seats outside the restaurant. Entire seating capacity in Siro's will be approximately 216 seats.

Robert Fleming, counsel for Henriksen, told the board Henriksen will take over the existing Seaside Grille restaurant, directly adjacent to Siro's.

Fleming said it was a fortunate coincidence that Henriksen's plans to enlarge Siro's facilities, spurred on by the encouragement and dining demands of her patrons, came at the same time management from the Seaside Grille approached Henriksen about taking over their site.

It was also discovered, during the course of discussion, that a valet service, worked out between Richard Economou, director of development for Marina Bay Management, Inc. and the owners of the boardwalk shops, as a means of alleviating parking problems in the complex, did not receive a proper permit from the police department.

City clerk and Licensing Board Chairman
Joseph Shea and Board
Vice Chairman and Building Inspector
Matthias Mulvey, said they would like to see the detailed, written specifics of this agreement.

Shea said he had received a complaint by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Grant, of 2001 Marina Bay, who said they had nearly been run down by the valet vehicle. Ward 6
City Councillor Bruce Ayers told the board he had received several complaints about the valet service.

Fleming said he was certain that Economou was unaware of any problems with the valet service.

Ayers and former City Solicitor Douglas Randall, a trustee of the Marina

Bay Point condominium, are both in support of Henriksen's plans, but agree that the parking situation must be resolved.

"We're all in favor of success and we don't want to be obstructionists but we need to monitor the parking," said Randall.

"I support the transfer of the license, but we have to address the parking. They [Marina Bay visitors] all have to leave by the same exit; they all go around the circle in the middle of Victory Rd. I suggest the police department assign a cruiser to be at the circle on Victory Rd. in order to discourage the speeders," said Randall.

Four serious accidents have occurred in that area, according to Randall, who compared vehicular activity in that particular area to a drag strip.

Ayers said that nearby residents are in favor of good development, such as Henriksen's plans for Siro's, but parking issues in the Marina Bay area continue to be a prime concern.

Ayers has asked Jack Gillon, city traffic engineer, to review parking flow and patterns within the complex. Ayers also said he was concerned about the potential future number of liquor licenses within the complex.

According to Shea, the License Board, in the very near future, will carefully examine issues related to the Marina Bay complex.

Monument To Serve As Lasting Reminder Of Soldiers' Sacrifice

Quincy's Korean War Dead Remembered At Memorial Groundbreaking

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Although it's been nearly 41 years since the conclusion of the Korean War, the 38 soldiers from Quincy who lost their lives in that war never had a memorial dedicated in their memory.

That, however, will soon change, thanks to a group of dedicated volunteers who believe a monument is long overdue.

The volunteers, who have formed the Quincy Korean War Memorial Committee, and the community took the first steps toward erecting a monument with a groundbreaking ceremony Saturday at Hancock St. and Southern Artery adjacent to Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The ceremony, which attracted federal, state and local officials as well as numerous other invited guests, took place at the site where a temporary Korean War Memorial has been set up.

The temporary structure will serve as a precursor to the official memorial the Quincy Korean War Memorial Committee hopes to dedicate on June 25, 1995 - the 45th anniversary of the United States' entry into the Korean War.

The sign standing now will be replaced by a memorial standing 7 feet 4 inches high, 3 feet 6 inches wide and nearly 17 feet long at the base.

The top portion and the bases of the memorial will be built of polished black granite along with a hand-cut carving of an eagle, the City of Quincy seal and 23-karat gold lettering.

On both sides of the center of the monument will be two large granite tablets. There the names of the 38 Korean War veterans from Quincy who gave their lives will be inscribed in 23-karat gold lettering.

The ceremony brought together the families of the fallen veterans and those who gathered to commemorate their bravery and courage in the face of danger.

The groundbreaking ceremony, held at the intersection of Hancock St. and Southern Artery adjacent to the Veterans'

Memorial Stadium, included representatives from Korea who attended the ceremony to help dedicate the memorial to the soldiers who fought for their country's freedom over 40 years ago.

Myung-Hwan Tu, the minister of the Republic of Korea to the United Nations, spoke about how grateful the Koreans are for what the American soldiers did for them and how they will never be forgotten by those they touched.

"We pay tribute today to the immense courage that ensured the survival of

Forms At City Hall, Crane Libraries Voter Registration By Mail Starts Friday

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Unregistered voters in Quincy will not have to go to City Hall to register to vote beginning Friday.

That's when the state's version of the federally-mandated "Motor-Voter" bill will become law. The bill calls for sweeping changes in voter registration procedures on July 1, 1994, and additional provisions will take effect July 1, 1995.

Starting tomorrow (Friday), there will be voter registration by mail in Massachusetts. The mail-in voter registration forms, printed by the Secretary of State's office, are available in Quincy at the City Clerk's office located in the James R. McIntyre Government Center (Old City Hall) and the Thomas Crane Public Library branches.

Citizens will be able to register to vote by filling out this form, signing it under the penalties of perjury, and mailing it or delivering it to Quincy City Hall or the state's Election Office.

Once the form is received, the clerk's office or the state election office will send the voter a notice acknowledging receipt, and add the person's name to the voting list.

Voters can also use the form to change their name and/or address; as well as join a party, change from one party to another, or leave a party.

To register to vote in Massachusetts, one must be a U.S. citizen; be a Massachusetts resident; and be at least 18 years old on or before the next election. The next election is the state primary which will be held Tuesday, Sept. 20. The general election is Tuesday, Nov. 8.

The forms will be made available at other locations next year on July 1, including the Registry of Motor Vehicles and designated state agencies.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said the new law should increase electoral participation locally and state-wide because it makes registering to vote easier and more convenient.

For example, one person can pick up forms for other people. Those people can fill-out the form and mail it or hand deliver it to City Hall. Before the law, a person had to register at an

LOOKING AT THE sign outside the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center on Brooks Avenue in South Quincy are Mario Ferrazzi, a Brooks Avenue resident for 43 years (left) and Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio. Some South Quincy residents complained about the sign, saying the name of the former Quincy mayor is too small.

Name Of Former Mayor To Be Put On School Building

Early Childhood Center Sign Controversy Resolved

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A recent controversy over the sign in front of the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center on Brooks Avenue in South Quincy appears to have been resolved.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio and School Supt. Eugene Creedon said the name of the late Della Chiesa will be more prominently displayed on the building itself.

Fabrizio said details of how that will be accomplished have not yet been worked out, but added that the name will be on the building as soon as possible.

South Quincy residents

recently complained about the new sign in front of the building, which features Della Chiesa's name in print one-third the size of the words "Early Childhood Center" below it. Della Chiesa, a plumber by trade and native of South Quincy, served Quincy 22 years as mayor, city councillor and state representative.

The names of Della Chiesa and former First Lady Abigail Adams had been nominated as potential names for the new $2.2 million school, which was built recently to relieve overcrowding at the Lincoln-Hancock School. Many South Quincy residents backed the Della Chiesa name, and the School Committee voted 7-0 to name the childhood center after the former mayor.

Some residents, however, and certain officials—including Creedon—had supported the Abigail Adams name, and some who saw the new sign suggested that Della Chiesa's name was intentionally made smaller as a revenge of sorts.

Creedon, for one, was taken aback by such suggestions. He said that Dennis Carini, principal of the school, modeled the sign after one he saw in front of a school in Hanover simply because he liked the design.

Creedon admitted that gave his own approval to the design, not realizing that Della Chiesa's name would appear so small—"I'm sorry I missed that," he said—but said that it was an innocent oversight.

"In no way do we want to be offensive to the memory of Mayor Della Chiesa," he said. "I hope that we can do what is appropriate (to resolve the situation)."

Creedon said he would never have intentionally tried to slight Della Chiesa or the residents of South Quincy.

"It would be hurtful for me to think that people believe I'm that type of person," he said. "That's not part of my personality."

Fabrizio said "about seven" South Quincy residents complained to him about the sign and he was glad that he and the superintendent were able to address their concerns in a timely manner.

"I'm glad we've seen a quick resolve," he said.

Alba Tocci, a resident of nearby Rodman Street, was one of the residents who backed the Della Chiesa name for the school and one of those who called Fabrizio to complain about the sign. She said she and her neighbors really don't have a problem with the sign itself, but with the fact that Della Chiesa's name has not been put on the school building.

"It's a pretty sign, but the name of the school should be on the school itself," she said. "To put Amelio Della Chiesa's name in such small print is wrong."

She said she was happy to hear officials were acting quickly to address residents' concerns.

"I'm glad that it was brought to light," she said. "It would be wonderful if they took care of it in the very near future."

Fabrizio said he understood the neighborhood's feelings.

To Determine Impact On Condo Complex City Plans New Study On Proposed Wal-Mart

City officials are planning an economic impact study to determine how the construction of a proposed Wal-Mart store in Quincy Point would affect real estate values at the nearby condominium complex known as The Falls.

The study, which will be done through the Quincy Planning Department, will follow two previous studies on the project. One was contracted by Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation, while the other was funded by Atlantic Development Corp., the company behind the Wal-Mart project.

The city is currently soliciting proposals from qualified firms to conduct the study. RFP (request for proposal) packages can be obtained from the Planning Department at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center or by calling 376-1368. Proposals must be submitted to the department no later than Friday, July 8 at 4:30 p.m.

City Council President Michael Cheney said he proposed the new study so that a more in-depth, unit-by-unit look can be taken at how the proposed Wal-Mart will affect real estate values at The Falls.

"The approach needs to be more toward each individual unit rather than a more broad-brushed approach," he said.

Cheney said he has also been told by residents of The Falls that they were initially given the impression that further development at the Quincy Point site would be residential, rather than commercial, when they chose to live at the condominium complex.

Some residents of The Falls—including a group that has banded together and dubbed itself "We're Against The Wal"—have also suggested that the Atlantic Development-funded study was biased.

Mayor James Sheets said he thinks a city-funded study is a good solution.

"I think it's a good idea, sure," said the mayor. "People want assurances about the project."

Sheets said the new study will cost approximately $30,000 and will be paid for out of the city's federally-funded Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) budget.

Sylvia Mignon, one of the leaders of We're Against the Wal, said the group was happy to learn 900 More Bricks Available For 'Walk Of Names'

The "Walk of Names" project in front of New City Hall Annex continues to grow.

Mayor James Sheets announced Tuesday that the beautification project has room for about 900 more personalized bricks to be set around the fountain that will serve as its centerpiece.

The project, which includes the fountain, light-poles, and benches, will be highlighted by the "Walk of Names" of dark red, personalized bricks. Sheets has estimated the total cost of the project, which is being funded solely through private donations and largely through brick sales, at $450,000, with the fountain alone costing $250,000.

The mayor said he originally thought the project would be completed around Flag Day, but officials are now planning for it to be sometime in mid-July. A special "grand opening" type of ceremony will be held to mark the event, he said.

Sheets said sales totals for the bricks, which cost $50 apiece, currently total around 3,000. He said the reason extra bricks can now be sold is because the original design of the fountain was changed last winter, allowing for more brick space.

The fountain is being built by Monti A. Granite Co. Inc. of South Quincy, while P.A. Landers Co. of Hanover is handling the rest of the project, Sheets said.

He added that those interested in purchasing a brick or bricks is asked to call P.R. Etc. at 328-4711.

Beach Water Sampling Begins

The Quincy Health Department will begin its summer water sampling program Tuesday, June 28, announces Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallabue.

Water samples will be collected every Tuesday thereafter, until Sept. 6, at 10 local beaches, one to two hours before high tide.

Results will be analyzed for fecal coliform counts by a certified private laboratory and will be made available to the media throughout the summer.

The MDC will collect and analyze water samples at four locations along Wollaston Beach. Samples will be obtained on Wednesday and will be reported to beach managers and the Quincy Health Department by Friday of each week.

Quincy, like most coastal communities in the South Shore area, utilizes a standard of 200 or greater fecal coliform colonies as an indication of health risk. Beaches with counts of 180 or greater will be resampled.

Beaches with counts of 200 or greater will be posted with signs warning the beach is unacceptable for swimming. Such beaches are considered unsafe for swimming and the signs will remain in place until water samples show fecal coliform counts below 180.

For more information on the testing program, call 376-1270.

Your Social Security Number

By CAROL L. BOYLE

Your Social Security number is the one number that belongs to you for the rest of your life.

Phone numbers and license plates may change, but your Social Security number? It always stays the same.

The reason you need a Social Security number is simple: By knowing how much you've contributed to the system during your working years, we can determine the amount of your benefits when you retire or if you become disabled.

But it's no longer just employers who ask for your Social Security number. The law now requires parents of guardians to list the Social Security numbers of dependents on federal income tax returns. At the blood bank, you are asked to recite your number when you donate, and you may be asked for it when paying for groceries or buying clothes or other merchandise by check.

However, while other organizations may use your number for their own record-keeping purposes, they don't have access to your Social Security records. Your files are held in the strictest confidence.

Even so, it's important to protect your Social Security number and make sure your earnings record is accurate and not confused with another "account holder." Here's what you can do:

- Protect your Social Security card by keeping it with your other important papers and documents.

- When a private business or organization requests your number, ask why they need it. You're not required to give it out, but you may not get their product or service if you don't.

- Make sure your earnings record is accurate and up-to-date by sending for a free record of your earnings every three years.

For more information, call Social Security's toll-free number 1-800-772-1213 Monday through Friday between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

"DOCTOR, MY BACK IS KILLING ME!"

Back pain is one of the most common physical complaints of adult Americans. That is partly why when back pain strikes, it can be difficult to tell whether you should just tough it out on your own or call the doctor at once. Don't hesitate to contact a physician whenever you experience severe or persistent back pain, but in general, a phone call is in order if: 1) back pain is the immediate result of an injury, fall, or auto accident; 2) the pain is accompanied by weakness or tingling in arms or legs; 3) a change in bladder or bowel function also occurs; 4) the pain hangs on for several weeks or starts getting worse; 5) the pain is bad enough to wake you from sleep or make normal daily activities difficult to perform. P.S. Prevention is often the key to beating back pain. Ask your doctor about exercises and other measures that can help.

If you are experiencing any of the symptoms described above, do not hesitate to seek prompt medical attention. If you have further questions about this, or about how you can help prevent heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We specialize in the treatment of heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. Office hours are by appointment, and our comfortable office is located at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. And Now... 'Can-say'

We pronounce it Quin-zee. Our sister city, Quincy, Ill. says no, it's Quincee. So do the other dozen or so Quincys in the U.S.

And now France joins the great debate.

Former Senator Paul Harold recently received the William O'Connell Award at the Quincy Historical Society's annual meeting and celebrated the occasion by treating those present to Quincy wine.

Harold arranged to have two cases of the namesake Quincy wine imported from the Loire Valley in France where the Quincy vineyards are located.

"The name Quincy is actually French, or more properly, Norman," said Harold as he and those attending sipped the wine.

Over there, he said, they don't pronounce it Quincee. They don't pronounce it Quincee. They pronounce it—are you ready—Can-say.

But here, in our Quincy, we will go right on pronouncing it Quin-zee as it has been pronounced since Colonial days.

Our Quincy—the first of all the Quincys—was named for Col. John Quincy, great grandfather of President John Quincy Adams.

The Quincy family pronounced it Quin-zee. Not Quincee or Can-say.

That should end the argument but it will go right on.

J. HAROLD

MORE HONORS FOR the Harold family. Paul's father, Joe, was recently re-elected state adjutant of the Disabled American Veterans. Which means he is now starting his 44th year as adjutant. (They obviously know a good man when they see one.)

A RECENT ITEM here noting there are thousands of names on the Vietnam War Memorial in Washington, D.C. and finding a particular one is not easy, brought a response from a reader who disagrees.

"On the contrary, it is easy to locate the name of a loved one, relative, friend or comrade on the wall of the Memorial, writes Patricia McLean of Branch St., Quincy.

And, she goes on to explain:

When I visited Washington D.C. in 1992 with a group of students from St. Bridget's School in Abington, we were advised to check with personnel stationed in a kiosk (there may be more than one) located near the memorial.

"Every name and location is on computer and all you need is the spelling of the name. They enter it in their computer and give you a printout giving the panel and the row where that name is located on the wall.

"In addition, they will give you a slip of paper and lend you a charcoal to allow you to make a rubbing of the name. Locating the name on the wall took merely a few minutes and both the printout and the rubbing make a very special souvenirs to take home.

"Rather than discouraging visitors looking for the name of someone special on the memorial, I would urge them to 'check the computer.'

"It was a memorable and moving moment for my family and myself when we located the name of a childhood friend."

Thank you, Patricia. You're the first one to mention the computer. Hope anyone planning a trip to Washington and a stop at the Memorial will keep the existence of the computer in mind.

AT LEAST THREE Quincy Youth Soccer League players were in evidence at the Korea-Bolivia World Cup soccer match at Foxboro the other night.

The league's Mike Linnane reports youngsters were spotted in the crowd wearing the jerseys of the Quincy Sun, Paul Harold Club and Harry's Seafood & Pizza teams.

Soccer is now the fastest growing sport in popularity and participation as indicated by all the interest in the World Cup matches.

And further evidence locally: Linnane reports that the Quincy Youth Soccer League will have 85 teams this fall—up from 67—with close to 1,200 youngsters playing.

Who knows, maybe there's a future World Cup star among them.

AN ARNOLD PALMER Tony Agnitti is not. The Quincy insurance agent is taking some good natured ribbing since the Quincy Kiwanis Club's golf tournament at the Pembroke Golf Club. Par for the course is 71 and he came in with a 130—high man for the day. (Tony, maybe you should try basketball).

Readers Forum

Developer Says Wal-Mart Would Have Positive Impact

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to correct the misinformation that was in a letter in the Quincy Readers Forum in the June 23 Quincy Sun. The letter, signed by the manager of Woolworth's and a few residents of The Falls, included many inaccuracies that I would like to address.

The decline of retail activity in Quincy started when the anchor stores, which create the draw of customers, began to leave the city. This trend has continued to the point where RKG Associates Inc., commissioned by Quincy 2000, has determined that "The major competitive problem facing Quincy retailers today is the fact that local residents are making a major share of their retail purchases outside of the city." Quincy residents leave the city and spend well over $100 million annually on retail goods in other communities.

Clearly, by bringing anchor stores back into the city, customers will shop locally, providing a benefit to all local merchants. The trend of continually losing retail sales to other communities will be reversed and Quincy can once again start to build a vibrant retail environment. Currently, there are very few stores in Quincy that provide the type of retail goods that will be available at Wal-Mart. Most businesses in Quincy are looking forward to a major discount retail store in the city. The potential impact to existing Quincy retail businesses is minimal; RKG has estimated it to be approximately 4 percent on existing sales for a period not to exceed three years. As RKG has stated,

"The primary competition for the proposed shopping center is located outside the city limits."

From an unemployment standpoint, the shopping center as a whole will have a significant net increase in retail jobs. It has been suggested that there might be a loss in jobs. Others have suggested that the Quincy 2000 study shows only 130 new jobs as compared to our estimates of approximately 500 new jobs. The figure of 130 new jobs accounts only for one of the potential three retailers that will locate at Granite Crossing. The RKG report, commissioned by Quincy 2000, clearly states that the net increase in jobs as a result of Granite Crossing is 520 to 546 permanent jobs. In the current economy, over 500 permanent jobs will have a very positive impact on Quincy.

For the last several months, I have met with and listened to the residents who live near the site. I have distributed information, done detailed presentations, and walked the neighborhoods in order to solicit feedback about the project. As a result, we have written agreements being drafted to work with the condominium associations at The Falls and South Landing. These agreements are supported by a majority of the residents at each complex and are a result of months of discussions with them. While some Falls residents did speak against the project, the vast majority continue to give us positive feedback. At the City Council public hearing the supporters of the project far outnumbered the opposition group.

According to the detailed study by Hummelman Appraisal and Consulting Company, "There appears to be no negative effect on condominium prices or apartment rents from close proximity to well-planned and well-maintained retail development." There are numerous examples in the Boston area to support this information.

While I do not work for Wal-Mart and cannot speak for them, I do want to say that they have been consistently listed as one of the best 100 companies to work for in America. They are the only retail chain on the list and one of the few companies employing workers in Massachusetts on the list. Wal-Mart is in hundreds of communities across this country including close to 50 in New England. Their jobs, tax revenue and convenient shopping are a great addition to those communities and I am confident Wal-Mart and the other stores at Granite Crossing will have a very positive impact on Quincy.

I look forward to working with Quincy officials, business leaders and residents to build a shopping center that will be a source of jobs, revenue and pride for Quincy.

Donald J. MacKinnon
President, Atlantic Development Corp.

Wal-Mart And Santa Claus

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

If something is repeated loud enough and long enough it takes on the aura of gospel truth.

The latest song is Wal-Mart. Wal-Mart. We want Wal-Mart. We are told we want Wal-Mart because:

It will generate 4.6 million dollars in taxes over 10 years.

It will create jobs.

It will create spin-off for downtown Quincy.

It will not impact Quincy Center business.

Wal-Mart will furnish money for Quincy 2000 job for one year.

It will personally pay to raise the Child World site for new business.

They will clean up the city's parking areas.

They will take care of the Falls' snow removal, landscaping, etc.

They will work with downtown retailers to craft marketing strategies. And you thought there was no Santa Claus!

How much tax will be lost if Bradlees closes and maybe Walgreens and oh no, Woolworth's, our last nostalgic store left.

It will create jobs at Wal-Mart, but what about the ones lost? I don't have a computer, but somehow everything seems to come up "tilt."

It will create "spin-off" for downtown Quincy. Just what is that?

How can downtown Quincy access Wal-Mart? Is Wal-Mart going to run a free shuttle there?

It will not impact Quincy Center business. Now, that is the closest statement to the truth. We got Burgin Parkway and it is now a breeze to get to South Shore Plaza. I don't see to much traffic going north. We lost Sears and Remick's and Kincaid is still a hole in the ground. We got Home Depot. They are out of the way and don't really create much of a problem. You can walk through its canyons of materials and once in a

Rain Fails To Dampen July 4 Fete

Thunder and lightning replaced fireworks displays at the climax of Quincy's Fourth of July weekend but before the rains came more than 100,000 people turned out to watch the bonfire in Merrymount Park sponsored by Quincy Legion Post.

The holiday celebration in Squantum began with the flag-raising followed by a salute to war dead at the World War I and II monuments. The Rev. Francis J. Murphy of Star of The Sea Church delivered the invocation and the Rev. Walter B. Lounsbury of the First Church the benediction.

There were incidents of illegal fireworks despite the warning from the Massachusetts Safety Council that "it is a violation of state law to discharge of 'bootleg' fireworks will be the cause of many casualties."

A stray flare, believed to have been fired by boys, ignited the roof of the home of Mrs. Clara West of 86 Means Ave., Houghs Neck, but the damage was slight.

Vincent Moscardelli and Clifford Marshall, both 10 and both of Merrymount, and Charlotte Boyle, 11, of Houghs Neck, won the 25-yard swim events during the Fourth of July field day at Merrymount Beach.

Joanne Morley, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Morley of 27 Shelton Rd. was named "Miss Adams Shore" at the holiday festival in the Adams Shore Clubhouse.

RESIGNATIONS THREATENED

All five members of the City Hospital Board of Managers, led by Chairman William J. Martin, threatened to resign if the City Council passes pending ordinance amendments that would shift the balance of power from the board to the medical staff of the hospital.

"I feel there would be no reason for a board to exist. A group should not make its own rules," said member Esther C. Boling, who was joined by Howard Deacon, Augustus E. Settimelli and George W. Arbuckle.

Barbecuing Seafood

Even though we decided to have our July 4th celebration a week after the Fourth, we are having a small group in for barbecued seafood with chicken on that day. There may not even be a hot dog or hamburger in sight!

This is so easy, you just have to have separate skewers for everyone and layer them accordingly. I fix them all ahead of time. I use cut up chicken breast in about the same size as a large shrimp or scallop for even cooking.

Barbecuing Seafood With Chicken

This recipe feeds 6 (each skewer will have two shrimp (or scallops) and one piece of chicken or vice versa.)

- 12 large shrimp or scallops
- 1 large chicken breast cut in in small pieces

- 1 green pepper (cut in strips)
- 1 red pepper (cut in strips)
- 6 cherry tomatoes

Olive oil and garlic for marinade
Place the chicken in a bowl and put olive oil and garlic to marinade. I also do the same for the peppers and the cherry tomatoes.

On a skewer first put the red pepper, the chicken, the green pepper, two shrimp, the cherry tomato ending with a piece of green and red pepper.

I usually place the skewers on the grill at medium temperature and they cook up in five or six minutes. Serve with tossed or potato salad.

Happy Holiday!

Quincy's Uncle Sam Rounseville

A Real Live Yankee Doodle Dandy

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Q. After being in business for so many years, what made you decide to become Uncle Sam?

A. Well, I started doing fund-raising for the state of Massachusetts for the Hero's Welcome Fund back a little over three years ago. I was the project chairman, and I started promoting through the TV and the radio telethons. And I started out by using Uncle Sam to promote the first one we had, which was on (Boston radio station) WRKO, and it got to be such an easy way of getting corporate sponsors and getting attention for all the events we were doing. And after being in that for three or four months, we ended up with a big parade in Taunton, and I went to march in the parade, and they told me I'd have to go back and march with Ronald McDonald.

Well, I said to myself, "What's the symbol of America, Ronald McDonald or Uncle Sam?" So I decided at that point that I was going to change my name and promote America for the rest of my life.

Q. Were you very patriotic when you were younger?

A. No, not really. I served my country in 1958 in the Coast Guard and I'm a veteran. But it just lit a spark in me, the different things that I'm seeing in America in talking to people. You don't realize how many patriotic people there are in this country until you start walking around dressed as Uncle Sam. I can talk to people a lot easier than someone else could. I walk up to somebody and they want to open up to me, whereas someone else might have a problem sometimes when people don't want to talk to them.

Q. Do you have any favorite patriotic songs?

A. Oh, yeah. I have my own song ("My Name Is Uncle Sam, Friends") that I always sing, and I love "America the Beautiful." I always sing that. I wish that were our national anthem, because I have a hard time singing our national anthem—I can't hit all those notes.

Q. What about your song? Did you write that yourself?

A. No, all of my songs have been written by a good friend, Rev. Alicia Corea, one of the ministers at Houghs Neck Congregational Church. I come up with the ideas, and she puts them together for me. She's kind of my "spiritual writer," rather than a ghost writer (laughs).

Q. So you actually became Uncle Sam three years ago?

A. Well, I had my name legally changed on Flag Day three years ago. And it wasn't set up that way; it just happened. I set it up and it was like 60 days from the time, and I went home and looked at the calendar and it was Flag Day. And being Uncle Sam keeps me going. All of the people that I meet, and all of the stories about me that come through the news wires, it really keeps me going. And I'm not in it for the money; I really enjoy what I'm doing.

I've had to struggle looking for sponsors; they're a little afraid of using Uncle Sam to sponsor something because they're not sure what I'm going to do. They think I might do something crazy, which I'm not going to do. And it's starting to come now; for instance, in Connecticut, I'm set up with cable (television) to do all the voter registration around the state, and I'm working in New Jersey and some of the other states now with cable companies.

Q. So you're more than just the state's official Uncle Sam now.

A. Oh, I travel all over the country; all over the states and all over the world. I've been to Tennessee, Arkansas and Alabama; I've been to almost all of the states except for Hawaii and Alaska and some of the others which I'd like to get to someday.

Q. How did the process for becoming Uncle Sam go? Wasn't there another man, George Elias of Hingham, who was also interested in the name?

A. Well, there's a lot of Uncle Sams out in the country, but I'm the only real full-time one. George just does it for the Fourth of July Parade in Hingham. And I need helpers; St.

"HATS OFF" TO AMERICA—Quincy's Uncle Sam Rounseville says crowds throughout the United States always react favorably to him. "You don't realize how many patriotic people there are in this country until you start walking around dressed as Uncle Sam," he says. (Harry Brett/Image Photo Service)

FULL NAME: Uncle Sam (formerly LeRoy Lincoln) Rounseville

AGE: 55

ADDRESS: Quincy Center

OCCUPATION: "full-time salesman for America," also works part-time selling real estate. Previously worked 30 years as a textile salesman and owned the former Beacon Fabrics store in Quincy Center

EDUCATION: graduated from Quincy High School, 1958

FAMILY: currently separated from his wife, he has two sons: David, 26 of Braintree and John, 22 of Quincy

Nick could never do it without helpers. I just can't be everywhere at the same time. Even Ronald McDonald must have 5,000 Ronald McDonalds around the country—maybe more, who knows?

Q. Do you know Mr. Elias at all personally?

A. I've never really talked to him. The only time that I've ever met him was in court out in Dedham when he tried to prevent me from becoming Uncle Sam and having my name changed.

Q. And why was he doing that?

A. Well, he was afraid I was going to stop all the Uncle Sams from marching in the parades, and (he also thought) I wasn't dress properly. He said that his outfit was more formal than mine.

Q. Your driver's license and legal papers all say Uncle Sam now...

A. Yes, and my passport, too.

Q. Do you have any plans to get contact lenses and grow a white beard so you'll look more like the traditional Uncle Sam?

A. No, because the picture of Uncle Sam in the face of many Europeans and many Americans is a scary picture. Those (Uncle Sam) posters with the stern look, this is what they depict all Americans as being, and I want to change that image of what Uncle Sam really should be like—the friendly good guy, the nice guy who likes to help people. That's basically what I do: I go to schools, and hospitals, and nursing homes. I'm not really a sporting events guy; I go to sporting events to get the exposure.

Q. So what do you actually see as your main role as Uncle Sam?

A. To be more formal throughout the country, and to do more and more hospitals and schools, and to promote voter registration and making sure people get out to vote.

Q. And you do charity events as well?

A. All the time; I'm pretty well booked up for the month of July. And my mother travels with me. She's 88 years old and she plays the piano and the banjo.

Q. Is July your busiest month?

A. Every month is busy. The worst time of year for me is April, because everybody's wanting their tax money from me (laughs).

Q. When you go places, is the reaction to you generally favorable?

A. Absolutely. The northern (U.S.) area is very difficult area to break through; they're very skeptical in this area. But in the South and the Midwest, they really seem to have more of feeling toward Uncle Sam and America. Around here, they say, "What's this guy up to? Is he going to run for office?"

Q. As you mentioned before, you've been to a lot of sporting events, including the Olympics, the World Series and most recently, World Cup Soccer at Foxboro. How do you get into these events?

A. Generally, I can make a phone call to one of the big corporations; I know people from Johnson & Johnson, Coca-Cola and others. I met a lot of these people at the Olympic games and they really take this (Uncle Sam persona) seriously.

Q. What's your favorite memory? The Olympic experience, or maybe one of the states or countries you've visited?

A. I think probably the greatest feeling that I had with America was going to Washington, D.C. for the inauguration (of President Clinton) and to the three or four inaugural balls that I went to. It was just the most beautiful week I ever spent in my life.

And the little things that people come up and hand to me...for instance, I was speaking in a school one time in Melville, N.J., about what I do and how expensive it can be for me, and a little kid came up to me and gave me his lunch money. He was only 8 or 9 years old; it was really a great feeling.

Everywhere I go, they do feature stories on me. And people send me clippings and other things from all over the world. My post office box is number 1776, and I know I'm always going to get mail on Thursday, because I go down and pick up The Quincy Sun (laughs).

Q. How about famous people that you've met? Does anyone in particular stick out in your mind?

A. No, because there's so many. I've met presidents; the person I really wanted to meet the most—he saluted me in the 1992 World Series—was Jimmy Carter. He's one of my most favorite people in the world.

I think the people who have probably had the most impact on my life are Father Bill McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Catholic Church in Quincy and Rev. Alicia and Dr. Peter Corea of Houghs Neck Congregational. Those people, the clergy, work hard all the time and they don't get recognition for the things they've accomplished. These are the people who have really helped me keep going; they're actually role models for me.

Q. The Fourth of July is coming up. I imagine you usually have a lot of fun on that day.

A. Absolutely. It's one of my busiest days, and usually I go into Boston to the Hatch Shell without about 5,000 or 6,000 flags and pass them out at the Pops concert.

Q. You said earlier you didn't get into these patriotic duties for the money. But you're not in business the way you used to be. What are your future plans?

A. My plans are to try and get a few sponsors to be able to promote all these good things Uncle Sam should be doing, rather than drafting people and being involved in wars. We are one of the few countries that have a symbol of a person, of an icon—and I'm it. So I'm going to keep doing this.

20% Boost In Visitation At Adams Site Expected

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Adams National Historic Site in Quincy is expecting to top last year's total number of visitors by around 20 percent, according to historic site and city officials.

Caroline Keinath, chief of interpretation and visitor services for the site, said recent numbers indicate a steady increase in tourists that annually averages to about 20 percent.

"With the economy and a number of other factors involved, we can't predict an actual number," she said. "But we can make an educated guess, and it goes up about 20 percent each year."

The Adams National Historic Site includes the Adams Birthplaces at 133-141 Franklin St., the Adams Mansion or "Old House" at 135 Adams St., United First Parish Church, also known as the "Church of the Presidents" at 1306 Hancock St. and a Visitor Center located at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St. The site opened April 19 for the 1994 season and will remain open until Nov. 10 with the exception of the Visitor Center which is open year-round.

Keinath said 44,567 people visited the Adams Site last year, just over 18 percent more than the 37,764 visitors in 1992. Numbers show that 9,458 visitors have gone to the site in April and May of this season--nearly 12 percent more than April and May of 1993.

One reason the numbers increased in 1993 was because of the Visitor Center which opened to the public last year, Keinath said. She added that she foresees a similar benefit this year with the addition of a trolley service that brings tourists to each stop of the historic site.

The city obtained the service from Beantown Trolley Co. of Randolph last July, about halfway through the historic site's 1993 tourist season. Keinath said having the service for a full season will only help the site's overall numbers.

"The impact of the trolley will be a positive one," she said. "It's (Quincy) a hard area to get around, especially if you don't know the streets. I think, since we have the Visitor Center at one end of the city and the other parts of the historic site in others, that getting the trolley is probably the best thing we could have done."

The Visitors Center at Presidents Place and United First Parish Church are located in Quincy Center, the Adams Birthplaces in South Quincy and the Adams Mansion to the north of Quincy Center on the Wollaston line.

Mayor James Sheets, who has attempted to boost tourism since he first took office in 1990, said he expects an increase of at least 20 percent in Adams Site visitors.

"I expect a good boost in tourism," he said. "I suspect an increase between 20 and 25 percent, maybe even 30 percent."

Sheets said the recent success the city has experienced in tourism can be attributed to a "concerted effort" between Adams Site and other tourism officials, the mayor's office, Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning organization; and publicity the city has received for events such as last year's Quincy to Quincy, Ill. relief effort in both local and national media.

"I think we will see continued high numbers (of tourists) as we go from year to year," he said.

while encounter a smiling clerk. It's a great place to spend a lot of time. A word of caution: take a lunch and a pocket full of glowing colored markers; you could be in there longer than expected.

We lost Grossman's and several small hardware stores where you could still go in and discuss problems with the owner.

Why would they pay the salary for a Quincy 2000 person to stir up business? Just what does that mean? Hasn't 2000 been working on downtown Quincy for a long time, or is an evening stroll down gas-light lane considered sufficient?

How altruistic can you get? They'll pay to raze Child World!!!!

They will clean up the city's parking areas. The parking lots collect money, can't they afford a

The people at the Falls want Wal-Mart? I'd be livid if I had purchased a condo there. The area was going from junk lot to manicured living quarters. Now the Falls people are asked to look down on a sprawling store and parking lot. Well, maybe if they could look even further down! How can Atlantic Development mitigate the music of screaming traffic and the sweet essence of exhaust as it wafts upward? Wal-Mart is going to take over some of the maintenance like snow removal and landscaping. Is the condo management going to refund some money to the condo owners?

They will work with downtown retailers to craft marketing strategies to play off Wal-Mart. This coupled with the proposed seminars at Quincy College should make our retailers pretty crafty. Doesn't anyone in Quincy have any business acumen?

If you have a flair for foreign languages or knotty puzzles, I refer you to page 32, June 9, 1994, Quincy Sun. It is fraught with phrases like, "anticipated market growth," "aggressive measures," "permanent mitigation at the Falls," etc., etc. If you have problems translating, perhaps you should contact the State of Maine.

If Benevolent Brother Wal-Mart is so altruistic and has a compulsion to build, why not turn the energy to rehabilitating usable Quincy property for low income housing and homeless shelters?

False Perceptions Concerning Single, Divorcing Fathers

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Sylvester Stallone's box office bomb "Over the Top" might have reached "Rocky"-like success if arm wrestling was not meshed with fatherhood. Nevertheless, "Over the Top" did a great job pointing out the fact fathers need to bond independently with their child or children and vice versa.

There exist three falsely held perceptions concerning single/divorcing fathers that can no longer go unchallenged:

Firstly, despite the fact that men pay 98 percent of the child support owed in this country, it's assumed we hate paying it. Not so. However, child support does represent extortion when a man cannot father on an independent basis.

Secondly, we are deemed irresponsible since we did not marry or divorce the mother of a child or children. Sorry. Marriage is the ideal situation for children in general, but it isn't the only standard by which fathers can be trusted with parenting.

Thirdly, we have the ability to "father" and "parent" with the rubber stamp court order of reasonable visitation. Please stop. Reasonable visitation is dependent on the mother's definition of reasonableness.

Father's Day is the perfect opportunity for all of us to fully understand that denying single/divorcing fathers individual visitation with their child or children, better phrased, preventing them from being parents, creates far more problems than it allegedly nips in the bud.

Sterling Students Visit Tobin, State House

Sixth grade students from Sterling Middle School visited Wednesday with Rep. Stephen Tobin at the State House.

Tobin visited Sterling in May during National Violence Prevention Week.

He spoke about violence in the home, school and community and what state representatives are doing to help remedy the problems.

The students were also scheduled to ride on the swan boats while visiting Boston. This was in conjunction with a novel they've read "Taking Care of Terific" by Lois Lowry. The novel's setting is the Boston Common. The students were accompanied by Mr. Thomas DiTullio, Ms. Patricia Condito, and Mrs. Barbara Driscoll.

The sixth grade and staff would like to thank Sterling's PTO for providing transportation for this trip and other field trips this year.

State Rep. Michael Bellotti and Sen. Michael Morrissey recently hosted a State House tour and question and answer session for a group of Atlantic Middle School sixth graders

The students were from a science class taught by John Sullivan. They were particularly interested in the environment, and what Bellotti and Morrissey were doing legislatively regarding that issue.

Bellotti and Morrissey invite other classes to come to the State House for a tour. Those interested should Bellotti's office at 722-2210, or Morrissey's office at 722-1494 to make tour arrangements.

Chiropractic Update

by Mark C. Jaehnig D.C.

ARM AND SHOULDER PAIN

Arm and shoulder pain can have a number of causes, but the large percentage of cases are caused by misalignment of one or more spinal bones (vertebrae), improper posture, spinal curvatures, occupational stresses, or injury to the spine. Any of these conditions may cause irritation or impingement of the nerves supplying the arms, shoulder, and neck. Arm and shoulder pain does not always mean trouble where the pain is felt.

The degree of pain may vary between slight and intermittent, to excruciating. But do not be fooled by the degree of pain; sometimes a slight pain goes along with a serious condition while intense pain may be a symptom of nothing more than temporary muscle soreness caused by a week-end of unusual activity.

It should be apparent to anyone that arm and shoulder pain may indicate a serious condition. But whether the problem is serious or not, the pain can become quite debilitating. Fortunately, the doctor of chiropractic is eminently qualified to correct arm and shoulder problems. The chiropractors education and experience have been directed to such problems that involve the spine, nerves, muscles and joints of the human body.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

the Republic of Korea," Hwang-Tu said. "Korea, as we know it would not exist if it weren't for the American soldiers' courage and bravery. The Korean people have enduring gratitude for those who sacrificed their lives for freedom, peace and justice."

The ceremony included the presenting of the colors, the salute to the flag, the Korean and American national anthems, an invocation from Rev. Keijo Aho, the unveiling of the temporary memorial by Quincy Korean War Memorial Committee members, and guest speakers, including the Honorable Mayor of Quincy James A. Sheets, who also served as honorary chairman of the ceremony.

Quincy Korean War Memorial Committee chairman John W. (Butch) Mahoney, who welcomed all in attendance, was pleased that the "day for the vets" had finally arrived.

"All the speakers were tremendous, and their words were filled with warmth and sincerity," Mahoney said. "I'm glad when it will finally be built, since it will serve as a constant reminder to those who died in service to their country."

Audrey Finn, whose brother, Roger Schneider of Quincy was one of the first American casualties in the Korean War, was overjoyed at having been invited to the ceremony that she said "did the soldiers justice."

"It's a long time coming, but it's great that it is finally happening," Finn said. "The ceremony was excellent and we had a great time finally commemorating the fallen soldiers."

Finn added that there is an overpass in West Quincy already dedicated to Schneider, but the memorial is much more special, since it commemorates all from Quincy who gave their lives to save others.

"It's an honor to all the boys," Finn said.

Sheets spoke about how this memorial will serve as a remembrance for those who made the ultimate sacrifice for their fellow man.

"The meaning of this occasion is carried on by the breeze of freedom," Sheets said. "For those who sacrificed their lives, it blows gently across the ocean where they know today we remember the efforts the soldiers made. We're saying to them and the world, we will never forget those who paid the ultimate sacrifice for freedom."

Others in attendance commented on how enjoyable the ceremony was and how it served as a tribute to those soldiers who before now, had now public recognition of their efforts.

"It was an excellent ceremony that really celebrated the courage the soldiers showed," Peg Aristide, who along with her husband Emie attended the ceremony, said. Mr. Aristide said his brother, Joseph Aristide, who now lives in Arizona, served in the Korean War but couldn't make the ceremonies.

"What the speakers said, especially Mayor Sheets, was all from the heart, so it made it all the more beautiful," Mrs. Aristide said.

"It's been too long, but it's nice to see that these soldiers will never be forgotten and now have something that people can look at with pride," Ruth Norton, the wife of Sgt.-at-Arms Lawrence Norton, said.

Norton, whose brother, Joseph Steen, formerly of Quincy, is currently the Dept. Vice Commander of the American Legion in Wilmington, is a teacher in Quincy.

Names of Quincy's Korean War dead to be inscribed on the memorial are:

Robert L. Adams, Albert J. Bergeron, Thomas B. Bishop, Michael J. Broaderick, Lawrence A. Bruno, James H. Cameron, Howard E. Davis, Walter A. Della Chiesa, Robert James Duffy, Kenneth F. Elbers, Gordon J. Erickson, Lee H. Favourite, Robert J. Foley, Daniel N. Gilbert, Frederick H. Graves, Albert J. Happel, Mervyn K. Horn, Robert W. Leaman, George R. MacDonald.

Also, Bernard A. MacDougall, David MacLachlan Jr., Lloyd S. MacLeod, Michael W. Mahar, John Mariano, Chester E. Paris, Armand G. Poirier, Malcolm B. Reardon, Albert L. Rogers, Roger F. Schneider, George A. Smart, George C. Stevens, Richard F. Sullivan, John J. Sweeney, Paul W. Sweeney, Joseph A. Thermen Jr., Joseph D. Toomey, Donald S. Waldie and Donald E. Wolf.

Those serving on the Korean War Memorial Committee are:

Voter Registration By Mail Starts Friday

election office in person.

"I think it will increase registration in 1994 but I think it will really increase it in 1995-1996 when it's a presidential election year," Shea said. "There's always more interest in presidential campaigns."

Between now and November, 1996, Shea predicts the motor-voter registration law will help increase registration in Quincy 10 to 15 percent. If correct, that would add another 5,000 voters to the city's current enrollment of 47,200.

The 5,000 new voter figure would represent slightly less than half of Quincy's unregistered adults. According to Shea, the city has approximately 60,000 adults who are voting age, 18 or over. Of those, about 78 percent are registered while 22 percent or 12,800 or are not registered.

Shea said the law calls for eliminating most of shortening many of the required special registration sessions, including the Saturday registration session, as of July 1, 1995. In the past, as many as a hundred or more new voters have registered during one of those special sessions.

Nonetheless, Shea said he plans to continue holding the special registration drives at City Hall before primary and general elections.

"We pick up people every year through it but we really pick people up in presidential years."

The law also provides two other main provisions to take effect July 1, 1995:

• Change the last day to register to vote from 28 days to 20 days before the state primary and election. City elections have always been 20 days.

• Allow unenrolled voters to remain unenrolled when they vote in a primary (except a presidential primary).

To organize voter registration lists and keep them more up-to-date, a new computerized voter directory is scheduled to go on line Jan. 1, 1995. Shea, as well as city and towns clerks throughout the state, will be required to input voter data into this new directory which will contain the names of registered voters throughout the state.

Shea said he thinks the directory is a good idea whose time has come.

"I think in the long run it will be beneficial. In the short term it may be confusing but our job is to encourage voter registration, not hinder it."

Voters already registered need not re-register to be placed in the directory, Shea pointed out.

To further assist local would-be voters, Shea plans to have the mail-in voter registration form translated into several foreign languages, including Cantonese, Vietnamese and Spanish.

"I think this law will help everyone," he said.

City Plans New Study On Wal-Mart

of the new study.

"We are heartened by this, and we feel that it's very appropriate," she said.

The first of the two earlier studies, which had to do with the economic impact of the Wal-Mart project—which is called Granite Crossing—on The Falls, was funded by Atlantic Development Corp. and was conducted by John E. Kline, CRE, senior vice president of Hunne-man Appraisal and Consulting Company in Boston. The second, which dealt with the economic impact of the project on Quincy Center businesses, was contracted by Quincy 2000 and done by Gary Mongeon of RKG Associates Inc. of Durham, N.H.

Quincy 2000 officials agreed with the results of the two studies, which concluded that there would be no long-term negative impact by the project on The Falls or downtown businesses. Some Falls residents and downtown merchants, however, have argued that Granite Crossing would indeed have a negative economic impact.

A majority of Falls residents recently voted to work with MacKinnon in exchange for $600,000 in mitigation and other incentives. However, Mignon and others have disputed that vote, saying that it was a "sham" because residents felt pressured to vote the way they did.

Cheney said the residents who are opposing the Wal-Mart store are those who are located closest to the proposed construction site.

Cheney said the public is welcome to continue to submit written, taped and other opinions and input about the Wal-Mart proposal throughout the summer to the City Council Office at City Hall. The council is expected to vote on the Wal-Mart proposal in September.

Cheney said it is time for councillors to "role up their sleeves" and begin taking a further look at how the project will impact traffic and other aspects of the community.

He added that he and Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristoforo plan to sit down to draft a list of conditions for the project which they will discuss with fellow councillors at a meeting later in the year.

Cheney said previous study results and other information regarding the project are currently on display at the City Council office and may be viewed by the public weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Committee. The general consensus was, Kolson said, to put public safety first.

"Since the usual site for the festivities are under construction, we cannot permit anything of that magnitude to take place without risking personal injury to those attending.

We had hoped the project would be further along, allowing the event to take place but that is just not the case," Kolson said.

Police will frequent the area July 3 and July 4 to "make sure that no public gatherings take place which might result in someone being hurt," Kolson said.

"I feel that is the only responsible action and reasonable precaution to take in view of the condition of the construction area. I do not wish to expose anyone to the possibility of having themselves or their children harmed," Kolson said.

Wollaston Rallies For 12-7 Win Over Quincy

By KERRY BYRNE
Stuffed for six innings, Wollaston Legion scored three runs in the top of the seventh to tie Quincy, then sent five players across the plate in the extra session to notch a 12-7 win Sunday night at Adams Field.

The game looked like it would be another tough loss for the 2-6 Wollaston club, but a gritty, late-game effort pushed them past the host Quincy squad.

Quincy led 5-4 in the bottom of the sixth when runs by Steve Koch and Tim Messing gave them a 7-4 lead and appeared to put the game out of reach.

Wollaston's Jesse Casler responded with a two-run double in the top of the seventh to bring the black-clad Legionnaires to within one. Terry Manning's shot to center field drove in Casler with the tying run.

"We came back when we had to," said Wollaston manager Mike Draichio, "give credit to all the kids, they did a great job fighting back."

In the top of the final inning the Blackshirts gave a clinic on how to lay down the bunt. With men on first and second, Dan Reynolds bunted to load the bases. Adam DeBoer's bunt brought home Ken Hannaford (pinch running for Matt McGowan) for what proved to be the game-winning run. Another bunt by Scott Kelley also knocked in a run. Jon Gangi's two-run base hit, the catchers first of the game, broke the game open. Ron McGann's RBI single ended the offensive barrage.

"Those squeeze plays were the key, we kept getting the bunts down and Quincy wasn't able to field them," said Draichio.

The game's final two innings were dominated by relief pitcher Mike Santoro. Quincy scored six runs in the fifth and sixth innings but against Santoro their bats fell silent. The Wollaston fireballer fanned five of the seven batters he faced in 1-2/3 innings of work. He struck out the side in the eighth to end the contest. Santoro's two-run triple in the top of the sixth brought his team to within one run and ignited what had been a lethargic Wollaston attack.

Quincy opened the scoring in the first when Mark Karlson's single drove in George Wirtz. They looked like they had the game in hand when a four-run fifth inning gave them a 5-2 lead. In that inning Quincy sent 10 batters to the plate and cranked out five singles and a double. Wollaston middle reliever Casler ended the inning and saved his life when he caught a line drive rocket off the end of Karlson's bat just microseconds before it took off his head. It was the only time Karlson failed to reach base in the contest. Quincy's top batsman went 3 for 4 with an RBI and walked once. Third baseman Pat Donovan's double in the fifth was Quincy's only extra-base hit.

Until the sixth inning Wollaston was unable to mount an attack. Quincy hurler Steve Roberts held Wollaston to just three singles in the game's first five innings.

Wollaston hosts Holbrook Friday at 8:30. West Roxbury travels to Adams Field Wednesday (July 6) to play Wollaston at 8:30.

apiece. Carthas, Malvesti and Dan Duncan each had base hits.

Morrisette again found Milton too much to handle, losing 7-5. Two of Morrisette's three losses this season have come against Milton.

Milton jumped on pitcher Malvesti early. They scored three runs in the first inning.

Malvesti was victimized by Morrisette's untimely walk at the plate. They stranded 13 men and left the bases loaded in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

Morrisette out-hit Milton 9-6, but were shut out until the bottom of the seventh. Trailing 7-0 in that final inning, they sent nine batters to the plate and scored all five of their runs. Sapiaenza, Connelly and Zanaboni each drove in runs. Two others scored on errors. The hits were recorded by Malvesti, Connelly, Carthas, Duncan, Biagini, Sapiaenza, Zanaboni, Chris Cotter and Brian Hayes.

Mark Cahill pitched in the seventh inning and allowed two unearned runs.

Morrisette will be at Weymouth Friday for a 5:45 start. They host Quincy Tuesday (July 5) at 8:30 and will travel to Randolph Wednesday for a 6 p.m. ballgame.

They scored their final two in the fifth. Biagini doubled and was knocked in by a Sapiaenza three-bagger. Kenney's base hit brought home Sapiaenza.

Sinks 35-Footer

Conboy Putt Seals Broom Classic Victory

By BRIAN BUCKLEY

For the second year in a row, Quincy's Don Conboy saved his best shot for last in helping his team win the 14th Broom Classic at President's Golf Course.

Conboy hit a nine-iron on the fourth sudden death hole to win last year, but used his putter this year as he sank a 35-foot curling putt on the 18th hole at President's Golf Course to put the team of Donald Smith, Jake Doyle, Paul Messina and Conboy at 10 under par and in first place.

The second place team of Paul Donoghue, John Kearney, Rick Radzik and Bob Wall relied on the deadly putting of Kearney to card out the team of George McCall, Bob Kilday, Jay Sarson and Ed Lizotte who also shot eight under par 62.

The closest to the pin winners were Mike Della Barba, Jay Sarson, Dave DiCarlo, Jack Warren, Roger Homan and State Rep. Michael Bellotti. The longest put was made by Al Bortolotti and Ken Furfuri hit the longest drive. Bortolotti also won the best outfit award.

A special presentation was made to Quincy's George Peachey as he received the first annual Brookmistic Award for his fine sportsmanship. Peachey, who works in the Quincy High School athletic department, was presented a plaque by tournament director Brian Buckley.

All proceeds for the tournament run by the Quincy Family/Youth Services, Inc. will go to Elder Services. Many sponsors contributed to the event, including: U.S. Health Care, South Shore Buick, The Granite Rail, New Balance, Nevada Bob's, The Varsity Club, Reebok, Barry's Deli, Sen. Michael Morrissey, Rep. Michael Bellotti, City Councillor Charles Phelan, Frank Brillo Catering, Christophers of Revere, John McKay, Atty. Anthony Falco and the 57th Park Plaza Hotel.

Morrisette Wins Pair

Morrisette closed their two-up, one-down week with a 9-6 win over Wollaston Thursday at Adams Field.

Pat Bryan earned the win with six innings of work for Morrisette. Jeff Russell pitched a perfect seventh inning to record the save.

Wollaston jumped to a 3-0 lead in the third inning. Malachy Higgins and Ron McGann opened the session with singles. Steve Barrett's sacrifice moved both runners into scoring position. Terry Manning singled home Higgins, McGann scored on a passed ball and Jon Gangi drove in Manning.

On the mound, Wollaston's Manning pitched shutout ball for four innings, but Morrisette got to him with two runs in the fifth. They then exploded for seven runs in the sixth to take the lead.

Tom Malvesti had his best offensive outing of the season. He clubbed a triple and a double and drove in three runs. Dave Reinhardt reached base four times on a double, two singles and an error. He also had one stolen base. Tim Zanaboni's base hit in the sixth tied the ball game. Bryan, Andy Joyce and Neil Connelly also chalked up RBIs.

Wollaston threatened with three more runs in the sixth. Infield hits by Gangi and Matt McGowan and an RBI-single by Mike Santoro led to the runs. They were aided by a fielder's choice and a Morrisette error.

Gangi and McGowan led Wollaston with two hits each.

Sixteen-year-old pitcher Mike Kenney was the story of the game in Morrisette's 5-1 win over West Roxbury.

The left-hander carried a no-hitter into the seventh inning before a leadoff double spoiled the bid. Two groundouts brought home West Roxbury's only run of the game. For Kenney it was his second win in as many starts. He struck out five and walked three.

Morrisette scored two runs in the first inning on two walks, an error and an A.J. Carthas triple. Connelly drove in Joey Biagini with a base hit in the second. Biagini and Jim Sapiaenza both singled during the inning.

They scored their final two in the fifth. Biagini doubled and was knocked in by a Sapiaenza three-bagger. Kenney's base hit brought home Sapiaenza.

Weymouth Erupts To Defeat Quincy

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

Weymouth erupted for five runs in the seventh inning to defeat Quincy, 7-3, Monday night in American Legion baseball action.

Trailing 3-2 in the top of the seventh, Weymouth (6-2) collected five hits and two walks to score their five runs. The biggest hit of the inning came off the bat of Tim Daley, whose triple score Steve Kadlick and Joe Dadiucci. Both had singled earlier. Daley came home on a base hit by Steve Kerrissey, who scored on Jim Gagnon's single.

"We don't have the instinct to go out and finish our game," said Quincy coach Wayne Chambers. "It gets to the point where we're playing up to the ability of our opponents."

With the score tied 2-2 in the sixth, Quincy (2-7-1) took the lead when Dan Donabue scored off a double by Dan Burke. Donabue and Brendan Ridge singled in the inning.

Quincy took a quick 2-0 lead in the first inning. Steve Miller was hit by a pitch to open the inning. He stole second then advanced to third on a Mark Karlson single. Pat Donovan's base hit brought home Miller and Ridge's sacrifice fly to left field scored Karlson.

Weymouth tied the score in the third. After two quick outs, Daley doubled and scored when Kerrissey singled. Gagnon's long double to left plated Kerrissey.

Both teams had scoring chances between the third and sixth innings. Quincy loaded the bases with two-out walks by George Wirtz, Karlson and Ridge but could not bring them home.

Weymouth threatened when Kadlick reached third, but he was caught in rundown and tagged out near home plate by Burke, Quincy's pitcher.

Burke pitched 6-2/3 innings, giving up six runs, nine hits and one walk. Weymouth starter Mike Gates lasted just 2-3/3 innings. He gave up two runs on two hits, walked three and struck out two.

Quincy's top batter was Ridge with two hits. Miller, Karlson, Donovan, Burke, Tim Messing and Brian Oliver collected one

World Cup Drama Comes To Quincy

By KERRY BYRNE

Circle the wagons! Hide the women folk! World Cup fever has gripped the Granite City!

Well, not exactly. But if you were at Delaney's Pub on Franklin Street Friday you would have thought so. Besides being the usual gathering spot for Quincy's Irish, Delaney's played host to a group of 35 youth soccer players and their coaches from the Gorbals United Soccer Club of Glasgow, Scotland as they watched Ireland battle Mexico in first round World Cup action.

Without representation in the Cup, the Scotsmen have adopted the Irish national team as their own and their presence gave the pub a uniquely European flair.

Unfortunately for all those in attendance, their enthusiasm was tempered by the score: at the half the Boys in Green trailed 1-0.

"The heat is certainly affecting Ireland, they're not use to it. But they got the best coach in the whole series (Jack Charlton). They'll take it to 'em in the second half," said Scottish soccer legend Bobby Murdoch at halftime.

Murdoch played professional soccer in Scotland for 14 years and helped lead Glasgow Celtic to his nation's only European Cup championship in 1967. He founded the Gorbals United youth teams in 1976 and has been traveling with the boys (an under 12 and an under 15 group) as they take on soccer teams from around the South Shore.

"Ireland will chase the game. They've got to take it to 'em. I'll tell you, they'll have a late goal," he said in his thick Scottish accent and deep but friendly voice.

Murdoch's words proved prophetic - Ireland did indeed score a late goal, but a Mexican tally in the second half had already given them an insurmountable 2-0 lead.

"Ireland...Ireland...Ireland," is what they chanted after the goal in the 83rd minute cut the lead to 2-1. It was the first time they had a chance to let loose with the sing-song chants European soccer fans are famous for. As the game wound to a close every pass into the Mexican zone brought a buzz from the boys. Each stop by the Mexican defense was met by hushed groans. They leapt to their feet as Ireland striker Andy Townsend uncorked a powerful blast at the Mexican net in the game's 90th minute; they froze, then fell silent, as the shot was knocked away.

A corner kick gone astray - Ireland's last threat of the game - elicited a chorus of groans. Not the harsh, bitter sneer of an American sport crowd, but a guttural, lamenting groan. An opportunity missed, never to be recovered.

The allegiance of the Scottish coaches and players was apparent from the outset. They entered the pub carrying Irish flags and banners. When asked if they'd be rooting for Ireland, coach John McCusker replied rather crisply, "Is the Pope a Catholic!"

A number of the Irish players, including Tommy Coyne and fiery goalkeeper Packie Bonner, play on club teams in Scotland and were among the favorites of the Scottish boys. It also added to their interest in the Irish team.

For the team, most of whose members are from the Gorbals section of Glasgow, Delaney's was just one stop among many during their soccer-filled week in Massachusetts. They've had the opportunity to watch World Cup action in the host nation and play a number of "friendlies" against local youth soccer clubs.

The boys have found the American competition different than what they are use to back home. "The Americans are fast and have a more physical style of play. But we're more skillful," was the general consensus among the players. The under 12 team tied their first game, 3-3, while the under 15 squad buried their opponent, 7-1.

When asked to outline the differences between Scotland and America the boys also agreed: "It's too hot," blurted out 15-year-old Steve Watson and Kevin Miller, echoing the cry of many a New Englander during the humid summer months. It's easy to see why they feel this way - Glasgow lies several hundred miles north of Boston's latitude.

MEMBERS OF THE 15 and 16-year-old Russian National Champion Hockey team were in Quincy for a visit with City Council President Mike Cheney (standing, left). The team toured Canada and the United States for a two-week period during which they lost just one game. The Russian champs were scheduled to play at Quincy Youth Arena but the game was cancelled when the team had trouble getting into this country from Canada. They were able to play a scheduled set of games at Pilgrim Sports Center in Hingham.

Glasgow Defeats Ranbrook Soccer Club

On Sunday the under 15 Ranbrook Soccer Club hosted a match against the under 15 Gorbals United Soccer Club of Glasgow, Scotland. Gorbals United won, 3-0.

Steve Miller played strong at midfield and Colin Shea and Steve Wilson were tough on the defense. Peter Johnson was a force all over the field. Keeper Paul Towne made a number of quality

A BLOWN OPPORTUNITY

Car owners can perform an easy test with a Jefferson nickel to see if their cars' tires are worn beyond acceptable limits. All they need do is slide the nickel (with Jefferson's head upside down) into the tread grooves. If the tread depth does not reach the top of Jefferson's head, the tire cannot be considered safe for even dry-road conditions. At worst, a badly worn tire is at risk for a blowout. Should this unfortunate circumstance occur, drivers should resist the urge to hit their brakes.

Cars with blown-out tires can best be brought under control by firmly steering the car to the side of the road. Rear blowouts are likely to pull the car to the side of the blowout, while front blowout create a side-to-side, fishtailing reaction. HINT: If at all possible, try to pull cars with flat or blown-out tires off to the right side of the road.

Although this is an easy way for you to check the tires yourself, at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO we realize that the science of auto technology has actually become very advanced and sophisticated. Whether you have a question about your tires, or need to have us look at something else, turn to our professional technicians. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Hours: Mon-Fri 8AM-9PM, Sat 7AM-9PM, Sun 9AM-5PM.

Pitchers Duels Highlight Week's Action

It was a week of tightly contested pitchers duels in the Babe Ruth League.

Morrisette's Ryan Ploof nipped Granite City Electric's John Breska, 4-3.

Ploof fanned seven and walked one. Breska struck out six and walked two.

Ploof was backed by the strong defensive play of Rich Rose, Gregory Peck and Jeff Feiner. Rose put out four runners attempting to steal bases.

Mike Travers and Chris Brundage each had two singles for Granite City. Josh Echelle and Jacob Drohan were the top defensive players.

Both hurlers gave up just three base hits. Byrne fanned five and Ryan Kd 11.

Ted McGillicuddy hit a clutch single up the left field line to knock in Byrne for the game's only run. Scott Staiti was flawless at the hot corner and Eric Wood played a tough defensive game behind the plate. With Byrne facing a bases loaded jam in the sixth, he snared Kevin Cellucci's rocket up the middle and combined with Eric Wood and first baseman Tim Wood for the 1-2-3 double play to end the inning. John Mahoney and Steve Clarke each had hits for the Elks.

Ryan notched two of Bryan Post's three hits. Matt Graham hit the other. Ryan was backed by his team's near-flawless defense.

Bryan Post rebounded with a 4-3 victory over Golden Print as Mike Eddy outduelled Brian Beaton.

Steve Wilshire drove in Kevin Cellucci with the game-winning run. Other RBIs were collected by Eddy and Mike Sullivan.

Eddy Kd eight batters and scored a run while Billy Granby led the offense with two hits. Granby also made several fine catches in center field and fellow outfielders Matt Norton and Sullivan both played well. Catcher Ryan had a long triple and was solid behind the plate. Mark Kelly had a base hit and also looked strong in the field. Cellucci and Brian Gates anchored the infield. Others contributing to the victory were Matt Graham and Craig Bigham.

Jason Chagnon, John Sullivan and Beaton paced Golden Print with two hits apiece.

The Elks got another outstanding pitching performance from Matt McLaughlin who took a no-hitter into the seventh in a 4-3 win over Sons of Italy.

McLaughlin recorded eight strikeouts before Jarrod Downey's single up the middle broke the no-hit bid. Dan Toland followed with a walk and Eric Goodrich doubled home Downey. Toland and Goodrich scored on wild pitches. Elks fireman Rusty Corner ended the game with the tying run on third.

After he walked, Corner scored the game's first run on an Andrew Byrne single. Bobby Johnston's single scored Steve Clarke. Byrne notched two hits in the contest. Corner and Scott Staiti both singled.

Brian Beaton (2 for 3, two RBIs) and Shaun Donovan were the top offensive players for Granite City.

Drohan also turned in a complete game for GCE as they edged Fire Dept., 6-5.

His team trailing 5-4 in the bottom of the final inning, Chris Brundage belted the game-winning hit, knocking in Travers and Josh Olsen. Breska helped guide his team to victory with a 2 for 3 day at the plate. The defensive play of John McDonough, Josh Echelle and Brian Doyle helped douse the Fire Dept. attack.

Chad Fitzpatrick, Mike Doyle and Bob Walsh were the hot players for Fire.

Fire closed the week with a 10-7 win over Houghs Neck.

HN jumped to a 5-1 lead in the first inning, but a late-game surge gave Fire the win.

Trailing 6-3 in the sixth with two outs and a man on first, Fire exploded. Three consecutive singles made the score 6-5. Mike Doyle knocked in the tying run when he reached on an error. Bobby Walsh knocked in the game-winning run with a long two-run shot to left center. Insurance runs were provided by Kevin McQuies' two-run triple in the seventh.

Fire Dept. relief pitcher Mike McLaughlin closed out the win in the bottom of the seventh. He came into the game with two on and nobody out. One man came home on a sacrifice fly, but he got the next two batters out to earn the save. Chris Robinson pitched well in middle relief.

The ATSS hits were collected by John Mercurio (home run, single), Adam Smith and Steve Reddy.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

As we approach the Fourth of July it is well to be reminded that the nationhood we celebrate did not spring full blown with the mere Declaration of Independence from the tyranny of the day.

The prize of freedom came only by reason of firm actions taken by many individuals acting singly and collectively over an extended period before and after the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776. This is the tradition of resolute purpose on which the United States of America was founded and has been maintained.

"Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe, in order to assure the survival and the success of liberty." - John F. Kennedy.

Let us join together on July 4, 1994, in honoring America by rededicating ourselves to the principles of the founders and showing the same resolute purpose that the late President Kennedy articulated for a latter day. The need continues. We cannot rest on the laurels of past accomplishments.

Cheney Seeks Solution To Grass Problems In Marsh, Meadow

City Council President Michael Cheney announced this week that he is seeking a solution to growing public safety and environmental problems relating to phragmites growth along the city's marsh and meadow areas.

Commonly known as elephant or reed grass, phragmites grow to a height of 12 feet. They can triple their area of growth over a period of 12 months and as a result have become an ever-increasing problem for the city to control, Cheney said.

Cheney estimated that it costs $50,000 a year to cut back the phragmites and clean the tide gate area growth. He also cited the fact that phragmites are endangering many of the bird sanctuaries along the coastline.

Most importantly, Cheney said, is the fact that it endangers the lives of many residents who live abutting the marsh areas.

"Each year there are five or six fires that are caused from the phragmites igniting along the marsh area that have caused thousands of dollars of damage to homes and put the lives of residents in jeopardy, particularly when the fires occur at night," he said.

Cheney said he has investigated possible solutions and found that some communities have resolved their problem of phragmites grown through the use of a chemical product called Rodeo that is manufactured by a company known as Monsanto. Rodeo is environmentally friendly and kills the phragmites at the root level, he noted.

"It has been our experience in the City of Quincy that you can burn or cut the phragmites and it will grow within a period of months and begin to spread almost immediately," he said.

Cheney said residents have complained for years about the damage that the grass has caused to their homes. New information obtained, however, indicates that phragmites are also harmful to the environment in that it causes stagnated pools of water to form and that it destroys protected wildlife areas.

Cheney said he has forwarded information packets to the city's health commissioner, Conservation Commission, department of public works and fire department requesting their input within the next 15 days so that a trial use of Rodeo may take place by Aug. 1.

According to Cheney, information supplied by Monsanto indicates the following about Rodeo:

"It is an aquatic herbicide used to control the emerging reed grasses and brush;

"It is a water soluble liquid that will not harm the wildlife or marine life;

"It has been approved by the Environmental Protection Agency as a safe chemical for this purpose, and "It is non-volatile, will not produce airborne vapors that might damage non-target vegetation, and carries no odors that might disturb the public.

"It is my hope that all departments receiving the information will review this product and recommend that the city use it, resulting in substantial tax dollar savings in the long run as well as protection of life and property for residents," Cheney said. "At the same time, environmental conditions would be improved for marine and animal life."

The information packet is available to general public for review and comments at the City Council Office Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. or by calling Cheney at City Hall, 376-1341 or his home, 471-1493.

To Be Used For Expansion

Library Closes Deal For Nearby Property

The Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center has closed a $625,000 deal to purchase a building and property on Washington Street next to the library.

The library's board of trustees closed the deal with Severino Tocchio, the building and property owner, last week. The agreement brings the library one step closer toward its planned expansion.

Although Tocchio had agreed to sell the 46,000-square-foot property in February, the library could not actually purchase it until it had been declared environmental safe for construction. The library got the necessary environmental report two weeks ago, according to Library Director Ann McLaughlin.

The library can now advertise for architectural design proposals for the addition, which will be 30,000 to 35,000 square feet, McLaughlin said. She added that she expects several nationally-known firms to bid for the project because the original library, built in 1882, has been designated a national historic landmark and was designed by noted architect Henry Hobson Richardson.

McLaughlin said an architect will be chosen this fall. Design plans for the expansion and parking area will then be prepared over the following year, she added.

Library trustees do not yet have an estimate of the project's cost, McLaughlin said. However, the library is getting ready to apply for part of a $9 million state library construction fund, she noted, and that money will come either from the state general budget now being debated by the Legislature or from a new state bond issue.

Because of its status as an historic landmark, the Crane building will be a prime contender for a much as $2 million of that funding, McLaughlin said. She added that the balance of construction costs will come from city money and federal grants, and the city's share will likely come from a future municipal bond issue.

The library bought the Tocchio property with a $150,000 down payment from the Crane family trust fund, which is usually used to buy books and other materials. The remaining $475,000 will be paid for with a Quincy Savings Bank mortgage. Rental income from tenants in the Tocchio building will cover the mortgage payments.

Among the current tenants are the Electrolux vacuum cleaner business, a law office and a dry cleaning company. The building also houses Tocchio's metal fabricating business.

Noise Level Outside Cafe Satisfies Board

By LISA CONNELL

License Board officials ruled Tuesday that The Yardrock Cafe is making satisfactory structural improvements to contain and lower the noise level heard outside the club premises, a past source of contention to area residents, and voted unanimously to place the matter on file.

"Sound issues, if they existed in the first place, do not currently exist," said Patricia Hunt, counsel for Yardrock Cafe proprietor Joseph Hajjar.

A new central air-conditioning system, installed last Wednesday in the wooden-frame building at 132 East Howard St., Quincy Point, is a large factor in noise reduction, according to Hunt.

Hunt and Hajjar appeared before the board March 29 to answer complaints raised by area residents about the noise.

Following that meeting,

Hunt, Hajjar, City Clerk

and Licensing Board Chairman Joseph Shea and Building Inspector and Licensing Board Vice Chairman Matthias Mulvey conducted an on-site inspection of the club.

Since that time, Hajjar has taken continuous, comprehensive measures to rectify any problems that are a source of contention to residential abutters, according to Hunt. Originally scheduled to reappear before the board May 17, Hunt asked the board for hearing continuances so that further corrective measures could first be implemented.

Such measures included hiring an independent sound engineer to record the sound level in decibels. Reports presented to the Licensing Board on April 12 and June 27 indicate that the sounds emitted are within the state-mandated decibel range or ambient noise level, Hunt said.

The ambient noise level is the noise level that exists when the club is not open or playing music and the typical sounds of a day in the city are measured, according to Mulvey.

"I have noticed an improvement," said Shea. "Again, I don't live there and I haven't got any complaints this week, but I have gotten complaints all along in the past."

Shea said he will take ongoing noise level readings and continue to maintain an open line of communication with the neighbors.

Parking in the area adjacent to the nightclub, another concern of abutters, has also improved, said Shea.

More visits will be done in the future by city officials to monitor the general maintenance of the building. Other issues to be resolved center around materials used for wall construction, Shea said.

Concourse Citizens Advisory Committee Meetings Continue

The Quincy Center Concourse Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) is continuing to hold meetings regarding the proposed east-west roadway that would connect Burgin Parkway with Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

The last meeting, held June 23, consisted of an on-site inspection of the proposed multi-million dollar project. Meetings are held at Quincy City Hall and are open to the public.

Members of the committee appointed by Mayor James Sheets include

David Ezickson, who was recently elected chairman of the committee; Kevin Cotter, Arline Goodman, James Hession, John Keenan, Kathy Missell, John Noonan, Bernie Reisberg, Charles Ryder and Mary Smith. Committee members represent the business and professional community as well as the city's homeowners and senior citizens.

The primary purpose of the CAC is to advise the mayor on the design of the concourse project. Sheets has said that Phase I of the project will be constructed in the near future. The CAC will limit its decisions to Phase I because no decision has been made by the mayor to build beyond that.

The CAC plans to seek information from the public regarding the project. Ezickson said public hearings will be held, additional CAC on-site inspections will be made, and the results of present and future traffic studies will be analyzed before any recommendations are made to the mayor and the design project team.

Cahill Might Propose Cuts At July 20 Meeting

Council Committee Approves Bond Package

By MICHAEL WHALEN
Mayor James Sheets' proposed bond package of nearly $11 million has overcome one hurdle but now may face another.

The City Council Finance Committee voted 5-0 Monday night to give the bond package a favorable recommendation. However, At-large City Councillor Timothy Cahill said as the Sun went to press Tuesday that he may propose some cuts to the package at a special council meeting next month.

The City Council as a whole must still give its approval and will vote on the matter at the special meeting scheduled for Wednesday, July 20 at 7 p.m. A majority of Quincy's nine city councillors is needed to approve the bond issue.

City Council President Michael Cheney, Finance Committee Chairman and Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers voted for the favorable recommendation. Cahill voted present.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien and At-large Councillor Joseph LaRaia had to leave Monday night's meeting early and were not present for the vote. Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, still recovering from a recent heart attack and stroke, did not attend the meeting.

Cahill said he could not vote for the proposed bond package as it stands because he has too many questions about some of the bond issue totals. Some of them seem too high, he said.

"I'm not prepared to vote for the whole thing at this point," said Cahill. "But I'm not prepared to vote against it, either. I want more facts before I make a decision."

More than half of the proposed $10,860,000 bond package is earmarked for school repairs. A total of $5.5 million would benefit the city's schools, including $5.2 million for major renovations at the Parker Elementary School in North Quincy and the soon-to-be-reopened Beechwood Knoll Elementary School in Wollaston, and $300,000 for the completion of an auditorium at Quincy High School and other improvements.

The other major bond issue in the package totals $2.9 million and is earmarked for the improvement of the city's parks and playgrounds. The rest of the package consists of smaller amounts that would go toward improvements to Wollaston Center, repairs to sea walls and dikes in Houghs Neck, departmental equipment, and more.

The bonds will be taken to market later this year.

Cahill said he may propose cuts for certain parts of the bond package July 20. He admitted, however, that since a majority of councillors have already indicated support of the bond package, such action may be pointless.

If his cuts are not supported by other councillors, Cahill said he will vote against certain bond issues if he is allowed to. If asked to vote for the entire package as is—as the Finance Committee did Monday night—Cahill said he will vote against it.

Cahill said while some of the bond package projects could be considered immediate concerns—such as the Parker School renovations and the sea walls—others are not as pressing. He also stressed that while he is in favor of funding all of the projects, he does not think bonding is necessary in every case.

"I don't agree that we should be bonding everything," he said. "We could be forcing ourselves into a difficult situation if a real emergency comes up in the future."

Most councillors, however, were generally enthusiastic in their support of the bond package.

"It is something that is desperately needed," said Phelan. "And it's not a piece-meal approach. It will take care of a lot of problems for years to come."

Councillors did have questions on the bonds, however. Cahill and Cheney both questioned if spending $2.9 million on parks and playgrounds was a good idea if in a few years those fields become run-down again.

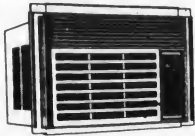

However, Ray Cattaneo, executive director of the Quincy Parks, Forestry and Cemetery Department, said that the six new employees Sheets plans to hire for the department will help prevent that situation. Sheets also said Tuesday he plans to ask the city's park and recreation board to create new policy to ensure that the fields will be well-maintained.

The city currently owes over $17 million in bonds, but City Auditor Robert Foy said that is considerably lower than the $38 million peak reached in the 1980s, when Quincy owed General Dynamics money for tax repayments.

Sheets has also said that some of the bond money, including 62 percent of what is earmarked for school projects, will be reimbursed by the state. The city is therefore only actually bonding for about $7 million, he said.

City of Quincy, Massachusetts

Office of the Mayor

Welcome to Historic Quincy

On Memorial Day weekend Quincy paid tribute to its Civil War history by providing for the burial of an unknown Civil War Soldier killed at the Battle of the Crater in Petersburg, Virginia. Through the eyes of television, people across the United States shared this solemn and meaningful occasion. On June 14th our City turned its attention to honoring our Flag and one of its own, Karen Cashman, a bronze medal winner in the 1994 Winter Olympics.

Quincy has many places of historical interest: the birth-places of two Presidents (the only father and son Presidents to serve this great country) John Adams and John Quincy Adams; the burial places of these two presidents and their wives; Adams National Historic Site (sometimes called the Adams' Summer White House); Abigail Adams Cairn; Adams Academy Building (now the home of the Quincy Historical Society); Colonel Josiah Quincy House; Granite Railway Incline; Hancock Cemetery; Quincy City Hall (Greek Revival structure of Quincy Granite); the Quincy Homestead; and many other sites.

Whether in honoring its past or preserving its future through actions of today, Quincy remains a City of historical significance and interest.

Enjoy your visit in this great city while you brush up on history and come back again soon.

Sincerely,

JAMES A. SHEETS

After Painstaking Renewal Project

John Adams Birthplace Has Original Look

The birthplace of John Adams, second president of the United States, looks like it did when he and his parents, Deacon John and Susanna lived there.

It took on that "as it was" look after a painstaking six-year reconstruction project in the 1980s.

Visitors to the John Adams Birthplace, which peers over the shoulder of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace on Franklin St., South Quincy, can now see more completely how the house looked.

The house is well furnished and looks like it did when John and Abigail lived in it.

The final renovation touches were to the room where Deacon John Adams made shoes.

The rooms are furnished from the period of Deacon John and his wife and probably reflected her taste. They are furnished not elaborately, but sufficiently to have a lived-in look.

The birthplace was probably built in the late 17th or early 18th Century for less than $1,000 in the pounds of the day and the clapboards were hand-hewn from trees that grew in its fields.

The pine clapboards of the John Adams Birthplace are unpainted and the U.S. National Park Service, which restored the house, insists that based on research the house will remain that way, despite the fact that John Adams was known to have preferred it white.

For more than 80 years they were the little red farmhouses at the foot of Penn's Hill. But research turned up the fact that Abigail Adams, the wife of the second president, wanted them "stone" and white in color.

Since what Abigail wanted, Abigail usually got, in the summer of 1980, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace was repainted to Abigail's taste, the "stone" color determined to be a sort of off-white mixed especially for the occasion from a late 18th Century formula.

The John Adams Birthplace was painted white so that both houses would look as they did in 1807, the year the last Adams lived in them, but later research indicated it was unpainted.

The birthplaces, parts of which date back to the 17th Century, were taken over by the National Park Service on May 1, 1979, after years of semi-neglect due to lack of restoration and maintenance funds.

The John Quincy Adams Birthplace re-opened in 1982 for the first time in three years after undergoing a $175,000 rehabilitation faithful to the lives of the prominent family that lived there.

If you close your eyes and give your imagination full rein you can see them now as they were more than 200 years ago.

JOHN ADAMS BIRTHPLACE

There is Abigail Adams in the new pink gingham dress. There is the curly-haired infant, Thomas Boylston Adams, bouncing on his father's knee. And there is John Adams, home from the Continental Congress in Philadelphia for the first time in a year, sitting at the table drinking a cup of tea.

The setting, right down to the pewter plates and candlesticks, is reproduced faithfully in the corner room of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace.

The furnishings of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace are precise reproductions of those that were in the house when the second president lived there. The originals are at the Old House, the Adams National Historic Site, from which they cannot be removed under the ownership agreement with the Adams family.

The most interesting room in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace is John Adams' old law office, in which the elder Adams, James Bowdoin and Samuel Adams drafted the Massachusetts State Constitution, the model on which the U.S. Constitution was based.

The law office is furnished pretty much as John Adams had it.

There is the hutch table on which he wrote the State Constitution; the bookcase filled with books that probably were there in John Adams' day, judging by an inventory of his law library; his old writing desk and two chairs that were copies from those in his second law office in Boston.

Pastels of Abigail and John, originally done in Salem, were photographically reproduced by photographer George Dow and now hang in Abigail's sitting room. The originals are in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Abigail's old kitchen cabinet was discovered serving as a bookcase in the Old House.

The cabinet was reproduced and installed in the kitchen of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace along with copies of the blue china that John purchased when he was emissary to Holland.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 to Nov. 10 with guided tours. The last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2.00 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days. Park passes available.

The Adams Cottages

Our Only Father - Son Presidents Born Here

It was the North Precinct of Braintree then, a sprawling tract of woods and farmlands on the gently rolling hills some 10 miles south of the Boston Stone along the winding Coast Road to Plymouth.

Something less than 1,500 people lived in the North, Middle and South Precincts of Braintree in the year 1735 and two of them were Deacon John Adams, 44, farmer and cordwainer, and his wife, Susanna, 26.

Their home was a weathered gray farmhouse with a high peaked roof and attached lean-to kitchen set on seven acres of farmland at roughly Milepost 11 of the Coast Road, just where it turned up the wooded slopes of Penn's Hill toward the Monaquot River ford.

He was a pillar of his rural community. Mr. Adams was, a deacon in the First Parish Church, a lieutenant in the Braintree militia and a town constable with a forceful personality and tact that enabled him to collect taxes from his neighbors.

He was a hard-working farmer whose cider was acknowledged best in town, he worked in leather during the winter months, and he had an eye on an adjoining piece of farmland, 9½ acres owned by the Billings brothers, complete with a farmhouse similar to his own.

Susanna Adams was a Boylston of

Brookline, socially a cut above her husband, and perhaps there were moments in the simple house at the foot of Penn's Hill when she thought of the home of her uncle, the noted Dr. Zabdiel Boylston of Brookline, whose furniture came all the way from London.

Their first child, a son who was named John for his father, was born in the southeast bedroom of the farmhouse on Oct. 19, 1735 (Old Style). He would become the second president of the United States.

Deacon John purchased the house next door for 500 pounds in 1744 and it was ready 20 years later when young John moved in with his brand new bride, the former Abigail Smith, the preacher's sparkling daughter from the next town of Weymouth.

Their second child, a son who was named John Quincy Adams after his great grandfather, Col. John Quincy, was born there on July 11, 1767. He would become the sixth president of the United States.

The junction of Franklin St., Independence Ave., and President Ave. in South Quincy is the only place in the country where the birthplaces of two presidents who are father and son stand side by side in the same city.

The precise age of the two cottages at the foot of Penn's Hill is not known.

When the John Adams Birthplace was retored by the Daughters of Revolution in 1897, a brick bearing the date 1681 was discovered under the southeast corner, and the house was known to have been occupied by one Joseph Penniman in that year.

And a man named Samuel Belcher was living in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace as early as 1663, when it was little more than a one-room shack with fireplace. It was built to its present size in 1716, as evidenced by a date brick found in the new fireplace.

According to Henry Adams, a grandson of President John Quincy Adams, no member of the family lived in the cottages after 1818, although ownership remained in the Adams family until 1940.

Both houses were restored by the Adams Realty Trust, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace in 1896 at a cost of $1,650 and the John Adams Birthplace a year later at an expense of $515.49.

They were presented to the city of Quincy in 1940 and supervised by the Quincy Historical Society until they were turned over to the U.S. National Park Service in 1979.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 through Nov. 10, with guided tours. Admission is $2 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days.

The Quincy Presidential Trail

The Adams Birthplaces are an important stop on the newly designated Quincy Presidential Trail, a 10.5 mile route that takes the visitor through the 17th and 18th Century locales associated with the lives of the Adams family.

Historic sites along the trail include the Adams Mansion, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Adams Academy, First Parish Church, Adams Crypt, City Hall, Hancock Cemetery, the Adams Birthplaces, Abigail Adams Cairn, First Commercial Railroad, First Ironworks, Col. Josiah Quincy House and Moswetuset Hummock, most of which are described in this supplement.

The Quincy Presidential Trail is a National Recreation Trail, the seventh in the state of Massachusetts and the 625th in the nation.

ADAMS MANSION NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

The Adams Mansion

Summer White House And Home Of 2 Presidents

Josiah Quincy, the one who built railroads around New England and founded the cooperative bank movement in Massachusetts, was in his boyhood a frequent visitor to the mansion where John Adams, the second president of the United States, lived in retirement.

Later, he wrote with wry amusement about Sunday dinner with the aging patriarch of the Adams clan and his wife, Abigail, a dinner that inevitably began with a thick pudding made from boiled corn meal.

"...it being thought desirable to take the edge off one's hunger before reaching the joint," wrote Quincy.

"Indeed, it was considered wise to stimulate the young to fill themselves with pudding, by the assurance that the boy who managed to eat the most of it should be helped most abundantly to the meat, which was to follow.

"It need not be said that neither the winner nor his competitors found much room for meat at the close of their contest; and so the domestic economy of the arrangement was very apparent."

Quincy, as a young Harvard law student, stopped by several times a week in summer to talk and read to the former President. He found the visits delightful. Indeed, the Adams of the cold and austere public mien was never more relaxed and warm than he was at his country home in Quincy.

The original house, a small part of the present building, was built probably in 1731 by Major Leonard Vassall, a wealthy West Indian sugar planter who lived in Cambridge and apparently used it for a summer place.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Borland, who was a Loyalist during the Revolution, abandoned the house to leave with the British forces when they evacuated Boston in 1776. For a while it was used as a haven for rebel refugees fleeing the war zones.

Mrs. Borland returned to reclaim the house after the Revolution and John Adams, then in Europe as the first American ambassador to London, purchased it for 600 pounds through the good offices of the Cotton Tufts of Weymouth, his wife Abigail's cousin.

The Adamses were about to return to the United States after seven years abroad and Abigail was concerned that John's books and papers and the furnishings they had acquired in Europe would not fit into their old farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill where they lived before.

The deal was closed on Sept. 26, 1787, and the deed is still on file in the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in which the Adams purchase is specified as a house, barn and other buildings on seven acres of land with some 76 acres more scattered around the North Precinct of Braintree.

There are indications that Abigail was at first disappointed with her purchase. It was a lot smaller than she remembered it.

"In height and breadth it feels like a wren's house," she wrote to her daughter, Abigail, the wife of Col. William S. Smith, "Let Col. Smith come without heels to his shoes or he will not be able to walk upright."

Abigail and John Adams moved into the house, which they named "Peacefield," after his retirement from the presidency in 1801 and lived there until they died.

It was from the "Old House," as the family called it, that John Adams carried on his long and increasingly warm correspondence with his old rival, Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, who had succeeded him in the presidency. In retirement, they became firm friends as they outlasted their contemporaries.

"Thomas Jefferson lives," whispered John Adams as he lay dying in the Old House. He was wrong. Jefferson, in far away Monticello, Va., had preceded him in death by a few hours on the same day.

It was July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The Old House which served as summer White House for two presidents, was home to four generations of the Adams family, the last, Brooks Adams, dying in February, 1927. It was taken over by the U.S. National Park Service in 1946 to become the Adams Mansion National Historic Site.

The site at 135 Adams St. is open to the public from April 19 to Nov. 10 daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and children over 16, and includes admission to the Adams Birthplaces within seven days.

THE FIRST PARISH CHURCH

First Parish Church

Where 2 Presidents, Their Wives Are Entombed

In 1949, when the present First Parish Church building, the Old Stone Temple, was 121 years old, it was ruled officially that the church is older than the city itself and the town before it.

It was then that the late historian William Churchill Edwards was called upon to resolve a minor dispute that involved the rounding of the corners of the church lot in downtown Quincy.

"Almost the first subject to which the minds of the early settlers of our country were turned after they landed here was the formation of a church," said Edwards.

The first church in these parts was established as a branch of the Church of Boston in 1636. It became a church in its own right in 1639. The Mount Wollaston section of Boston was incorporated as the town of Braintree on May 23, 1640. Ergo, the church came first!

Quincy's first house of worship, the branch of the Church of Boston, was called the "Chappel of Ease," and if it was neglected by early historians it was because its first pastor, the Rev. John Wheelwright, his sister-in-law, Anne Hutchinson, and others were banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for heresy.

The new church, the one that lasted, was gathered by covenant on Sept. 26, 1639, and it was holding services in its third meeting house in 1732 when its pastor was the Rev. John Hancock, father of the bold first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Son John also was a member.

The affairs of the church and the town of Quincy were one and the same until 1824 when church and state were separated in Massachusetts and the Congregational Society was established to handle parochial matters.

The old Hancock meeting house was still standing, although a little run down, on the south lawn of the present church lot in 1822 when former President John Adams deeded the interest from certain of his lands and granite from his pastures to build a stone temple.

It was completed in Greek revival style at a cost of $30,488.56 which was some $3,000 less than architect Alexander Parrish's estimate and dedicated Nov. 12, 1828, with John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States holding Pew No. 1.

Even before the church was dedicated, the mortal remains of its benefactors, John and Abigail Adams, were transferred to tombs in the crypt of the church and, in 1852, the bodies of John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, joined them.

It is the only church in the United States in which two Presidents are buried. The only other church in which a President is buried is the Episcopal Cathedral in Washington D.C., where President Woodrow Wilson is entombed.

An active Unitarian Universalist Church, it is open to the public for tours daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Thursday, Nov. 10. Admission is $1. For further information call 773-0062 or the church office at 773-1290.

Why We Pronounce It 'Quin-zee'

Why do we pronounce Quincy "Quin-zee" when just about everyone else in the country refers to it as "Quin-see?"

There are 19 other Quincys in the U.S., but they pronounce it "Quin-see."

Can they be right and we be wrong?

Not according to Quincy's late city historian, William C. Edwards who never bugged an inch whenever the argument ever came up. And it still comes up.

The reason we pronounce it "Quin-zee" is very simple.

"That's the way the Quincy family pronounced it," he used to explain.

"The original Quincy family which settled here at Mount Wollaston pronounced it 'Quin-zee,' including Col. John Quincy after whom Quincy, Mass.—the first Quincy—was named in 1792."

Colonel Quincy was the great grandfather of sixth president John Quincy Adams.

Apparently all 19 other Quincys in the U.S. were named after John Quincy Adams.

And, apparently the early settlers of those communities thought John Quincy pronounced it John "Quin-see."

Anyway, that is how Edwards explained it. Seems like a sound argument.

City Hall

Seat Of Government For 150 Years

Daniel and Hannah French deeded the land to the town of Quincy for $1,000 with the stipulation that it "shall not be used for any other purpose than as a place for a Town House for the said Inhabitants."

And, with a few minor transgressions of that vow, the solid structure of Quincy granite on Quincy Square has been just that for the past 150 years, the nerve center of government for the town and then the city.

It was the great hall on the second floor that the popular John Quincy Adams II, grandson of a president of the United States, held forth as town moderator for many years and, with his brother, Charles Francis Adams Jr., gave informal direction to town affairs.

One of the earliest ordinances passed by the first City Council on March 8, 1889 was the adoption of the City Seal emblazoned with the four most significant dates in Quincy's history:

1625, for the first settlement on Mount Wollaston; 1640, for its separation from Boston as the town of Braintree; 1792, for its separation from Braintree as the town of Quincy; and 1888, for its incorporation as a city.

CITY HALL

Designed by the architect Solomon Willard - who received $280 for drawing up the plans and superintending construction for five months - the City Hall was completed and occupied for the first time on Nov. 1, 1844.

It cost exactly $19,115.93 to build, including 88 cents to John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

In 1979, when a 3 and one half story reflective glass addition was built behind the old City Hall, the cost was $1.9 million.

Quincy Was Almost Hancock

If some of the early settlers had their way, you would be living in the city of Hancock today instead of the city of Quincy.

Quincy, like George Washington, was born on Feb. 22.

On Feb. 22, 1792, the General Court of Massachusetts passed an act incorporating the North Precinct of Old Braintree as the separate town of Quincy.

But, just before that, quite a few of the residents wanted the new town named after native-son John Hancock instead of Boston-born Col. John Quincy.

Colonel Quincy, who had represented Old Braintree in the General Court, was the great grandfather of President John Quincy Adams.

Many people today think Quincy was named after the sixth President but the honor actually goes to his great grandfather.

John Hancock who was born in the North Precinct, was governor of Massachusetts when the General Court passed the act incorporating the new town as Quincy. He signed the act the following day.

But at the first town meeting of the new town in May, a petition was presented to change the name from Quincy to Hancock in honor of the patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence. The move was finally defeated after a stormy verbal battle.

Opponents argued that Hancock

was still alive and that the honor should go to a distinguished-but deceased-person.

Colonel Quincy met those requirements. He was both distinguished - and deceased.

He had represented Old Braintree in the General Court from 1717 to 1741 - 12 of those years as Speaker of the House. He died in 1767 at age 77 - two days after John Quincy Adams was born.

Quincy became a city June 11, 1888.

But a lot of people will go right on thinking Quincy was named after John Quincy Adams.

THE GRANITE RAILWAY

The Granite Railway

First Commercial Railroad In U.S.

It was the darndest looking contraption that many among the distinguished gathering had ever seen.

Each of the three wagons had four wheels, 6 and one half feet in diameter, surmounted by a smaller gear wheel which was used to raise and lower the cargo platform that was slung low between the wheels.

It rode on foot-high wooden rails, topped by iron plate, which rested on stone sleepers or cross ties, placed eight feet apart and firmly supported on crushed granite to a depth beyond the frost line.

On Saturday, Oct. 7, 1826, the wagons were laden with 16 tons of the finest Quincy granite and the opening day guests were properly amazed when a single horse moved the whole thing with ease more than three miles to a special wharf on the Neponset River.

The granite blocks, a particularly hard and weather-resistant stone capable of taking a brilliant polish, were en route to Charlestown, where they were building a monument to the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The Granite Railway, the first such commercial venture in the United States, was built specifically to transport stone for the Bunker Hill Monument.

That it became successful, and a model for others around the country, is a tribute to three vastly dissimilar men, the engineer Gridley Bryant, the architect Solomon Willard and the financier, Col. Thomas Handasyd Perkins.

Bryant was 27 at the time but already an engineer of note. He invented the eight wheeled railroad car and, when a fellow named Ross Winans of Baltimore sued to establish a patent on it, Bryant was able to prove his claim to the satisfaction of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Willard, then 43, was a great bear of a man, gentle, obliging, industrious. Frivolity, it was said, was alien to him and he was never known to run. He could be crotchety, too. He was a carpenter turned wood-carver, turned stone-carver and, finally architect.

Perkins was the autocratic, 52-year-old merchant king of Boston who was said to have been offered the post of Secretary of the Navy by President Washington and turned it down with the observation that he owned more ships than the Navy.

It was Perkins who lobbied the Railway's charter through a puzzled and obstinate State Legislature, which had never been called upon to incorporate a commercial railroad before. It was Perkins who financed it, too, largely with his own money.

Even in its early days, the Granite Railway was a tourist attraction of some magnitude.

Daniel Webster, who used to stop off for a pick-me-up in Quincy en route from Boston and Washington to his home in Marshfield, viewed it and decided that it would never succeed because of the frost that would form on the rails in the winter.

The President of the United States, a local boy named John Quincy Adams, visited in August, 1827, got caught in a thunderstorm and took shelter in a shed where Willard's stone-cutters were hacking away at monument granite.

A group of visitors were riding up the Railway's incline in an empty car on July 25, 1832, when the chain broke and catapulted them over a 40-foot cliff. One was killed in what may have been the first railroad fatality in the United States.

The Granite Railway Co. survived until 1870, some 27 years after the Bunker Hill Monument was finished, when most of its track was taken over by the Old Colony Railroad, which in turn became a division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Today much of the roadbed, over which freight moved commercially on rails for the first time in America, is buried under the macadam of the Southeast Expressway.

The incline of the old Railway has been restored and is located at the dead end of Mullin Ave. in West Quincy. It is open to the public year round, 24 hours a day. There is no admission charge.

Moswetuset Hummock

'Birthplace Of Massachusetts'

The Indians saw it as a hill (wetuset) shaped like an arrowhead (mos) so they called it "Moswetuset" and when English tongues got through mangling the word it came out "Massachusetts," which became the name of the bay and then the state.

The little wooded hillock near the junction of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Drive was once the seat of the sachem Chickatabot, who comes down through the pages of Quincy history as a rather pathetic figure.

He was the chief of the Moswetuset Indians, a once great tribe that occupied the coast north of Plymouth.

A few years before, under the great sachem Nanepashemet, the Moswetuset had been able to field some 3,000 warriors for a war with the Nanepashemet was killed.

Then came the plague.

In two years the mighty Moswetuset were all but wiped out. No more than 60 of them were left to till their fields on the banks of the Neponset River. Sachem Chickatabot fled his home on the hill in Wollaston and took refuge on Moswetuset Hummock.

That was the situation in 1621 when Capt. Myles Standish landed from a shallop with an exploring party of Plymouth Pilgrims that included the Indian guide Squanto (or Tsquantum), whose name was given to the peninsula that stuck out in the bay.

The tragic Chickatabot died not long after the Pilgrims' visit and he was succeeded as sachem by his son, Josiah Wampatuck, a boy who knew a good deal when he saw one.

Wampatuck sold what was left of his virtually deserted tribal lands to a group of whites for 12 pounds, 10 shillings. The lands included most of what is today the city of Quincy and the towns of Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

Moswetuset Hummock, identified by a marker stone and maintained in its natural state, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

The Thomas Crane Library

A Romanesque Architectural Beauty

He came to Quincy as a boy of 7, grew to young manhood on a farm in Quincy Point, learned the granite-cutters' trade, and left at the age of 26 to win fame and fortune in stone in New York City.

That was the last Quincy saw of Thomas Crane for half a century until one February day in 1880, five years after his death, when his son, Albert, appeared with $20,000 with which to build a memorial - preferably a library - to his father.

"My father always retained a strong feeling for the town of Quincy," was his only explanation.

Albert Crane himself chose the man to design the building, Henry Hobson Richardson, grandson of the English scientist Dr. Joseph Priestly and the foremost architect of the day.

His reputation was so formidable that he was able to tell Crane, "I can not guarantee that the building, when completed, shall conform to (your) ideas of beauty and taste," and still get the job.

Richardson's Romanesque building, which now houses the reference section of the library, was dedicated on May 30, 1882, with the principal oration delivered by Charles Francis Adams, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees. It was Adams who gave the library its name. Albert Crane wanted it to be "The Quincy Free Public Library." Adams insisted on "The Thomas Crane Public Library."

"Who's giving the building?" asked Albert Crane.

"You are, but you wouldn't have it if it hadn't been for me," said Adams, who was used to having his way around Quincy, and that was that.

President John Adams' modest collection of books was housed in the library until 1893, when it was discovered that in 11 years only two persons, one of them Charles Francis Adams, Jr., had asked to see them. They were then transferred to the Boston Public Library.

At the start, Richardson's magnificent building was all but hidden behind a grain store, a hotel, an office building and four homes that lined Washington St.

Albert Crane, however, was a persistent man and, by the time he died in 1917, he had purchased and torn down all the buildings, leaving a broad expanse of open space to enhance the library.

But before the lawn could be seeded, World War I intervened and, in a burst of patriotism - "Food will win the war," they said - the area was planted with potatoes, tended by an expert brought in from Maine. The experiment failed.

THOMAS CRANE PUBLIC LIBRARY

"There wasn't a potato in the lot that was anywhere near as large as a golf ball," said Mayor Joseph L. Whiton. The harvest was donated to the poor farm.

Albert Crane also put up $64,000 to build the Spear St. wing of the library in 1907-08 and the Crane family gave yet another $164,000 for the free standing addition, built in 1936, that now houses the stacks and the children's section.

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., is open to the public, free of charge, Monday to Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Friday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is closed on Saturdays during July and August.

Dorothy Quincy Homestead

John Hancock's Declaration Of Love

An aura of romance surrounds the stately old house that is set back in the trees from the corner of Hancock St. and Butler Rd., on the banks of Furnace Brook.

There is the wallpaper with its blue cupids and pink flowers that was imported from France for the wedding of Dorothy Quincy, the vivacious daughter of the house, to Quincy-born John Hancock, a patriot on the run with a price on his head.

There are the words "You I Love and You alone," addressed by Hancock to his beloved Dorothy and scratched on a window pane with his diamond ring just before he fled to Lexington on the eve of the Revolution.

And there are the secret chambers and passageways, used, it was said, to hide fugitive patriots during the Revolution and, at an earlier date, even certain Englishmen fleeing a charge of regicide in the death of King Charles I.

Parts of the house were built in 1685 by Col. Edmund Quincy, the second of the name, on land that was granted to an earlier Edmund in 1638. The major part was built in 1706 by Edmund the third. (There were six Edmunds in all, four in a direct line; two nephews.)

The house was the social center of old Braintree during the regime of the fourth Edmund, largely because he sired five beautiful daughters around whom swirled a whole future generation of judges, generals and merchant kings.

The undisputed belle of the household was Dorothy, the coquettish youngest of the eight Quincy children, whose troth was soon plighted to John Hancock, the wealthy young businessman from Boston who was already becoming known as a leader of the rebels.

Tradition has it that they were to have been married in the north parlor of the Quincy homestead with its French cupid wallpaper when Revolution intervened and John had to flee with the British on his heels.

Eventually, they were wed Aug. 28, 1775, at the home of Thaddeus Burr, uncle of Aaron Burr (later vice president of the United States) in Fairfield, Conn.

After the Revolution and the death of Edmund the fourth in 1788 the old house passed from the Quincy family. The Hancocks wanted nothing to do with it. Their only son, John George Washington Hancock, was killed in a skating accident at age 9 while on a visit in 1787.

The house was acquired in 1904 by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, who restored it with vintage furniture, utensils and clothing, and gave it to the state with the proviso that the Dames continue to run it.

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead is open to the public May through October, Wednesday through Sunday, from noon to 5 p.m. (last tour at 4 p.m. It is also open by appointment only Wednesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to noon for groups. Admission is $3.00 for adults and $1.00 for children age 12 and under.

The YMCA is a great place to go for any kid. For some kids, it's the only great place to go.

The truth is, because of family problems or low incomes, a lot of kids can't afford the opportunities to go places and be with adults who can give them the caring attention that they need.

That's why the YMCA is so important. We give kids the positive experiences they need to grow up prepared for happy and productive lives. But we always run out of money before we run out of kids.

John Adams 'Father'

U.S., State Constitution Both Born Here

Quincy, birthplace of John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Hancock, also has claim to the birth of the U.S. Constitution.

The seed for this precious document was planted here.

The U.S. Constitution was modeled after the Massachusetts Constitution which was written by John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin in the law office of the John Quincy Adams birthplace in Quincy.

There is every reason to believe that John Adams did not want to go to the Massachusetts Constitution Convention in Cambridge in 1779.

He had arrived home only seven days before on the French frigate La Sensible after nearly 18 months in Paris helping to negotiate a commercial and military alliance with France. He was in such a rush to get home that he apparently landed the day before La Sensible reached Boston by rowing ashore from Nantasket Roads.

He missed his wife, Abigail, terribly, and she him.

"One was angry, another was full of Greif, and the third with Melancholy, so that I burnt them all," he wrote to her from Passy on Dec. 18, 1778, listing his complaints with her most recent letters. "If you write me in this style I shall leave of writing intirely, it kills me.

"Am I not wretched Enough, in this Banishment, without this? What Course shall I take to convince you that my Heart is warm? I beg you would never more write to me in such a strain for it really makes me unhappy."

"How lonely are my days?" she wrote on a Sunday evening, Dec. 27. "How solitary are my Nights? How insupportable the Idea that 3000 leagues, and the vast ocean now divide us -- but divide only our persons for the Heart of my Friend is in the Bosom of his partner."

Somewhere on the vast ocean the two letters passed each other.

Paris and the dissolute court of Louis XVI held small appeal to the Puritan in John Adams, even when his closest everyday companions were Dr. Benjamin Franklin, still with an eye for the ladies at age 73, and the swashbuckling Capt. John Paul Jones, half patriot, half pirate, who had just taken command of the leaky old East Indianman he had renamed Bon Homme Richard.

The American colonies, newly reborn as the United States of America, were going through the most dismal period of the War for Independence. Inflation was rampant; butcher's meat, a dollar to eight shillings a pound; flour, fifty dollars a hundredweight. The news from the fighting front was of defeat, privation and horror.

Like many Braintree wives whose husbands were away at war, Abigail Adams was forced into the unaccustomed role of head of the household, a function she filled with determination.

"I cannot avoid sometimes repining that the gifts of fortune were not bestowed upon us, that I might have enjoyed the happiness of spending my days with my partner," she wrote, "but as it is, I think it my duty to attend with frugality and economy to our own private affairs; and if I cannot add to our little substance, yet see to it that it is not diminished."

She abstained from drinking black market tea, allowing herself one tiny complaint: "I should like a little green (tea), but they say there is none to be had here. I only wish it for a medicine, as a relief to a nervous pain in my head to which I am sometimes subject."

John Adams attended the opening session of the Constitutional Convention in Cambridge on Wednesday, Sept. 1, 1779. On Saturday, he was named to a committee of 30 to prepare the declaration of rights and the constitution. On Monday, the committee delegated the task to a subcommittee of three, John and Samuel Adams, and James Bowdoin.

Thus it was that John Adams wound up in the law office of his home at the foot of Penn's Hill, paired with his firebrand cousin, Sam, and his ailing friend, James Bowdoin, to write a Constitution for the state of Massachusetts, which in turn became the model for the Constitution of the United States.

The patient, hard-working John Adams, of course, did most of the work.

"I was by the Convention put upon the Committee -- by the Committee upon the subcommittee -- and by the subcommittee appointed a sub subcommittee -- so that I had the honor to be principal Engineer," he wrote to his friend, Edmund Jennings. Payroll records indicate that he was paid 90 pounds for his work.

The so-called "Adams draft" of the Massachusetts Constitution was accepted by the Convention with a few alterations but by that time John Adams was long gone back to Europe, this time to help negotiate a treaty of peace with Britain and serve as America's first minister to London. He did not see the farm at the foot of Penn's Hill again for another eight years.

But he was immensely heartened by these words from the pen of his ever-loving Abigail, written on Oct. 15, 1780:

"Our Massachusetts Constitution is read with admiration in New York and pronounced by the Royal Governor as the best republican form he ever saw."

WRITING TABLE in old law office is spot where John Adams labored over his law cases in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace.

It Was Richard

For years, the first name of Capt. Wollaston, the leader of the original settlers of Quincy in 1625, was lost to history.

Only recently did the researches of H. Hobart Holly, historian of the Quincy Historical Society, turn up the information that it probably was Richard.

DOMED CEILING of the United First Parish Church, cut with classic Greek lines, emphasizes the size and beauty of the church. The dome and the crypt of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives combine to make the "Church of Presidents" one of most awe inspiring sights in Quincy.

HANCOCK CEMETERY in Quincy Square is the resting place of the early settlers including Rev. John Hancock, a minister of the First Parish Church and father of patriot John Hancock.

John Quincy Adams: The Old Flame Still Burned

The old man's bitterness glowed from every word as he penned them in his diary on June 17, 1843, the day the Bunker Hill Monument was dedicated.

"What a name in the annals of mankind is Bunker Hill! What a day was the 17th of June, 1775! And what a burlesque upon them both is an oration upon them by Daniel Webster!"

The old man despised Webster as a turncoat to his own heritage, one whose compromises had sold out to slavery.

"The ideal associations of the thundering cannon, which I heard, and the smoke of burning Charlestown, which I saw, on that awful day . . . How could I have witnessed all this at once, without an unbecoming burst of indignation.

"Daniel Webster is a heartless traitor to the cause of freedom; John Tyler [the President] is a slave-monger. What have these to do with the Quincy granite pyramid on the brow of Bunker Hill?

"I stayed home . . .
The old flame still burned in John Quincy Adams at 75.

Josiah Quincy Homestead

Lookout For Spying On British Ships

Abigail Adams stood with her great uncle, Col. Josiah Quincy, in a window of his mansion overlooking Wollaston Beach and watched the tall masts of 170 ships stand slowly out to sea. It was March 17, 1776. The British were evacuating Boston. But even in triumph there was tragedy.

Aboard the departing ships were more than 1,000 Loyalists, Americans who had chosen King above country, and one of them was Abigail's cousin, Samuel Quincy, the Colonel's only remaining son, an avowed Tory.

"I take a long farewell," his sister, Hannah, wrote to him for one last time. "Let it not be published that a brother of such brothers fled from his country. Can you expect to walk uprightly now? Can you take fire in your bosom and not be burned?"

Two of Col. Josiah Quincy's sons had died young. Now he had no more.

But there was no time for regrets. The work of revolution had begun. The second floor of the house at what is now 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was a lookout from which the 66-year-old Colonel spied on British ship movements for his friend, Gen. George Washington.

A few months before, Col. Quincy watched the Royal Governor, Gen. Thomas Gage depart and he scratched on a pane of window glass the reminder: "Oct. 10, 1775, General Gage sailed for England with a fair wind."

This time he remained in the window for three days as the British tall ships moved restlessly about the Harbor as if reluctant to leave. Finally, on March 20, the last of them passed through the roadstead and out to sea.

The mansion in Wollaston reached full social flower under the aegis of the Colonel's grandson, the third Josiah, the "Great Mayor" of Boston, president of Harvard and Congressman, who called it "Tranquilla" and used it as his summer home.

It was there that the Marquis de Lafayette visited one Sunday afternoon after dinner with his friend, ex-President John Adams at the Adams Mansion. He carried flowers from the Adams garden for Mrs. Eliza Susan Quincy and her five attractive daughters.

The house was built in 1770 by the old Colonel himself, the first in a line of six Josiahs. It was said that, while most families passed their line from sire to son, the Quincys went from "Siah to 'Siah."

But, while there were six Josiahs and innumerable Edmunds, the city was named for yet another member of the prolific family - Col. John Quincy, the great grandfather of John Quincy Adams sixth president of the United States.

JOSIAH QUINCY HOMESTEAD

The Josiah Quincy Homestead is open to the public from June 1 to Oct. 15 Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Visits may be made at other times by appointment. Admission is $4 for adults, $3.50 for senior citizens and $2 for children age 12 and under.

How Many Miles From Boston?

Stone mile markers across Hancock Street from each other indicate that the traveler is both 7 1/2 and 10 miles from Boston. And both are correct.

The 10-miles marker was placed on the Old Coast Road, one of the oldest highways in the United States still in existence, which went from Boston to Plymouth in 1639 by way of inland Milton.

The 7 1/2-mile marker was raised after the first bridge over the Neponset River was built in 1803, creating the Neponset Turnpike, which is today Hancock St. in North Quincy and Wollaston.

When Josiah Quincy IV built a house for his family, he considered location, beauty, and community. He then chose the best spot in town.

Today, at the same location, land-

The Smoke Could Be Seen Over Bunker Hill

Abigail Adams was awakened at dawn in the farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill by the sound of far off guns. All through the sweltering morning of June 17, 1775, as she hustled about with the chores, the dull boom of cannon intruded on her consciousness.

Riders on the Coast Road to Plymouth, stopping at the farmhouse for a drink of water, told her of a great battle underway on Breed's Hill in Charlestown.

One of them brought word that Dr. Joseph Warren had been killed in the fighting and little Abby, age 10, burst into tears, and John Quincy, nearly 8, felt bewildered and sad, for Dr. Warren was the Adams family doctor in Boston.

In the afternoon, Abigail could stand it no longer. Taking Abby and John Quincy by the hand, she walked up the Coast Road to the top of Penn's Hill and climbed up on the rocks for a better view.

The panorama of the Bay, a shimmering blue in the sunshine, spread out before them, the tiny houses on the three hills of Boston and, beyond, the black smoke rising in billows.

"Good God," exclaimed Abigail, "they are burning Charlestown!"

The scene etched itself forever in John Quincy's memory.

The early days of the Revolution were times of turmoil in Old Braintree and its North Precinct, which was later called Quincy.

Abigail's husband, John, was away most of the time at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, leaving 31-year old Abigail to manage the farm and look to the needs of four small children, Abigail, John Quincy, Charles, 5, and Thomas Boylston, 3.

There were days of alarm as the British, penned up in Boston by the brand new Continental Army, foraged up and down the coast for supplies. Refugees from occupied Boston and the inner towns of Dorchester and Roxbury sometimes slept in the kitchen and in the fields.

As the wife of a member of Congress, Abigail was a center of attention. The house on the Coast Road was a favorite stopping place for travelers to Plymouth. Politicians up from Philadelphia made it a point to stop by for a visit with John Adams' wife.

Abigail was invited to visit Gen. George Washington's headquarters at Winter Hill. The aristocratic Washington was suspect among New Englanders. He was a Virginian; he was an Anglican; and, it was said, he held slaves. But John Adams liked him and Abigail was soon charmed.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN

One day, young John Quincy came home to find his Uncle Elihu melting down Abigail's pewter spoons in the kitchen to make bullet molds. He looked at his mother and she looked back at him and something indefinable passed between them.

"Do you wonder," wrote the sixth president of the United States some 68 years later, "that a boy of 7 who witnessed this scene should be a patriot."

In 1896, where the old Coast Road (now Franklin St.) meets Viden Rd. atop Penn's Hill, a stone cairn was built to mark the spot where Abigail and young John Quincy watched the Battle of Bunker Hill. It is open to the public free of charge.

First Iron Works

Steel Industry Born Here In 1644

It failed after nine years of effort and, since failure was anathema in a growing America, perhaps that is why the site and even the memory of the first commercial iron blast furnace in the United States was lost for so long.

It flourished, if that is the word, from 1644 to 1653 on the banks of the Mount Wollaston River in a section of Old Braintree called, "the Woods." It left its name on the river, now Furnace Brook in West Quincy.

Iron was an important commodity in Colonial Massachusetts, particularly for nails and pots and pans. Unfortunately, iron utensils had to be imported from England, a costly process for the penny-wise colonists.

With this in mind, John Winthrop Jr., son of the governor of the Massachusetts Bay colony [Did someone cry "Nepotism?"]], went to London and formed the "Company of Undertakers for the Ironworks in New England." He, of course, was the local agent.

The Company gave Winthrop a thousand pounds of capital and a work crew of indentured servants, many of whom ran away when they heard they were going to the wilds of America. Jail was better than that!

When, after a search from Maine to Plymouth, he decided to locate in Quincy, Winthrop was also granted 3,000 acres of land, with subsidiary land rights elsewhere in the colony, and a 21-year monopoly.

The operation was deemed of such importance that the iron workers were given exemption from militia duty, this at a time when war was imminent with the Narragansett Indians and with Ninigret, sachem of the Niantics.

The first iron was turned out in 1644, but young Winthrop was fired the next year, to be succeeded by Richard Leader. It is interesting to note that one of America's earliest magnates toiled for a salary of 100 pounds a year.

The ore from which iron was blasted on the banks of Furnace Brook came from the swamps and bogs. It was not a high quality product. Water power from a dam thrown across the Brook was inadequate. Quincy iron proved to be more expensive than the imported kind.

The Company of Undertakers appealed for fresh money in 1646 and apparently there were enough investors ready to send good money after bad because the furnace was still in operation in 1650 when the Scotch Prisoners arrived.

The Scots were rugged Highlanders, soldiers in the army of the future King Charles II who were captured by Oliver Cromwell in the Battle of Dunbar. They suffered the fate common to most 17th Century prisoners of war.

Cromwell shipped 272 of them to New England, cheap labor in an effort to make Quincy iron works a paying proposition. It didn't work. The Company of Undertakers went bankrupt in 1653 and "the Woods" went back to the bear and the deer.

Meanwhile, with the same Richard Leader as agent, construction began on a second iron works on the North Shore in Saugus in 1646. When it was completed in 1650 it was recognized as the first integrated iron industry in America.

Adams Academy

On Site Of John Hancock's Birthplace

By modern standards, the boarding house at the corner of Hancock and Depot Sts. had all the aspects of a genteel prison.

Residents were forbidden to leave between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. They could not enter or leave at any time except by the hall door. They were banned from pool halls and bars. Smoking materials also were forbidden to them.

In exchange for good behavior, plus tuition ranging from $75 to $150 a year, they were given the best prep school education of the day for they were students at Adams Academy, which flourished from 1872 to 1907 in Quincy.

The academy was a gift of John Adams, the second President of the United States, who always had his checkbook ready to fill the spiritual and educational needs of the citizens of his beloved Quincy.

The trust fund, nourished by "rents, profits and emoluments" from certain Adams-owned properties, was set up in the Adams will of 1822, but it was not until 1869 that the fund was deemed large enough to start construction.

The location was specified by Adams himself as the corner of Adams and Hancock Sts., site of the birthplace of his childhood friend, John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The doors opened to the first students, 24 of them, on Sept. 4, 1872. Five years later, the academy reached a peak enrollment of 154 with an international student body -- 25 from Quincy, four from Washington, D.C., 125 and 14 states, two from England and one from Chile.

It had one of the earliest prep school football teams, too, recording a tie with the Resolutes of Boston on Oct. 21, 1876, a scant seven years after Princeton and Rutgers played the first college game. It whipped Andover three times from 1877-79.

The admissions catalogue specified that applicants be "well prepared in the usual studies of good grammar schools" and warned that "no pupils are desired to give them a collegiate education."

The best known headmaster was Dr. William Everett, once acclaimed as one of the seven smartest men in the world. He ran the academy with a firm hand from 1878 to 1893 and again from 1897 to 1907. From 1893 to 1897, he was a U.S. congressman from Lynn.

Dr. Leverett, an amiable if sometimes waspish eccentric, was widely known as the man who hated Abraham Lincoln. He had reason. His father was Edward Everett, whose masterful oration at Gettysburg was over-shadowed by Lincoln's notes scribbled on the back of an envelope.

It was Dr. Everett who signaled the passing of Adams Academy -- and many other 19th Century classical prep schools -- at graduation exercises in 1907 when he said that "unless someone comes forward and planks down $50,000, the academy will be closed."

Nobody did and on June 22, 1907, the Adams Academy officially closed its doors.

The building today is occupied by the Quincy Historical Society, which maintains a museum and research library in the old classrooms as well as an expanded gift shop.

The museum and gift shop are open all year, Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. The library is open Monday and Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. or by appointment. It is closed Sunday and holidays. There is a $1 fee for non-members; children age 12 and under are admitted free.

Abigail Adams Wife, Mother Of Presidents

Mrs. John Adams, the former Abigail Smith of Weymouth, is the only woman to be wife of one president and mother of another -- and she could have been grandmother of a vice president.

Husband John was chief executive from 1797 to 1801; son of John Quincy occupied the White House from 1825 to 1829; and grandson Charles Francis Adams ran for vice president on the Free Soil ticket in 1848.

An early advocate of women's rights, Abigail Adams once wrote to her husband, John:

"In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors.

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember, all men would be tyrants if they could."

ABIGAIL ADAMS

Abigail Adams: A Woman Of Special Honors

Abigail (Smith) Adams was the only woman to be the wife of one President and mother of another. She was the wife of John Adams, our second President.

She died in 1818, however, and did not see her son John Quincy Adams elected our sixth President.

John Adams did live to see his son, become President in 1825.

A Third Generation Continues Our Traditions.

Quincy has changed a great deal since Sweeney Funeral Home was established in 1917. But, it's nice to know some things will never change. Like the observance of traditional values and customs.

At Sweeney Funeral Homes, older residents are quick to notice the subtle reminders of yesteryear, such as the grey gloves our funeral director still wears. Like the characteristic top hat and tails that our founder, Dennis Sweeney, wore over 30 years ago, they reflect our Tradition. One that has been built on a dignified and instinctive concern for the city's bereaved families for three generations.

Today, our founder's grand-nephew, Dennis S. Sweeney has continued the family's philosophy of maintaining a beautiful, home-like atmosphere.

And like his namesake, who started pre-arrangements in the 1940s, Dennis believes in helping residents to plan for the future. Pre-planning means that this financial decision is not left for a family to decide while they are attempting to cope with a major personal loss. It's a difficult time, a time when family members are least able to make the wisest choice.

Sweeney Funeral Homes has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. Call Dennis Sweeney at (617) 773-2728 for a free consultation. There's no time like the present.

Patriots, Early Settlers, Intrigue Buried Here

Henry, the first Adams in Quincy, is buried there. So is the Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. And Col. John Quincy, for whom the city is named.

But of all the 800 graves in the Hancock Cemetery, the Old Burying Ground of Colonial Quincy, most intriguing is one marked by a tombstone bearing this cryptic epitaph:

"Erected to the memory of John R. Grieve: Died Nov. 12, 1850, age 22 years, and Hannah Banks, his wife, died Nov. 12, 1850, age 15 years. Both of Zanesville, Ohio. Deluded by the writings of A.J. Davis."

The mystery of John and Hannah has never been fully solved.

They came to Quincy in 1850, not as man and wife, but as male cousins, John Green and George Sands. They obtained work in a shoe factory but rarely left their lodgings on Elm St., spending long hours reading books on spiritualism.

Co-workers thought that George Sands looked frail, almost effeminate. It was widely suspected that "he" was a girl. A scheme was devised to test the theory.

One day at lunch one of the shoe workers tossed George an apple. A man would catch it by closing his legs; a woman by spreading her skirt. Guess what "George" did!

Humiliated, John and Hannah never went back to the factory. Nor did they ever return to the house on Elm St. Their frozen bodies were found next spring by rabbit hunters on Penn's Hill, locked in a loving embrace.

Several months later, the father of John Grieve arrived from Ohio to bury the young couple. It was he who directed the words to be chiselled on the headstone. He explained no further.

A.J. Davis was never identified for sure. But Andrew Jackson Davis, a spiritualist, hypnotist and faith healer, was then practicing in Boston.

Among the belongings found in the Elm St. lodging house were these words, written by 15-year-old Hannah Banks:

"To the oppressed and down-trodden, to the suffering and afflicted, I would cry out...Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul. Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

Not far from the grave of John and Hannah is a tomb bearing words that cry out of an earlier injustice:

"Three precious friends under this tombstone lie

"Patterns to aged, youth and infancy.

HANCOCK CEMETERY

"A great mother, her learned son, with child.

"The first and least went free. He was exiled.

"In love to Christ, this country, and dear friends

"He left his own, cross'd seas and for amends

"Was here extoll'd, and envy'd all in a breath,

"His noble consort leaves, is drawn to death,

"Stranger changes may befall us ere we die,

"Blest they who will arrive eternity.

"God grant some names, O thou New England's friend.

"Don't sooner fade than thine, if times don't mend."

The tomb with its hidden message contains the family of the Rev. Leonard Hoar, third president of Harvard College, a man too liberal for his times.

He was forced by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony to resign at the instigation of religious opponents and jealous colleagues for permitting Harvard to "languish and decay." Eight months later in November 1675, he was dead at 45.

In 1975, the same General Court, now of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, righted the 300-year-old wrong done to the Rev. Mr. Hoar by "proclaiming and confirming his innocence of any misdeeds while president of Harvard College."

The cemetery, on Hancock St., Quincy Sq., next to City Hall, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.
